APPLICATION FOR MEMBERSHIP (Tear-out)

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE:

We held our initial meeting on 26 September 1978, and we officially organized the CENTRAL GEORGIA GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY at our next meeting on 23 October 1978. Since then we have grown into an organization of fifty-seven members, most of whom are from a six-county area in central Georgia. As we continue to add new members, some from out-of-state, we have a good possibility of reaching a total of 100 members by the end of this year. Tell your friends and help us increase our membership.

We held our first Directors' meeting in March and one of the more important things which we accomplished was to define the responsibilities of our standing committees. It is our committee members who are the backbone of our organization; they are the people who make things happen and get the work done. All committees, except the Program Committee, are fully staffed and doing a fine job. We are working on the Program Committee and hope to have it staffed in the very near future.

As a group we are all interested in genealogy, yet, we are a group of individuals with different interests and with different objectives. As individuals we have devised our own systems and developed methods which appear to be the best for achieving our particular goals. This diversity provides us with a world of experience from which we can all benefit. There never has been the one best way to do something and, if history is any guide to the future, there never will be. What once appeared to be the ultimate has since been discarded for something better. How you conduct your research, or how you record your genealogy, may be better than any of the methods which have been in use for years. Just because it is different does not mean that it is not better. We need your ideas. Our meetings are your forum and I urge all members to participate fully in the discussions. We can benefit most by helping others, and helping others is the primary purpose of our organization.

To one and all — thanks for the help you have given.

Sincerely,

James T. Martin

SERVICE DEPARTMENT

FINDING YOUR ANCESTORS: This is a weekly article published, since 7 May 1977, by Kenneth H. Thomas, Jr., in the Dixie Living Section of the Sunday Atlanta Journal-Constitution. The primary purpose of this article is to provide information on genealogical and historical sources related to Georgia and Georgia families. Mr. Thomas does not answer queries, nor does he do genealogical research, pertaining to one's specific genealogy. There are eight other Georgia related publications which publish straight out queries from individuals. So, do not write to Mr. Thomas requesting information on one of your long lost ancestors.

Mr. Thomas gives FIRST priority to serious questions concerning Georgia genealogical research sources, research techniques, and Georgia history. He also appreciates news of family reunions, family newsletters, county publications, other books, and articles of interest to genealogists which are considered newsworthy and relate to Georgia and Georgia families. All letters will be published, or answered, but those with a SASE come first. Books will only be mentioned if and when they are published and a copy has been donated either to Mr. Thomas or to the Georgia Department of Archives and History, unless they are reprints of a work already known to be in the Archives, e.g., a county history. All copies donated to Mr. Thomas will be donated in due course to the Archives if they do not already have a copy.

If you need help in locating a source of genealogical information related to Georgia or Georgia families, or if you know of a source which might be of help to others, or if you have discovered an effective technique for conducting research, write to Mr. Thomas, c/o The Atlanta Journal-Constitution, P.O. Box 4689, Atlanta, Georgia 30302.

Mr. Thomas has provided us with the following source information:

1. For Civil War information you should visit or write to the Georgia Department of Archives and History, Civil War Records Section, 330 Capitol Avenue, S.E., Atlanta, Georgia 30334. They have copies of the compiled service records of all Georgia troops, an index to Georgia pensioners and their pensions, and other related records. For similar information from other states you should contact the state archives or state library of that state.

2. Check the newspapers for an obituary of your ancestor or a legal notice related to his estate. The most complete set of Georgia newspapers is at the University of Georgia Library, Athens, Georgia 30602. These are mostly on microfilm and are available on interlibrary loan to Georgia libraries only. A computer list of available issues can be purchased from the library.

3. For out-of-state research you should write or visit the state archives (sometimes known as the state library) in the capitol of the state in question. If you write, they could perhaps send you a list of available publications concerning their holdings or a list of genealogists who work for a fee in researching their state's history.

4. For Georgia birth and death records (kept only since 1919 at the state level) you should write the Vital Records Unit, Georgia Department of Human Resources, Room 217-H, Health Building, 47 Trinity Avenue S.W., Atlanta, Georgia 30334. Some city and county health departments have records that precede the state file, but you would have to write to that county to find out what records they have.

5. Check the U.S. Census on microfilm as well as the various indexes that have been published. The Georgia census is available (on microfilm) at the following locations:

Georgia Department of Archives and History
330 Capitol Avenue S.E.
Atlanta, Georgia 30334
Hours: Monday-Friday 8-4:30, closed on weekends.
Sunday - closed.
NOTE: They have the published indexes for Georgia and some indexes for other states.

Federal Archives and Records Center (branch of National Archives)
1557 St. Joseph Avenue
East Point, Georgia 30344
Hours: Monday-Friday 8-4:30, closed on weekends.
NOTE: They have all published census indexes for the U.S. as well as the census on microfilm for most of the nation, including the 1900 Census and soundex index. Census reels can be ordered from them on interlibrary loan.

University of Georgia Library
Microfilm Room
Athens, Georgia 30601
Hours: Open all day during the academic quarter, varies between quarters
NOTE: They have census and indexes for all Southern states, including the complete 1900 census with soundex.

Public Libraries — many libraries in major cities, (Atlanta, Columbus, Macon) have large microfilm collections. Your own library can acquire the census on interlibrary loan from the Federal Records Center (see address above), or from the Public Library Service, Georgia Department of Education, 156 Trinity Avenue S.W., Atlanta, Georgia 30303. Both of these now have the complete 1900 census with soundex.

GENEALOGY, ANYONE? This is a weekly article published by Floreda Duke Varick and Phyllis Rose Smith, in the Cairo Messenger, Cairo, Georgia. This is an extensive listing which, for example, covered almost half a page in the issue of 27 January 1979. In addition to queries from across the country, the column also lists the names of persons buried in the Whigham Cemetery located in Grady County, Georgia. Application for Membership (Tear-Out)

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE:

During the first six months of this year we have made excellent progress in many areas and our membership continues to grow from week to week. We presently have a total of seventy-two members and there are a few applications outstanding which should be in most any day. We can still reach our goal of 100 members by the end of 1979.

We need to concentrate our efforts on getting more members from the local area, especially from Bibb county, and continue to expand our area by adding members from other counties in central Georgia. Our present members come from ten counties in Georgia and from five states outside Georgia. The following is a breakdown by county in Georgia and by state outside Georgia:

GEORGIA COUNTIES	OTHER STATES
Bibb - 14	Florida - 2
Bleckley - 2	Mississippi - 1
Carroll - 1	South Carolina - 2
Clarke - 1	Texas - 1
DeKalb - 1	Virginia - 1
Dodge - 1
Houston - 41	Total - 7
Laurens - 1
Monroe - 1
Peach - 2
Total - 65

At one of our recent meetings I suggested that our members contribute articles of a professional or scientific nature for publication in our Quarterly. Several members indicated that they would work on articles for future publication. I would like to make this a continuing program and I encourage all members to participate by submitting articles for publication. Articles may be prepared on any subject you choose as long as it pertains to genealogy or a field related to genealogy. This just about covers everything one can think of. We have a world of experience and knowledge within our membership and I am certain that there are many of our members who are capable of preparing excellent articles. If you have something in mind which you would like to submit for publication we would like to know the subject, or tentive subject, and approximately when it will be ready. This does not have to be a positive commitment, but will give us some idea as to what we can plan for. Even though your article may be months from publication we would like to know about it now. When you are ready to submit your article for publication please have it typewritten and double spaced. This will help to eliminate errors during transcription.

June, July and August are usually the months during which most of us take our vacations. These are also the months when the attendance usually falls at meetings of various kinds. Ours has been pretty good during June and July and we hope it will be better in August. Even when we do not have a scheduled program, or an outside speaker, you are missing a lot when you miss one of our regular monthly meetings. Please try to attend every meeting — we miss you when you are not there and we need your participation. Our next meeting will be on 9 August at 7:00 P.M.

Sincerely,

James T. Martin

SERVICE DEPARTMENT

CORRECTION: In the March 1979 issue of our Quarterly, page 13, paragraph 5, under "Georgia Department of Archives and History," we should have shown the Archives to be open on SATURDAY from 9:30 A.M. to 3:30 P.M. When visiting the Archives on Saturday you will have to use the Capitol Avenue entrance and you may have to park in the parking garage, or in the lot adjacent to the Archives.

1. QUERIES PUBLISHED FREE: We have received a letter from Mr. Joel Dixon WELLS, Dixon Family Historian, [redacted] offering to publish, free of charge, queries pertaining to ancestors from the CLAYTON-HENRY-FAYETTE county area. Mr. Wells writes a genealogy column for The Henry-Clayton Sun, and for The Fayette-Southside Sun. He has family ties in Jones and Bibb counties so maybe some of our members will be able to help him with his research in our area. He is presently working on the cemeteries in Fayette County, and advises that Ancestors Unlimited, Inc., 1462 Shangrila Circle, Riverdale, Georgia 30296, has recently published "All Known Cemeteries of Clayton County, Georgia," price $12.50

2. QUERIES PUBLISHED FREE: Mr. LaViece Smallwood, columnist, The Florida Times-Union/Jacksonville Journal, Box 1949-F, Jacksonville, Florida 32231, publishes a column on genealogy titled OUT ON A LIMB. This column appears in the Sunday edition and Mr. Smallwood publishes queries without charge on a space available basis. He also answers many queries in his column so that you have the question and the answer published at the same time. He enclosed a photocopy of his column which shows that he receives queries from across the country and is not limited to the Southeast. Send questions about your family history to him at the above address. Always inclose a stamped self-addressed No. 10 envelope for your reply.

QUERIES FROM MEMBERS

The Board of Directors have approved the publication of queries from members only, without charge and depending upon space availability, in the Society's monthly NEWSLETTER and in the QUARTERLY. Members are not limited as to the number of queries which they may submit for publication, however, not more than three queries may be submitted by a member at one time. All queries for publication should be prepared according to the following guidelines and mailed to the Editor:

Mr. Milton C. Sledge
Chairman, Publications Committee
[redacted]

1. All queries for publication must be submitted in writing. They should be type-written, or hand printed, and double spaced on separate sheets of paper. Items which are written in "longhand" are often difficult to decipher and may result in errors during transcription. If you do put more than one query on a page be sure that you clearly identify each query, and under no circumstances continue a query from one page to the next.

2. Each query should confine itself to a single family line and it should be written in a concise manner with sufficient details to enable anyone to understand what information is needed.

3. The member's name and mailing address, with the county of residence shown in brackets after the Zip Code, must be shown for each query submitted for publication. The member's name should be shown in a manner conducive to eliciting a prompt reply to the query. The conventional "Mr." "Mrs." and "Miss" should be used. Honorary or professional titles should be avoided as well as use of the ambiguous "M" "Ms." Names are always preferred over initials.

The Editor reserves the right to "edit" any queries received for publication or to return the query to the initiator for corrective action. His editing will usually consist of deletion of superfluous wording in the query.

Queries received for publication will be processed on a first come basis and the postmark date on the envelope will be used to determine priority of receipt.

MEMBERS' RESEARCH DIRECTORY

This is a directory of our members and the family names they are researching. The Directory consists of two parts, which are:

1. An alphabetical listing of the family names being researched, with cross-reference to members conducting the research; and

2. An alphabetical listing of the members conducting research; family names being researched, and a two-letter state abbreviation to identify the area of research. Foreign countries are spelled out.

A reference number, starting with 101, is assigned to each member in this Directory. These numbers are used to cross-reference family names, shown in the listing of family names, to the member conducting the research. For example: In the alphabetical listing of family names we find "EVANS-101," and in the alphabetical listing of members we find reference number "101" assigned to "ARMSTRONG, Miss Jane Victoria." After her name and address we see that she is researching "EVANS(NC);" i.e., the Evans family of North Carolina.

The primary purpose for publishing this Directory is to help our members in their research by promoting an exchange of information between members. When asking for information, whether it be from one of our members or from a non-member, there are a few simple rules which must be observed if you expect to get help. These are:

1. Be as specific as possible in the information you are asking for; always give a person's complete name, dates, places, etc., when known.

2. Seek information on an item-by-item basis; never, never "what do you have on the Jones family?" A request of this type does not deserve an answer!

3. Always send a Self-Addressed-Stamped-Envelope (SASE) with your request.

4. If you are asking for photocopies, or other items which will result in an expense, always enclose your check to cover the estimated cost and let the person know that you will be glad to pay any expense over what you have enclosed.

5. Last, but not least, let the person know you received the material and let them know that you appreciate their efforts in providing the information.

QUERIES FROM MEMBERS

BISHOP: James BISHOP, born about 1821, Alabama, married about 1841 Mary _____(?). Daughter Ann Elizabeth, born 13 January 1842, Alabama, married 23 April 1863 in Clark County, Alabama to Joel Mason Miller RIVERS, born 20 January 1836. Daughter Amanda M. born about 1848, Alabama, married in Clarke County, Alabama to John S. TUCKER on 21 January 1868. Other children, all born Alabama; John about 1845; Martha about 1846 and Edward about 1849. Who were the parents of James BISHOP and what was his wife's name? Would like to exchange information. James W. Turnipseed, Jr., [redacted]

CHRISTIAN: Elijah L. CHRISTIAN. Need parents of, and brothers and sisters. Family and archival records show Elijah L. was born Elbert Co., ca 1794, m. (1) Rebecca Coleman, 16 January 1821; (2) Mary J. Fitts, 9 April 1832. Issue of (1) m.: Daniel Ragsdale Christian, b. 11 November 1821; Jesse Turner Christian, b. 15 November 1823; John Willis Christian, b. 7 December 1825. Elijah L. believed to have d. ca. 1844. Daniel Ragsdale Christian was my great-grandfather. Need also descendants of his brothers. Miss Portia Christian, [redacted]

JANICE SMITH needs help on getting information on great-grandfather Richard Harwood who is reported to have been related to member of British Parliament (family belief). I have checked Book Members of Parliament and there are several members listed as Earl or Duke of Harewood but the sir name is LesCellas. Also checked about 20 books by Burke and others in Washington Memorial Library. No Genealogical information connecting Har(e)wood and LesCellas families. From 1850 Census, I find Richard Harwood was born in 1795(ca) and was from London. I have not been able to find out if this means he was born in London, lived there or what. According to History of Bedford, Fulton ect counties, Pennsylvania, I find he was a school teacher and I have marriage certificate connecting him to my line. All answers greatly appreciated and will be glad to exchange information on this or allied lines. Janice F. Smith, [redacted]

HOW DID THE TURNIPSEED FAMILY GET ITS NAME?

There are several versions as to how the name TURNIPSEED originated. If you will draw your chairs close, I will tell you the ones I know.

Our branch of the family came from Turbenthal, Switzerland, in the Canton of Zurich, a German speaking area. There they were known as REBSAMEN, also spelled REAPSAMEN, RIPSAMEN, and REPSIMANN; and possibly some other ways also. Beat and Hans REBSAMEN emigrated to the British Colony of South Carolina in 1750.

In the "Southern Christian Advocate" of 14 May 1931, the Rev. Dr. Claude C. Leitner implies the name was changed as a result of the Wieber Hersey. A Wieber Hersey was recorded in several different books and even in the newspaper. It occurred about 1756-1761 and in one account the leaders fell into trances, sanctioned nudity and marital confusion, with the cult spreading to other areas of the state and to North Carolina, Virginia, and Maryland. According to Dr. Leitner, the religious leaders in the Saxe Gotha Church, Wieber, Schmidt and Rebsamen, had misappropriated the title of Father, Son and Holy Ghost - and had actually done to death the person representing the devil. After a trial in Charleston, Wieber was hanged. Schmidt and Rebsamen and certain others of these persecuted families moved across the Broad River and settled in the Cedar Creek neighborhood - where Schmidt became Smith and Rebsamen was Turnipseed.

That is an interesting story. The only thing wrong with it is the newspaper article, while not naming all parties involved, doesn't name the same people that Dr. Leitner does. "The South Carolina Gazette," Saturday, 18 April - Saturday, 25 April 1761, stated seven were indicted and tried, and four convicted, viz Jacob WIEBER, John GEIGER, Jacob BOURGHART, and Hannah WIEBER. On the 17th instant, Jacob WIEBER was hanged. In the 18 May 1761 issue of the newspaper, the other three were admitted to bail, "till his majesty's pleasure touching the sentence passed upon them shall be known."

I think the most amusing story was the one told me by Mrs. Middlebrooks at the Washington Memorial Library in Macon, Georgia. When she was a young girl in Wachula, Florida, they had a Methodist minister named TURNIPSEED. This preacher had the family coming from England. Back in the early days of our country the people here were writing back to the old country and telling their relatives and friends about it and always asking them to bring seed to be planted. On this English ship there was a man that always carried a bag around with him. He even used it to sit on. It was evident that he considered it valuable and was trying to keep it safe. Finally, just before they landed someone asked him what he had in the bag. He replied, "Turnipseed." So they started calling him Mr. Turnipseed and even after they landed whenever he was seen he was called Mr. Turnipseed.

The collection of the late Leonardo Andrea of Columbia, South Carolina, tells yet another story. This I believe is the true story of how the TURNIPSEED family got its name. Back around 1946, Andrea, a professional genealogist, was hired to research the TURNIPSEED family. All of the following comes from his files. "The family of TURNIPSEED first appears in the records of South Carolina about 1750 as REABENSAMEN or REAPSAME. Sometime during the Revolution when the English clerks would write the name as TURNIPSEED, the men seemingly indignately would strike thru the English spelling and rewrite it as REAPSAMEN. When Jacob TURNIPSEED filed for Revolution service, the claim was made out to Jacob TURNIPSEED. It was signed HIS X MARK, but when the pay ident was collected, he signed the receipt as Jacob REIBENSAMEN in a beautiful German script. The claim for Pott TURNIPSEED was signed Beat REIBENSAMEN with a line drawn through TURNIPSEED and REIBENSAMEN written underneath it. John TURNIPSEED signed his claim Hans REIBENSAMEN in one of the prettiest German script signatures as I have ever seen."

Andrea also wrote, "Since TURNIPSEED was still spelled as REIBENSAMEN as late as 1800, the 1790 Census might show some with that spelling, but God only would know how those more or less unlettered Census takers would spell a name such as REIBENSAMEN when they butchered up the spelling of more or less simple English names beyond compare."

Family tradition says that the name REBSAMEN, which in German means TURNIPSEED, was first translated into English by Jacob's superior officer in the Revolutionary Army.

Elsdon C. Smith in "American Surnames" says one type of name change favored by immigrants to America is translation, as when German RUEBSAMEN translates to TURNIPSEED.

LINEAGE CHARTS

The following lineage charts were submitted by our member:

Mrs. Henrietta Minor CLICK

Seven generations of descent are shown for the MINOR line, and less for other lines. Not all of the data shown on the charts is proven. Perhaps you may find a tie-in to some of the families shown in these charts, or you may have some information which will help Mrs. Click to add to the information she already has. This is a good start on our lineage charts and we encourage our members to submit charts on their family lines.

THE LAST LEAF

I saw him once before,
As he passed by the door,
And again
The pavement stones resound,
As he totters o'er the ground
With his cane.

They say that in his prime,
Ere the pruning knife of Time
Cut him down,
Not a better man was found
By the Crier on his round
Through the town.

But now he walks the streets,
And he looks at all he meets
Sad and wan.
And he shakes his feeble head,
That it seems as if he said,
"They are gone."

(Three verses from the poem "The Last Leaf", by Oliver Wendell Holmes. Am I "The Last Leaf? -- see below:)

In the early, "good old days" of our neighborhood, across the street on the corner of Northview and Downing, lived Mr. and Mrs. McNeely and their family. Mr. and Mrs. McNeely have passed on - "they are gone." Leona Mae, Leisa, Eva Jean, Ricky, and Tony are still there.

Across from them, on the corner of Northview and Downing, lived Mr. and Mrs. Smith. Both are now gone, and the home is occupied by Mrs. Smith's sister, Mrs. Hilda Miller.

Next was the Ray Stevens - but they moved away a long time ago and the house was bought by the Earl Waynes. Earl Wayne is gone - died of a heart attack two or three years ago. Mrs. Wayne lives in the house alone.

Then there was E. W. (Judge) and Annie Stennett. They adopted a daughter, Anita, who, after her marriage was burned to death in a fire. Annie passed on some time after that, and about three weeks ago Judge died in his sleep. He was two months older than me. The house is vacant now, but a brother, Chancery Judge J. C. Stennett and his wife are looking after it at present.

Next the Trims, Bob, Lou, and Judy. Bob died of a heart attack two or three years ago in Rome, while they were on the way home from the Holy Land, on a tour trip. Judy married a doctor and they live in Columbus, MS. They have two children. Lou lives alone in the home.

Us - we're still here, but our brood has scattered, mostly, and left us alone.

Next came the Sheltons. Yank (E. L.) had a stroke and died a few years back. The two boys, both lawyers, are married and gone. One on the Gulf Coast and the other in Florida. Rachel lives alone in the home.

Then Miss. Webster and Miss. Hight. Both are gone now. Miss. Webster went first, and Miss. Hight, in her senility, left the house to a man who befriended her. He is dead now also, and his wife is renting the house to a young couple.

Next was the Browns, but they moved away a long time ago, and the place was bought by a Mrs. Austin, who lived there until she had to go into a nursing home, where she died, and that place was bought by a young couple.

Then there was Mr. and Mrs. McCammon - Mr. McCammon died a number of years ago, and Mrs. McCammon lived in the home until she became senile and had to go into a nursing home, where she died a couple of years ago. Her place was sold.

Across the street, then, was Tom and Mary Hendrix, their home facing Dunbar Street. Tom was a lawyer and Mary ran the Jackson Retail Credit Bureau. Tom had a stroke and died several years back. Mary Hendrix is at home now after a serious operation and a long stay in the hospital, and still in more or less critical condition. She has to have a round-the-clock nurse.

So, of all of the men of the old neighborhood, where are they? Messrs. McNeely, Smith, Wayne, Stennett, Trim, Shelton, McCammon, and Hendrix?

They are gone! Truly, I am "The Last Leaf."

M. J. Miller

COMMENTS ON COPYRIGHTS

by James T. Martin*

On 1 January 1978, a new copyright law became effective, superseding the copyright act of 1909. The new law provides many improvements and simplified filing procedures with easy-to-use application forms. As a genealogist you will have spent several years in compiling your genealogical material and a copyright will afford protection for the work you have done. If you plan to publish your work, even a limited publication, you should consider getting a copyright.

The new law provides for only five classes of copyrights, vs fifteen under the old law, and you can now obtain copyrights on unpublished material. Under the old law you had to publish before you could obtain a copyright, a requirement which prohibited many authors, especially genealogists, from obtaining a copyright. The registration fee of $10.00 is up a little, but still very reasonable, and the renewal fee is now $6.00.

Under the new law the basic copyright term has been increased to the life of the author and fifty years after the author's death. Copyrights granted before the new law became effective must still be renewed to receive the full new term of 75 years, but copyrights in their second term between 31 December 1976 and 31 December 1977, were automatically extended up to the maximum of 75 years without the need for further renewal.

The new classification system consists of the following five classes of registration:

1. Class TX: Nondramatic Literary Works.

This category is very broad. Except for dramatic works and certain kinds of audiovisual works, Class TX includes all types of published and unpublished works written in words (or other verbal or numerical symbols). A few of the many examples of "nondramatic literary works" include: fiction, nonfiction, poetry, periodicals, textbooks, reference works, directories, catalogs, advertising copy, and compilations of information. Genealogical-Historical records would come under Class TX.

2. Class PA: Works of the Performing Arts.

This category includes published and unpublished works prepared for the purpose of being "performed" directly before an audience or indirectly "by means of any device or process."

3. Class VA: Works of the Visual Arts.

This category consists of published and unpublished "pictorial, graphic, and sculptural works,: including two-dimensional and three-dimensional works of fine, graphic and applied art, photographs, prints and art reproductions, maps, globes, charts, technical drawings, diagrams, and models.

4. Class SR: Sound Recordings.

This category is appropriate for registration for both published and unpublished works in two situations: (1) where the copyright claim is limited to the sound recording itself; and (2) where the same copyright claimant is seeking to register not only the sound recording but also the musical, dramatic, or literary work embodied in the sound recording.

5. Class RE: Renewal Registration.

This category covers renewal registration for copyrights that were already in their first term on 1 January 1978 (that is, renewals for works originally copyrighted between 1 January 1950 and 31 December 1977). Class RE is appropriate for all renewal registrations, regardless of the class in which the original registration was made.

The above information was obtained from publications of the Copyright Office, Library of Congress, Washington, D. C. 20559. You can obtain a supply of application forms free of charge by sending a specific request to the above address. The following is a list of publications which you may wish to receive:

Form TX: Application for Copyright Registration.

Circular R1c: New Classification System for Copyright Registrations.
Circular R1d: New Copyright Registration Procedures.
Circular R4: Copyright Fees Effective January 1, 1978.
Circular R63: Reproductions of Copyrighted Works for Blind and Physically Handicapped Individuals.
Circular R99: Highlights of the New Copyright Law.

GRANDAD WAS A BUSH BOY

VADA HEMBA PHILLIPS*

INTRODUCTION: The following article by Vada Hemba Phillips is a story of a little boy, Vada's Great Grandfather, who lost his Mother and Father during the Civil War and became separated from his little brother -- never to know a member of his family again.

This article is written for the purpose of telling how I, Vada H. Phillips, and Alton W. Hemba, learned about our great grandfather. Our Fathers were brothers, and we were born before the great depression of 1929. I lived in a medium sized town, while Alton lived about thirty miles South in a very small community. During the depression years, thirty miles was similar to five hundred miles today; therefore, we did not see our relatives very often.

I was a child with no grandmother and only one grandfather to create memories. Both grandmothers were deceased before I was born, and one of my grandfathers died two years before my birth. Grandmother Rayborn died when my Mother was only ten years old, and Grandmother Hemba died about three years prior to my birth.

My search began one day when an aunt (by marriage) asked me if I would like to become a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution. After a few questions concerning what one needs for membership, I replied, "Sure, I'll just go over to Lamar County, shake the bushes, and the Rayborns will tumble out." Needless to say, this was not true. I was most frustrated to find that my prominent grandfather, "THE JUDGE," was little known, and had not been reared in that county. WHY? The word JUDGE was plainly printed on his grave marker at Caney Baptist Church in Baxterville. I even had a picture of the stone! I did find some of his docket books in the courthouse and later found deeds and other information including his first Oath of Office as Justice of the Peace in 1880.

At this time, I knew the following facts about my ancestors. Grandfather Mark and Grandmother Elizabeth Rester Rayborn, and Grandfather John and Grandmother Nora Miller Hemba were the only grandparents I was sure of. My Mom had not known her grandparents and had thought that one of her grandfathers was named Jeff and the other William. (I found this to be untrue.) There were also a number of aunts, uncles, and first cousins. I was also aware that my parents had some uncles and first cousins, but I never really knew any of them personally.

I should like to say that after two and one-half years of diligent search, I am now familiar with my grandparents by the following names: three grandfather Mark Rayborns, Rester, Hatten, Denmark, Goldman, Watts, Wiggins, Miller, Hudson, Johnson, Mingersdorff, Moye, and Johnston, I know most of the first names of these distant ancestors, and in many instances I am aware of their children, places of residence, religious beliefs, the country from which many of them came, and some of the reasons for their appearance here.

Some were German, Scots, Irish, English, Danish, French, and even some Indian. But this story is going to be about my Hemba-Hemby family. I should like to say, here, that Alton W. Hemba is responsible for most of the research done on our great-grandfather Hemby. I acted as supporter, helper, questioner, and library researcher. Alton was the letter writer because, with his legal training, he seemed to know exactly how to ask the questions in order to get the proper answers. From this point, I will refer to Alton and me as we. Alton had been working on the puzzle for some time before I was contacted for assistance.

THE STORY: We grew up hearing the story of a sad little boy who had lost his father and mother during the Civil War. He was also separated from his little brother and never knew a member of his family again. Here is how the story goes: Grandad and his family were living in (he thought) Talahassee, Florida, on a large plantation that was bordered by a huge lake. His last memory of his father was the day his father left for the war. His father was on a horse, picked up Grandad, hugged and kissed him, and said, "Be a good boy." Then he rode away and was never seen again. The family received a report that he had been killed in battle (Grandad thought in Maryland). Their mother became ill and died, and Grandad and his little brother were left in the care of an uncle Noah, whom they did not like. One day while gathering wood with a cart, they decided to run away; so they walked from Talahassee to Alabama. At some point in their journey, they decided to part so that they could obtain food and shelter more easily. They were at a fork in the road, and Grandad went to the left and his brother went to the right. Grandad thought that his brother went to Texas, but he forgot what his brother's name was and was never able to find him after they were grown. Grandad did not even remember his parents' names. Grandad came to a family in Evergreen, Alabama, that took him in and finished raising him. He eventually grew up and married one of the girls. Two families by the name of Hudson and Miller were neighbors, and it is not known for certain which family raised him, but he married one of the Miller girls. The families, along with John Hemby, moved to Neshoba County, Mississippi, about 1865; then they moved to Marion County about 1885.

It was with this meager information that we set out to learn who our grandfather was and something of his parents. The following sources furnished information with which we have pieced together a wonderful and sad story: U. S. Census Records; National Archives, Washington, D. C.; Offices of the Circuit Clerk, Wakulla County, Florida; Division of Archives, The Capitol, Tallahassee, Florida; Florida Adjutant General, St. Augustine, Florida; Records of Florida's Home for Confederate Soldiers, held by the Florida Collection; Haydon Burns Library, Jacksonville, Florida; The Old City Cemetery, Jacksonville, Florida; Marion County Mississippi Enumeration of Educable Children; Decatur, Mississippi, Courthouse; The Hattiesburg Library; University of Southern Mississippi Library; and relatives.

GREAT GRANDFATHER HEMBY. The first step in our search was a thorough investigation of Census films to determine the residence of the Hemby family in Florida. It was discovered that there were very few Hemby families in the United States, and most of them were from Georgia and North Carolina. We also found that there were several different spellings for the name, which included Henby, Hamby, Hembree, and Hemby. A search of the 1860 Census for the state of Florida revealed one family by the name of Hemby. James T. Hemby and his family were living in Wakulla County, town of Newport (about 30 miles south of Talahassee). James T. Hemby listed his age as 28 and stated that he was born in Georgia. His wife, Mary A. Hemby, was also 28 years old and also stated that she was born in Georgia. James T. and Mary A. listed the following children: Frances C. Hemby, aged 11; Ann E. Hemby, aged 9; Emma F. Hemby, aged 7; John W. Hemby, aged 5; Theodore Hemby, aged 3; and Theodoria Hemby, aged 7 months. Frances and Ann were both born in Georgia, while Emma, John, Theodore, and Theodoria were born in Florida. These birth dates and places of birth were an indication that the family moved from Georgia to Florida about 1852-3. Was this our family? A search of the deeds for Leon and Wakulla Counties did not reveal any land ownership, but could a small boy of five know about ownership of land on which he lived? There is a small pond near Newport. Could this have been the big lake? To a small boy it could have been. One other strange thing was found on the 1860 Census of Leon County. The family of John S. Hart and his wife, Mary, reported John W. Hemby, aged 5, and Theodore Hemby, aged 3, as being in their household. Both of the Harts were born in Georgia. The relationship between these families is still uncertain, but we have concluded that the two boys were visiting in the Hart household and that the Harts were perhaps close relatives. I tend to think that they were grandparents of the boys, but have not been able to prove this fact yet.

On July 2, 1853, James Hemby appeared before a judge at Newport and gave an Affidavit to establish a debt owed him by one Nathaniel White. This affidavit is recorded in the Public Records Office of the Circuit Clerk, Wakulla County, Florida.

The two previous facts (the census report and the affidavit) now placed the Hemby family in Wakulla County, Florida, between 1851 and 1853. A child was born in 1851 in Georgia, and the next child was born in 1853 in Florida. A debt was also made during the year 1853.

The next step in our search was to determine if this James T. Hemby was the grandparent who went away to the Civil War. A letter to the National Archives in Washington, D. C. netted us the following information: Pay vouchers showed that James T. Hemby was in the service and that he entered the service at Talahassee, Florida, in 1862; he enlisted for a three-year period in Company C of the 5th Florida Infantry and was sworn in by Captain Bloxham; it was also stated that James T. Hemby deserted the Confederacy at Sharpsburg, Maryland, in 1865 after serving three years. Although we could not blame him for deserting after his three year period was up, we were disappointed with the information. Other information that was obtained from Washington included the fact that James T. Hemby was the only Hemby person to serve from Florida. We were referred to the Florida State of Florida for further information concerning the status. We were intrigued by the statement that James T. Hemby deserted in the state of Maryland because Grandfather had always said that his father was killed in the state of Maryland.

Spurred on by these slight details, we contacted the State of Florida. After numerous correspondence with the Department of State Archives Supervisor at Talahassee, we received copies of two pension applications that had been submitted by James T. Hemby. We were referred to the Service Records of Confederate Soldiers who Served in Organizations From the State of Florida; The Jacksonville, Florida, Historical Society; The Old Soldiers Home in Jacksonville; the Park Superintendent of the City of Jacksonville, a death notice in the Jacksonville Newspaper; and to information from records of the Old City Cemetery.

From all of the above correspondence and personal visits, we were able to ascertain that James T. Hemby was our own great-grandfather. We also established the fact that he did not desert the Confederacy and that he was discharged from the service and returned to Florida. He died in 1914 in Jacksonville. After learning of his death and burial site, Alton journeyed to Jacksonville and viewed the grave site that has a Confederate marker with his name, birth date, death date, and his company of service engraved on it.

OUR TRAGIC STORY UNFOLDS. From the information that has been gathered from various documents, we have pieced together the following story about James T. Hemby, our great-grandfather.

James T. Hemby was born on July 22, 1823, in Washington County, Georgia. He died March 28, 1914 in Jacksonville, Florida at the age of 91. He married a girl named Mary and became the parent of three daughters before leaving the state of Georgia to settle near Talahassee, Florida, in a small community called Newport. He moved to Florida between 1851 and 1853, where he lived until his entry into the service of the 5th Florida Infantry on March 1, 1862. He enlisted at Camp Leon in Talahassee, Florida, and was sworn in by Captain William D. Bloxham for a period of three years. He was assigned to Company C, 5th Florida Infantry. He was sent to the hospital at Fredericksburg, Virginia, on November 7, 1862, for thirty days. He was wounded in the knee and had a broken arm. His wounds required surgery, and his surgeon was P. George Peachy. After his stay in the hospital, he was detailed to other units, but was still a member of the 5th Florida Infantry. In April, 1863, he was in the Quartermaster Department. In October, 1863, he was detailed to Regiment 2, M. Department and then transferred to Company C, 2nd Florida Cavalry on July 31, 1863. He served in the Brigade Pioneer Corp from June of 1864 until August 31, 1864, when he was sent back to his own unit. Another report states that James T. Hemby was shot at Sharpsburg, Maryland, disabled, and discharged (He was not discharged, but returned to his unit). We believe that this wound was to the right hip, which continued to give him trouble the rest of his life. He was evidently wounded twice during the time of his enlistment.

When the state of Virginia surrendered at the end of the war, James T. Hemby was detailed as a wagon driver and was with his captain driving beef. Since they were out in the wilderness, they were not aware that the war had ended. Hence, the charge of desertion came about. When he and Captain Briscoe returned to Weldon, North Carolina, they were discharged from the service on April 15, 1865.

Upon his discharge from the service, Hemby made his way back to his home in Florida, but when he arrived there, he did not find his family as he had left them. We do not know whether he found any of his children, but we do know he did not find his wife and two sons. One daughter was still in Florida when the 1870 Census was taken. She married Christopher Gray on March 17, 1870. It is hoped that Hemby did find her and was able to enjoy a father-daughter relationship with her.

In 1901, James T. Hemby submitted his first application for a pension from Tarpon Springs, Florida, in Pasco County. His doctor, A. P. Albaugh, stated that he had known Hemby since 1890, a fact which indicates that Hemby went to Tarpon Springs after he returned to Florida. We have no record of him between 1870 and 1890. He entered the Old Soldiers Home at Jacksonville, Florida, between 1900 and 1901 because he is listed on the 1900 Census Records as being a resident of the home. His second pension application of 1909 indicates his residence as the Old Soldiers Home. The attending physician for his second pension application states that Hemby had a dislocated hip from an old injury. He also mentioned Hemby had been injured by a minnie ball while he was on duty. James T. Hemby drew a pension for his service from early 1902 until the time of his death in 1914.

It is heartbreaking to think of the old gentleman's living in the Old Soldiers Home alone, not knowing that he had grandchildren and even great-grandchildren. My own father had been married a whole year by the time James T. Hemby died. My father never knew that he had a grandfather living. Granddad went to Florida in the early 1900's and tried to find some trace of relatives, but was unable to do so. He also went to Texas in search of his lost brother, but was never able to find a trace of him. We realize that our grandfather must have been a lonely little boy as he grew up, because he thought that both of his parents were dead. We also think of the sad and lonely man who came home from the war to find nothing of his family.

We have not finished piecing together all the pieces of our puzzle. We still do not know who the parents of James T. Hemby were, nor do we know how and where he lived between the years 1870 and 1890. We shall continue to search for these lost links to our past and our cherished heritage.

Children caught-up in the press of the Civil War were called "Bush Boy." Sometimes they were ahead of the Army, but more often, along with it or behind the last of the wounded.

Highway 231 comes North into Alabama from Florida. John James MILLER and his wife Mary Jane "Polly" HUDSON, lived at Rockey Head in Coffee County on this highway. Their children were: Mary Louisa born in Alabama, 1857 (my Grandmother); Daniel J.W. born in Alabama, 1869; and Manora Eldora born in Alabama, 1861 (wife of John HEMBY born in Florida).

Alford HUDSON and his wife Jan JOHNSON lived in Coffee and Conecuh County, Alabama. They were the parents of Polly MILLER. (They had 13 children).

Some of the MILLER and HUDSON family lived near Mt. Union, 14 miles from Evergreen, Alabama, William MILLER and Jane JOHNSON. Both families came from Wilmington, N. C., area. They began their journey in 1833.

I remember John HEMBY well! We lived at Oloh, Mississippi during World War I. My Father worked at Camp Shelby (Hattiesburg, Miss). My Mother, Mary Viola Rutledge WHITE often visited her Aunt "Nora" HEMBY and Uncle John. We traveled by horse and buggy. Their home was on Marion-Lamar County line (on road to Columbia from Sumrall). Uncle John was a Methodist minister. He was educated by his wife and self-educated, too. He often preached at Advance Church, nearby. He was kind and gentle. Spent a lot of time with children who visited in their home. We all loved to go there. He was a farmer. Most of their children were married by 1920.

We visited Grandmother in 1922 and again in 1923, when my Mother died. This was another time I spent with Uncle John and Aunt Nora. She was so tiny. Most of the time, one could find her in the kitchen. He was often on the big "L" porch. The house had a picket fence with roses, holly-hocks, poppies, violets, honeysuckel on the fence. In the yard near the kitchen, was a tall Mullberry tree (which we loved to climb). On the porch was benches and rockers. A rail was all around it. A parrott named "Polly" was always there to greet us.

By 1925, the HEMBY family found a new home in the south of Lamar County and my Uncle Bishop L. RUTLEDGE and his family moved into their home at Advance.

While we were living in New Orleans, Louisiana, my Father and I visited them (Uncle John and Aunt Nora) in their home near Lumberton, Miss. Several of the children lived nearby, with their families. He was so glad to see us. He died soon after our visit. I saw Aunt Nora one more time while on a visit to Hattiesburg, Miss.

I wish Vada could have known these dear people. She has inherited their stamina. She is a school teacher. Alton HEMBY is a retired attorney. He knew his grandparents. I have helped them with their research.

GRANDAD WAS A BUSH BOY

VADA HEMBA PHILLIPS*

INTRODUCTION: The following article by Vada Hemba Phillips is a story of a little boy, Vada's Great Grandfather, who lost his Mother and Father during the Civil War and became separated from his little brother -- never to know a member of his family again.

This article is written for the purpose of telling how I, Vada H. Phillips, and Alton W. Hemba, learned about our great grandfather. Our Fathers were brothers, and we were born before the great depression of 1929. I lived in a medium sized town, while Alton lived about thirty miles South in a very small community. During the depression years, thirty miles was similar to five hundred miles today; therefore, we did not see our relatives very often.

I was a child with no grandmother and only one grandfather to create memories. Both grandmothers were deceased before I was born, and one of my grandfathers died two years before my birth. Grandmother Rayborn died when my Mother was only ten years old, and Grandmother Hemba died about three years prior to my birth.

My search began one day when an aunt (by marriage) asked me if I would like to become a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution. After a few questions concerning what one needs for membership, I replied, "Sure, I'll just go over to Lamar County, shake the bushes, and the Rayborns will tumble out." Needless to say, this was not true. I was most frustrated to find that my prominent grandfather, "THE JUDGE," was little known, and had not been reared in that county. WHY? The word JUDGE was plainly printed on his grave marker at Caney Baptist Church in Baxterville. I even had a picture of the stone! I did find some of his docket books in the courthouse and later found deeds and other information including his first Oath of Office as Justice of the Peace in 1880.

At this time, I knew the following facts about my ancestors. Grandfather Mark and Grandmother Elizabeth Rester Rayborn, and Grandfather John and Grandmother Nora Miller Hemba were the only grandparents I was sure of. My Mom had not known her grandparents and had thought that one of her grandfathers was named Jeff and the other William. (I found this to be untrue.) There were also a number of aunts, uncles, and first cousins. I was also aware that my parents had some uncles and first cousins, but I never really knew any of them personally.

I should like to say that after two and one-half years of diligent search, I am now familiar with my grandparents by the following names: three grandfather Mark Rayborns, Rester, Hatten, Denmark, Goldman, Watts, Wiggins, Miller, Hudson, Johnson, Mingersdorff, Moye, and Johnston, I know most of the first names of these distant ancestors, and in many instances I am aware of their children, places of residence, religious beliefs, the country from which many of them came, and some of the reasons for their appearance here.

Some were German, Scots, Irish, English, Danish, French, and even some Indian. But this story is going to be about my Hemba-Hemby family. I should like to say, here, that Alton W. Hemba is responsible for most of the research done on our great-grandfather Hemby. I acted as supporter, helper, questioner, and library researcher. Alton was the letter writer because, with his legal training, he seemed to know exactly how to ask the questions in order to get the proper answers. From this point, I will refer to Alton and me as we. Alton had been working on the puzzle for some time before I was contacted for assistance.

THE STORY: We grew up hearing the story of a sad little boy who had lost his father and mother during the Civil War. He was also separated from his little brother and never knew a member of his family again. Here is how the story goes: Grandad and his family were living in (he thought) Talahassee, Florida, on a large plantation that was bordered by a huge lake. His last memory of his father was the day his father left for the war. His father was on a horse, picked up Grandad, hugged and kissed him, and said, "Be a good boy." Then he rode away and was never seen again. The family received a report that he had been killed in battle (Grandad thought in Maryland). Their mother became ill and died, and Grandad and his little brother were left in the care of an uncle Noah, whom they did not like. One day while gathering wood with a cart, they decided to run away; so they walked from Talahassee to Alabama. At some point in their journey, they decided to part so that they could obtain food and shelter more easily. They were at a fork in the road, and Grandad went to the left and his brother went to the right. Grandad thought that his brother went to Texas, but he forgot what his brother's name was and was never able to find him after they were grown. Grandad did not even remember his parents' names. Grandad came to a family in Evergreen, Alabama, that took him in and finished raising him. He eventually grew up and married one of the girls. Two families by the name of Hudson and Miller were neighbors, and it is not known for certain which family raised him, but he married one of the Miller girls. The families, along with John Hemby, moved to Neshoba County, Mississippi, about 1865; then they moved to Marion County about 1885.

It was with this meager information that we set out to learn who our grandfather was and something of his parents. The following sources furnished information with which we have pieced together a wonderful and sad story: U. S. Census Records; National Archives, Washington, D. C.; Offices of the Circuit Clerk, Wakulla County, Florida; Division of Archives, The Capitol, Tallahassee, Florida; Florida Adjutant General, St. Augustine, Florida; Records of Florida's Home for Confederate Soldiers, held by the Florida Collection; Haydon Burns Library, Jacksonville, Florida; The Old City Cemetery, Jacksonville, Florida; Marion County Mississippi Enumeration of Educable Children; Decatur, Mississippi, Courthouse; The Hattiesburg Library; University of Southern Mississippi Library; and relatives.

GREAT GRANDFATHER HEMBY. The first step in our search was a thorough investigation of Census films to determine the residence of the Hemby family in Florida. It was discovered that there were very few Hemby families in the United States, and most of them were from Georgia and North Carolina. We also found that there were several different spellings for the name, which included Henby, Hamby, Hembree, and Hemby. A search of the 1860 Census for the state of Florida revealed one family by the name of Hemby. James T. Hemby and his family were living in Wakulla County, town of Newport (about 30 miles south of Talahassee). James T. Hemby listed his age as 28 and stated that he was born in Georgia. His wife, Mary A. Hemby, was also 28 years old and also stated that she was born in Georgia. James T. and Mary A. listed the following children: Frances C. Hemby, aged 11; Ann E. Hemby, aged 9; Emma F. Hemby, aged 7; John W. Hemby, aged 5; Theodore Hemby, aged 3; and Theodoria Hemby, aged 7 months. Frances and Ann were both born in Georgia, while Emma, John, Theodore, and Theodoria were born in Florida. These birth dates and places of birth were an indication that the family moved from Georgia to Florida about 1852-3. Was this our family? A search of the deeds for Leon and Wakulla Counties did not reveal any land ownership, but could a small boy of five know about ownership of land on which he lived? There is a small pond near Newport. Could this have been the big lake? To a small boy it could have been. One other strange thing was found on the 1860 Census of Leon County. The family of John S. Hart and his wife, Mary, reported John W. Hemby, aged 5, and Theodore Hemby, aged 3, as being in their household. Both of the Harts were born in Georgia. The relationship between these families is still uncertain, but we have concluded that the two boys were visiting in the Hart household and that the Harts were perhaps close relatives. I tend to think that they were grandparents of the boys, but have not been able to prove this fact yet.

On July 2, 1853, James Hemby appeared before a judge at Newport and gave an Affidavit to establish a debt owed him by one Nathaniel White. This affidavit is recorded in the Public Records Office of the Circuit Clerk, Wakulla County, Florida.

The two previous facts (the census report and the affidavit) now placed the Hemby family in Wakulla County, Florida, between 1851 and 1853. A child was born in 1851 in Georgia, and the next child was born in 1853 in Florida. A debt was also made during the year 1853.

The next step in our search was to determine if this James T. Hemby was the grandparent who went away to the Civil War. A letter to the National Archives in Washington, D. C. netted us the following information: Pay vouchers showed that James T. Hemby was in the service and that he entered the service at Talahassee, Florida, in 1862; he enlisted for a three-year period in Company C of the 5th Florida Infantry and was sworn in by Captain Bloxham; it was also stated that James T. Hemby deserted the Confederacy at Sharpsburg, Maryland, in 1865 after serving three years. Although we could not blame him for deserting after his three year period was up, we were disappointed with the information. Other information that was obtained from Washington included the fact that James T. Hemby was the only Hemby person to serve from Florida. We were referred to the Florida State of Florida for further information concerning the status. We were intrigued by the statement that James T. Hemby deserted in the state of Maryland because Grandfather had always said that his father was killed in the state of Maryland.

Spurred on by these slight details, we contacted the State of Florida. After numerous correspondence with the Department of State Archives Supervisor at Talahassee, we received copies of two pension applications that had been submitted by James T. Hemby. We were referred to the Service Records of Confederate Soldiers who Served in Organizations From the State of Florida; The Jacksonville, Florida, Historical Society; The Old Soldiers Home in Jacksonville; the Park Superintendent of the City of Jacksonville, a death notice in the Jacksonville Newspaper; and to information from records of the Old City Cemetery.

From all of the above correspondence and personal visits, we were able to ascertain that James T. Hemby was our own great-grandfather. We also established the fact that he did not desert the Confederacy and that he was discharged from the service and returned to Florida. He died in 1914 in Jacksonville. After learning of his death and burial site, Alton journeyed to Jacksonville and viewed the grave site that has a Confederate marker with his name, birth date, death date, and his company of service engraved on it.

OUR TRAGIC STORY UNFOLDS. From the information that has been gathered from various documents, we have pieced together the following story about James T. Hemby, our great-grandfather.

James T. Hemby was born on July 22, 1823, in Washington County, Georgia. He died March 28, 1914 in Jacksonville, Florida at the age of 91. He married a girl named Mary and became the parent of three daughters before leaving the state of Georgia to settle near Talahassee, Florida, in a small community called Newport. He moved to Florida between 1851 and 1853, where he lived until his entry into the service of the 5th Florida Infantry on March 1, 1862. He enlisted at Camp Leon in Talahassee, Florida, and was sworn in by Captain William D. Bloxham for a period of three years. He was assigned to Company C, 5th Florida Infantry. He was sent to the hospital at Fredericksburg, Virginia, on November 7, 1862, for thirty days. He was wounded in the knee and had a broken arm. His wounds required surgery, and his surgeon was P. George Peachy. After his stay in the hospital, he was detailed to other units, but was still a member of the 5th Florida Infantry. In April, 1863, he was in the Quartermaster Department. In October, 1863, he was detailed to Regiment 2, M. Department and then transferred to Company C, 2nd Florida Cavalry on July 31, 1863. He served in the Brigade Pioneer Corp from June of 1864 until August 31, 1864, when he was sent back to his own unit. Another report states that James T. Hemby was shot at Sharpsburg, Maryland, disabled, and discharged (He was not discharged, but returned to his unit). We believe that this wound was to the right hip, which continued to give him trouble the rest of his life. He was evidently wounded twice during the time of his enlistment.

When the state of Virginia surrendered at the end of the war, James T. Hemby was detailed as a wagon driver and was with his captain driving beef. Since they were out in the wilderness, they were not aware that the war had ended. Hence, the charge of desertion came about. When he and Captain Briscoe returned to Weldon, North Carolina, they were discharged from the service on April 15, 1865.

Upon his discharge from the service, Hemby made his way back to his home in Florida, but when he arrived there, he did not find his family as he had left them. We do not know whether he found any of his children, but we do know he did not find his wife and two sons. One daughter was still in Florida when the 1870 Census was taken. She married Christopher Gray on March 17, 1870. It is hoped that Hemby did find her and was able to enjoy a father-daughter relationship with her.

In 1901, James T. Hemby submitted his first application for a pension from Tarpon Springs, Florida, in Pasco County. His doctor, A. P. Albaugh, stated that he had known Hemby since 1890, a fact which indicates that Hemby went to Tarpon Springs after he returned to Florida. We have no record of him between 1870 and 1890. He entered the Old Soldiers Home at Jacksonville, Florida, between 1900 and 1901 because he is listed on the 1900 Census Records as being a resident of the home. His second pension application of 1909 indicates his residence as the Old Soldiers Home. The attending physician for his second pension application states that Hemby had a dislocated hip from an old injury. He also mentioned Hemby had been injured by a minnie ball while he was on duty. James T. Hemby drew a pension for his service from early 1902 until the time of his death in 1914.

It is heartbreaking to think of the old gentleman's living in the Old Soldiers Home alone, not knowing that he had grandchildren and even great-grandchildren. My own father had been married a whole year by the time James T. Hemby died. My father never knew that he had a grandfather living. Granddad went to Florida in the early 1900's and tried to find some trace of relatives, but was unable to do so. He also went to Texas in search of his lost brother, but was never able to find a trace of him. We realize that our grandfather must have been a lonely little boy as he grew up, because he thought that both of his parents were dead. We also think of the sad and lonely man who came home from the war to find nothing of his family.

We have not finished piecing together all the pieces of our puzzle. We still do not know who the parents of James T. Hemby were, nor do we know how and where he lived between the years 1870 and 1890. We shall continue to search for these lost links to our past and our cherished heritage.

Children caught-up in the press of the Civil War were called "Bush Boy." Sometimes they were ahead of the Army, but more often, along with it or behind the last of the wounded.

Highway 231 comes North into Alabama from Florida. John James MILLER and his wife Mary Jane "Polly" HUDSON, lived at Rockey Head in Coffee County on this highway. Their children were: Mary Louisa born in Alabama, 1857 (my Grandmother); Daniel J.W. born in Alabama, 1869; and Manora Eldora born in Alabama, 1861 (wife of John HEMBY born in Florida).

Alford HUDSON and his wife Jan JOHNSON lived in Coffee and Conecuh County, Alabama. They were the parents of Polly MILLER. (They had 13 children).

Some of the MILLER and HUDSON family lived near Mt. Union, 14 miles from Evergreen, Alabama, William MILLER and Jane JOHNSON. Both families came from Wilmington, N. C., area. They began their journey in 1833.

I remember John HEMBY well! We lived at Oloh, Mississippi during World War I. My Father worked at Camp Shelby (Hattiesburg, Miss). My Mother, Mary Viola Rutledge WHITE often visited her Aunt "Nora" HEMBY and Uncle John. We traveled by horse and buggy. Their home was on Marion-Lamar County line (on road to Columbia from Sumrall). Uncle John was a Methodist minister. He was educated by his wife and self-educated, too. He often preached at Advance Church, nearby. He was kind and gentle. Spent a lot of time with children who visited in their home. We all loved to go there. He was a farmer. Most of their children were married by 1920.

We visited Grandmother in 1922 and again in 1923, when my Mother died. This was another time I spent with Uncle John and Aunt Nora. She was so tiny. Most of the time, one could find her in the kitchen. He was often on the big "L" porch. The house had a picket fence with roses, holly-hocks, poppies, violets, honeysuckel on the fence. In the yard near the kitchen, was a tall Mullberry tree (which we loved to climb). On the porch was benches and rockers. A rail was all around it. A parrott named "Polly" was always there to greet us.

By 1925, the HEMBY family found a new home in the south of Lamar County and my Uncle Bishop L. RUTLEDGE and his family moved into their home at Advance.

While we were living in New Orleans, Louisiana, my Father and I visited them (Uncle John and Aunt Nora) in their home near Lumberton, Miss. Several of the children lived nearby, with their families. He was so glad to see us. He died soon after our visit. I saw Aunt Nora one more time while on a visit to Hattiesburg, Miss.

I wish Vada could have known these dear people. She has inherited their stamina. She is a school teacher. Alton HEMBY is a retired attorney. He knew his grandparents. I have helped them with their research.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Recently we have experienced difficulties in getting our NEWSLETTER and our QUARTERLY out on time. Putting these publications together, typing master copies, getting them printed, and mailing copies to our members is a big job. It is also a job for which there are few volunteers. To help correct this situation we are establishing the following guidelines for preparation and submission of material to be published in the monthly Newsletter and in the Quarterly.

1. All items, except charts and drawings, are to be typewritten, double spaced, one side only on 8½ x 11-inch typewriter paper. Photocopies of published material can usually be accepted without retyping.

2. Any material submitted for publication which contains quotations from published works must give proper credit to the author and publisher. Material submitted for publication which is a copy of published material must have a letter of permission from the author or publisher. The same applies for unpublished work.

3. Items for the NEWSLETTER must be received by the Editor not later than the 20th day of the month preceeding month of publication, e.g., material for the June NEWSLETTER must be received by 20 May.

4. Items for the QUARTERLY must be received by the Editor not later than the 10th day of the last month of each calendar quarter, i.e., 10 March, 10 June, 10 September, and 10 December.

We also need to upgrade the quality of our QUARTERLY and I have received several suggestions for doing this. Some of the items which have been suggested are:

1. Include lists of county records, such as: wills, deeds, land lotteries, marriages, deaths, census records, appointment and election to public office, etc. If we could devote a page or two in each Quarterly on two or three of these items we would provide some valuable information for our readers.

2. Another source of information is your family Bible. Many of the older Bibles have the names of family members, when they were born, when they died, when they were married and often to whom. Make a copy of the record in your Bible and get it to the Editor for publication. You may think that your family record is of interest to no one outside your immediate family, but this is often not true. You never know who may find a connection to your family. Central Georgia is a cosmopolitan area made up of people from all parts of our country and many foreign countries as well. Just because your family comes from some state besides Georgia don't think that your record would be inappropriate for our Quarterly — quite the opposite is true.

4. Another item which we are considering for publication in our Quarterly is Lineage Charts and Pedigree Charts, or possibly both. Charts shown in full size requires considerable space and increases the cost of our Quarterly. Instead of charts shown in full size we may be able to use reduction printing and get a lot more information in much less space. This is something which we are working on. In the meantime work on your pedigree chart so that it will be available when we are ready to publish charts in our Quarterly. We hope to start with the September 1980 issue of our Quarterly.

Let's all work together on improving our Newsletter and our Quarterly. Let us have your items for publication and your suggestions for improvements. We plan to hold the Newsletter to a single page, but we would like to expand the Quarterly to many more pages than are presently used. If you have a query which you would like to have published, send it to the Editor. There is no charge for members. I appreciate your suggestions and the items which you have submitted. Keep up the good work.

Sincerely,

James T. Martin

James T. Martin
President

P.S. Don't let the above suggestions limit your imagination as to what can be published in our Quarterly.

WHEN THE CALENDAR CHANGED

When researching American or British records of the 1700s you may find some dates identified as "Old Style" and some as "New Style." Sometime you may find an "Old Style" and a "New Style" date for the same event. This all came about because Great Britian, including the American colonies, decided to correct the civil calendar to bring it in line with the astronomical year. This should not cause too many problems if you are careful of the dates you use.

It all started way back when. By the time Julius Ceasar was emperor the old Roman republician calendar was sadly out of step with the astronomical year. In 46 B.C. Caesar corrected this situation by adding 67 days between November and December, thus making that year 445 days in length. However, he realized that a more permanent solution was needed and he called in some experts to make a study. As a result of this study the Julian calendar was developed in 45 B.C. It divided time into four-year periods; the first three years had 365 days and the fourth year had 366 days. Sound familiar?

The Julian calendar was good except for one small fault — the astronomical year didn't run to exactly 365.25 days, but completed its cycle in 365.2422 days. This meant that the civil calendar would be a little over a day too long after 130 years. But the Julian calendar was not adjusted until the 16th century when Pope Gregory XIII realized that it was running nine days behind the astronomical year. (That's right, behind, not ahead. The astronomical year was shorter than the civil year, therefore, the civil calendar year was longer and falling behind.) The Pope had a study made and the civil calendar was adjusted in March 1582 by adding ten days in October. Thus 5 October became 15 October and the revised calendar became known as the Gregorian calendar — the calendar which we still use today.

Although the calendar was adjusted in 1582 it was not adopted at that time by all countries, and this can cause the researcher some problems. In 1582 it was adopted by: Rome; various Italian states; Portugal; Spain and France. In 1583 by the Catholic states of Germany, but the Protestant states didn't make the change until 1700 — 117 years later. In 1753 it was adopted by Sweden and by Russia in 1917.

Great Britain, and the American colonies, revised their calendars in 1752. The day after 2 September became 14 September and New Year's day was moved from 25 March to 1 January. It was impractical for all records to be changed simultaneously, therefore, where the old dates were used they were usually identified as "Old Style," and where the new dates were used they were usually identified as "New Style." Scotland, as near as I can determine, revised their calendar in the year 1600.

WARNINGS: GENEALOGY POX
(VERY CONTAGIOUS TO ADULTS)

SYMPTOMS: Continual complaint as to need for names, dates and places. Patient has blank expression, sometimes deaf to spouse and children. Has no taste for work of any kind, except feverishly looking through records at libraries and courthouses. Has compulsion to write letters. Swears at mailman when he doesn't leave mail. Frequents strange places such as cemeteries, ruins and remote, desolate country areas. Makes secret night calls. Hides phone bills from spouse and mumbles to self. Has strange, faraway look in eyes.

NO KNOWN CURE

TREATMENT: Medication is useless. Disease is not fatal, but gets progressively worse. Patient should attend genealogy workshops, subscribe to genealogical magazines and be given a quiet corner in the house where he or she can be alone.

REMARKS: The unusual nature of this disease is -- the sicker the patient gets, the more he or she enjoys it.

This poem was taken from Ancestors Unlimited of McCook, Nebraska. Submitted by Bonnie Walden.

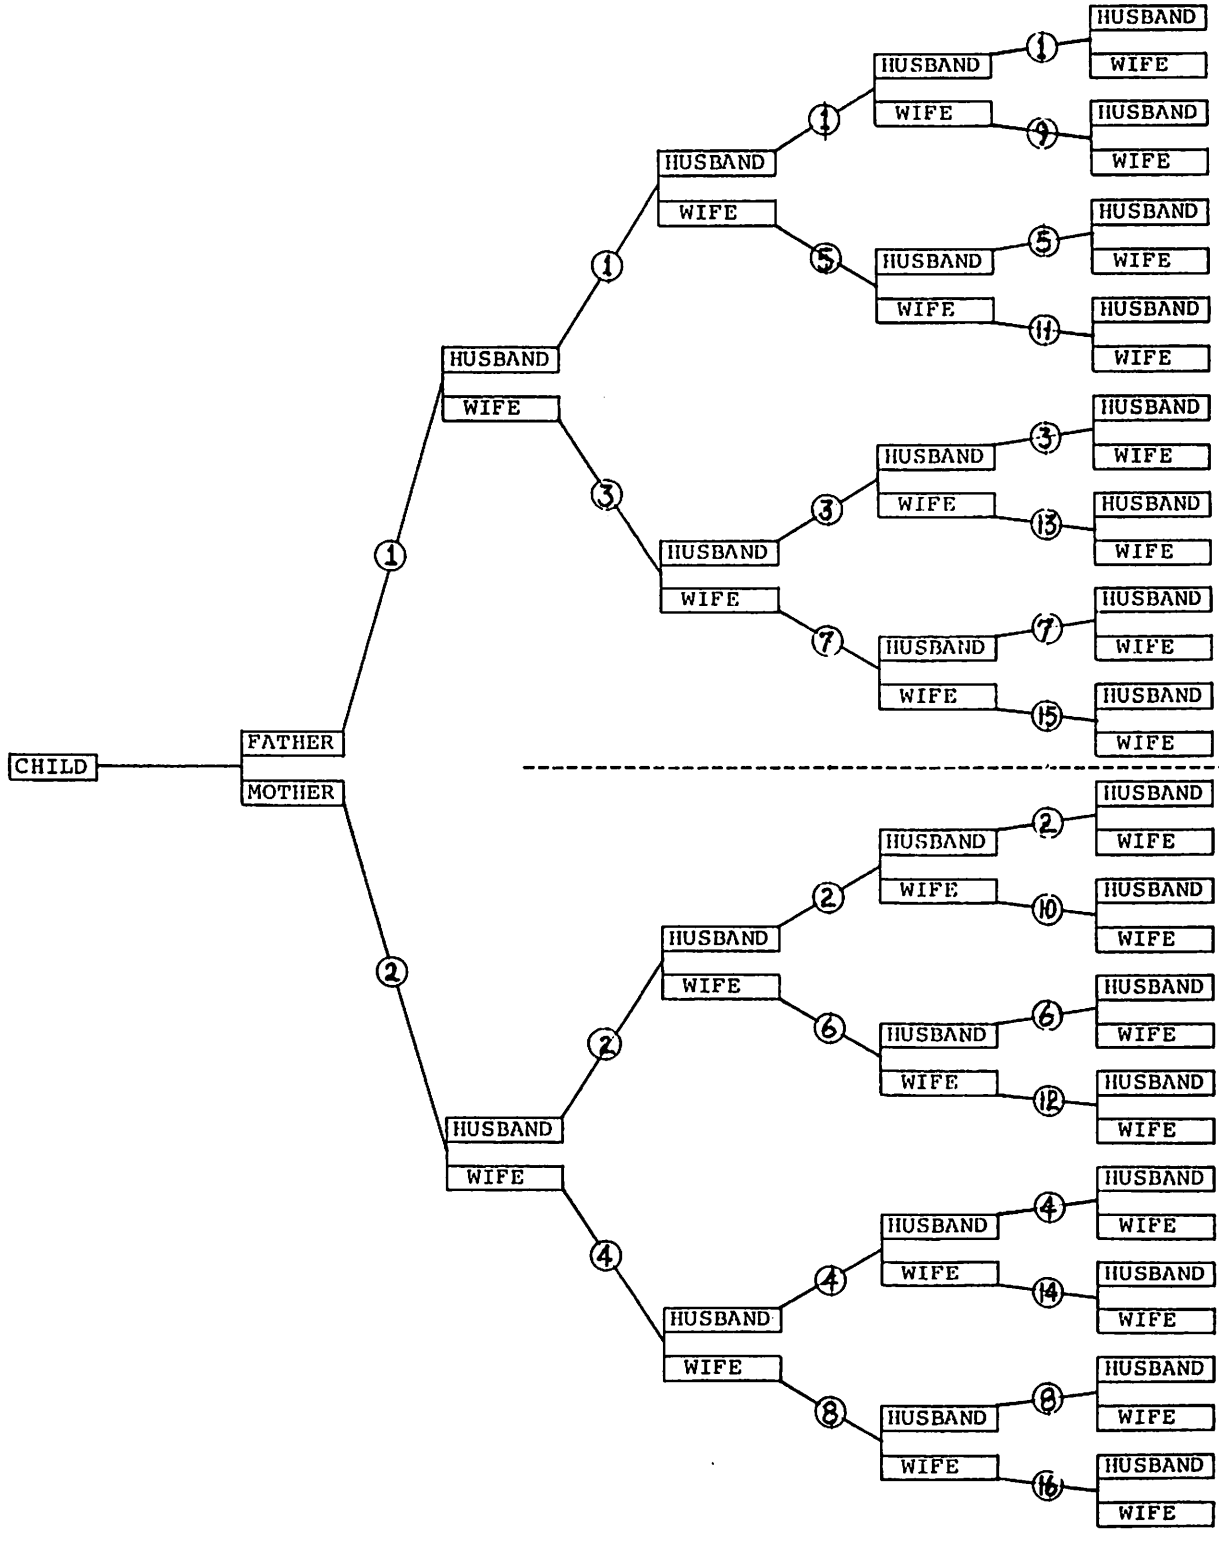
Line No. 3 shows father's maternal lineage.
Line No. 4 shows mother's maternal lineage.
All lines together shows the child's pedigree.
All odd numbered lines shows the father's pedigree.
All even numbered lines shows the mother's pedigree.



FAMILY PEDIGREE CHARTS

The Central Georgia Genealogical Society will start publishing Family Pedigree Charts in the September 1980 issue of the Quarterly. Charts will be published for members and for nonmembers, as space permits, with first priority given to publishing charts for current members. There is no charge for publishing Family Pedigree Charts and no special format is required for submitting pedigree information. You may send a copy of a pedigree chart which you already have or you may furnish the information on a sheet of typewriter paper. Sorry, no hand written records can be accepted.

The information for your Family Pedigree Chart should include the husband's full name when known, the wife's complete maiden name when known, the date of their marriage, the dates of their births, and any dates of death. If you are submitting copies of a pedigree chart which you have on hand, and the dates thereon are shown as 8-6-1843, please identify which number is the day and which is the month — we cannot afford to guess at dates. The proper way to show genealogical dates is by Day-Month-Year, e.g., 6 Aug. 1843. The information submitted for publication will be retyped and printed on charts as shown in the following sample chart. Use this chart as a guide in determing the information and coverage needed to prepare your pedigree chart. Continuation charts will not be prepared when only one family unit would appear on the continuation chart because this would be a repeat of the last family unit shown on a preceeding chart, otherwise, continuation charts will be prepared for two or more family units. The date the chart was prepared (October 1976), together with the name and address of the person submitting the information, should be shown so that it may be shown on the bottom line of the published chart.

Copies of pedigree charts, or typewritten information, should be mailed to the Editor. If you want extra copies of your published pedigree chart the time to order them is when you send the information to the Editor. The cost at that time will be 5¢ per copy for the first 50 copies (minimum order of 10 copies); 4¢ per copy for the next 50 copies, and 3¢ per copy for all over 100 copies. For example: If it takes three charts to cover your pedigree, and you ordered four copies of each chart, you would pay 60¢ for all 12 copies. After pedigree charts have been published it will cost considerably more to obtain copies because these copies cannot be printed at the time the Quarterly is being printed.

Each year, in the September issue of our Quarterly, we will publish an alphabetical index of names shown on pedigree charts which we have published. Anyone desiring a copy, or copies, of the pedigree charts on which appears a particular name may order them from the Editor. A dollar amount will be shown after each name in the index. This is what it will cost for one copy of the chart, or charts, which covers the family pedigree in which the name is found. The dollar amount also tells how many charts are in a particular set, e.g., $1.00 indicates there is only one chart, $1.25 indicates there are two charts, $1.50 for three charts and so on. For additional copies of the same chart, or set of charts, subtract 75¢ from the amount shown after the person's name in the index. In otherwords, the first set includes an additional charge to cover postage and the cost of the envelope — all charts are mailed flat via first class postage.

Family Pedigree charts which are published in our Quarterly will be numbered in the following manner: A family unit number will be assigned to all charts in a set and each chart within a set shall be assigned a chart number. Family Unit numbers will start with 100 and run consecutively, i.e., 100; 101; 102; 103 and so on. Charts within a set will be numbered 1, 2, 3, 4 and so on. The first chart always being number one and the first continuation chart will always be number two. A chart's complete number will consist of a combination of the family unit number and the chart number, e.g., 100-1; 100-2; 100-3 and so on. The second family pedigree which we publish will be numbered 101-1, the third will be 102-1 and so on. In this manner we can publish 900 family pedigrees without using more than a three digit number and we can have any number of individual charts within a family pedigree. Anyone who has had their family pedigree published may add to the information, or submit corrections, at any time. When additional information warrants we will republish the charts. Names submitted as additions to published charts will be shown in the next published index.

The information shown in your family pedigree may help someone to find a long lost ancestor. Send in your charts, or the information. We hope to be able to publish some in each issue of our Quarterly.

MEMBERS' RESEARCH DIRECTORY

The Members' Research Directory is published annually to promote an exchange of information between members who are researching the same family lines. When asking another member for information always be as specific as possible and always enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope (SASE).

Family names which are being researched are listed in alphabetical order. Each family name is followed by an abbreviation of the State, or States, in which the research is being conducted. Foreign countries are spelled out. Membership numbers are shown below each name to provide a cross-reference to the member who is doing the research. A list of the members follows the list of family names. NOTE: Only one spelling of the family name is shown — there may be several variations for some names.

PRINTING TIPS

Have you often wondered how we get the small size print which is used in our Quarterly? It is really a very simple process and one which can save you quite a bit of money if you have printing to be done, such as publication of the genealogical-historical record which you have been working on for so long.

We start with a sheet of paper which measures 11 x 17-inches. We type what we want printed in an area which measures ±8-1/2 x ±12-5/8 inches (we show these as approximate measurements because we use an engineering scale to layout the guide in order that it will coincide with typewriter spacing). When this is printed the printer reduces the page to 75% of its original size. This gives us a printed page of 6-3/8 x 9-1/2 inches on a sheet of 8-1/2 x 11-inch paper, and the printing is placed so that we have a binding margin of 1-3/8 inches and a top, bottom, and side margin of 3/4 inch. Almost all of the pages in this Quarterly are printed in this manner.

For our Quarterly we use pica size type, or larger, for easy reading. This size type gives us 84 letters per line and 75 lines per page. If we typed the same thing on a sheet of regular typing paper we would get only 63 letters per line and only 56 lines per page. Using the reduction method for printing our Quarterlies we can save about 40% on the amount of paper and realize a cost savings of around 30%

If you would like to use this method follow the typing guide shown on the following page and make one for your own use on a piece of 11 x 17-inch paper. This is a standard size paper and it should be available at your local print shop or office supply store.

We have discussed only one size typing guide, the one designed for a 75% reduction. You may make guides for 70%, 65%, 60%, and so on, however, anything below 65% gets to be very small and hard to read without a magnifier. If you would like to design your own special guides you will need to get a Proportional Scale Calculator from your local office supply store. The cost should run around $3 to $3.50 each. Now that you know our secret, good luck!

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

This is the first issue in which we have published PEDIGREE CHARTS and we are off to a good start with three sets of charts. We hope to publish a few charts in each issue of our Quarterly. I encourage you to take a close look at these charts; you may find a name or date which you have been looking for, or you may be able to supply information which will help to complete one of the charts. If you have any information which you think would be helpful please send it to the person who's name appears at the bottom of the chart. I am certain they will be glad to hear from you. As we continue to accumulate more and more charts we will eventually have a valuable storehouse of genealogical data which I hope will be of help to many researchers. If you would like a set of any of these charts please contact the Editor. The price of each set, and additional sets ordered at the same time, is shown in the index to each chart set.

The arrangements for our workshop are complete and registrations are coming in. We are accepting registrations on a first come basis, so don't wait until the last minute to register — you may be too late. The date is Saturday, 25 October 1980, at the Holiday Inn, Watson Boulevard, Warner Robins, Georgia. The registration fee of $15.00 includes lunch and any materials. Make your check payable to the Central Georgia Genealogical Society and mail with your registration form to the society at P.O. Box 2024, Warner Robins, GA 31099. The sixth land lottery was authorized on December 21, 1830 and December 24, 1831. There were act ually two different lotteries but held in the same year, hence they are listed here as one lottery. The Act of December 3, 1832 divided the original Ch erokee County (see map shown above) into the 10 counties listed above; but in the drawing of the lottery and in the granting of the land and gold lots, they were treated only as in Cherokee. The Sections and Districts were as follows:

BOOK REVIEW

Index to Georgia Poor-School and Academy Records, 1826-1850. Edited by Marilyn L. Adams, 1980. Published by R. J. Taylor, Jr. Foundation, [redacted]. iv, 68 pp. $6.00

This is an alphabetical index of the children attending Georgia Poor-Schools and Academies during the period 1826 through 1850. It covers reports from schools in the following twenty-nine counties and contains nearly 16,000 references:

Baldwin	Gilmer	Jasper	Rabun
Bibb	Gwinnett	Jones	Upson
Bryan	Habersham	Lee	Ware
Bulloch	Hancock	Lincoln	Warren
Burke	Heard	Madison	Washington
Butts	Henry	Monroe	Wayne
DeKalb	Jackson	Muscogee	Wilkes
			Wilkinson

During the period of 1826 through 1850, Georgia public (poor) schools and academies received financial assistance from the state. The amount of money which a school could receive was based upon the number of students attending the school. To receive these funds the schools had to submit an annual report listing the names of the students attending school during the year. This index was prepared from original school reports on file at the Georgia Archives. Considering the purpose for which these reports were prepared I doubt that the names of very few students were omitted.

Each student's name is cross-referenced to the county in which the school was located and the year, or years, during which the student attended school. The name of the school is not shown in the index, however, all of these records are on microflim at the Archives and the name of the school could be found. Furthermore, after each child's name in the index the image number on the microflim roll is shown. This is a great help to anyone wishing to view the original record.

This index provides a valuable source for finding names which may not be found in any other records for the period covered. It is an attractive publication printed on top quality paper, 8½ x 11-inch, softcover. It is reasonably priced and a very good reference to have in your genealogical library.

Cite Your Sources: A Manual for Documenting Family Histories and Genealogical Records. by Richard S. Lackey, F.A.G.S. (New Orleans: Polyanthos, Inc., 1980), 108 pp., paperback, $5.00 plus $1.00 postage from the publisher.

Mr. Lackey has made a valuable contribution to the field of genealogy by giving us a complete set of guidelines for citing sources in documenting genealogical works. This is something we have needed for a long time! Mr. Lackey has closely followed the standard rules for citing sources, and this is good because it keeps us on familiar ground, but he has also provided some specific examples for citing genealogical sources which are not to be found in any other publication. I am certain that you will find these to be most helpful in documenting your work. There is one thing which I would like to add to Mr. Lackey's work: When you are doing research in the field don't try to prepare footnotes in their complete and proper form; make note of all the facts pertaining to your source and construct a proper footnote after you get home. Otherwise you will never get any work done.

We often think that preparing proper source citations is something which is done only by those professional genealogists who are going to publish their work. This is wrong! The persons who really need to know how to cite their sources are the ones who are just beginning to do research work. If you properly document your work to begin with you will avoid many headaches later on. I recommend this manual as a must for every genealogist — beginner and professional. PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

10 December 1980

As 1980 draws to a close this is my last letter as president of our Society. Come 1 January 1981 our new president, Mr. James W. TURNIPSEED, Jr., will assume the duties and responsibilities of this office. I know we can count on Jim to do a good job and I wish him the best as he leads us on to greater achievements during his term of office. Let us all give him and our officers our full support during the months ahead.

Although the Central Georgia Genealogical Society has "been in business" for a little over two years, it seems like it was only yesterday that we were holding our first organizational meeting. In this short time we have come a long way, thanks to the hard work and dedication of our members. You had the desire to succeed and we did! We may not be the largest group around but we certainly are one of the best — and we are just getting started. Let's keep up the good work.

Since we were first organized I have missed only one of our regular monthly meetings and I believe that I have learned something from each meeting. I hope all our members can say the same. This, to me, is one of our primary functions — to help all our members to learn more about genealogy and to improve their skills. If you have a question don't hesitate to ask, someone may have the answer you have been looking for.

We sponsored an all-day Genealogy Workshop this fall and it was a success. Since then we have been asked when we would be putting on another workshop. I am glad that we are thinking about making this an annual affair.

I am proud to be a member of the Central Georgia Genealogical Society and it has been an honor and a privilege to have served as your president. I greatly appreciate the help and support which you gave me and I thank you from the bottom of my heart. You are the best! To each I wish a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Sincerely,

James T. Martin

PROBLEMS IN DENMARK?

Maybe not for the Danes, but if you are looking for a Nielsen, Jensen, Hansen or Andersen, you may have a problem. Mr. James W. Turnipseed, Jr., our President, gave me a newspaper clipping with a Copenhagen (AP) by line which highlights the name problem in Denmark. The gist of this rather long article is as follows:

1. Half of the nation's population of 5 million share 14 family names.
2. Sixty percent of Danish names end in "sen."
3. There are only 85,000 family names in the whole country.
4. There are now 370,000 Jensens, 350,000 Nielsens, 300,000 Hansens, 200,000 Pedersens and Andersens in Denmark. Toss in Christensens, Larsens, Soerensens, Petersens, Rasmussens, Joergensens, Madsens, Olsens and Kirstensens and there's half of the population.
5. All Danes now have a personal registration number, without which one cannot open a bank account or see a doctor.

We thought you would like to know the situation before booking passage. If anyone has had experience researching in Denmark we would like to know how it should be done to get the best results.

PHONICS (fon'iks)

During the course of history many of our records were written by clerks who recorded what they heard, or what they thought they heard, and this has led to many different spellings for many of our names. If, during our research, we remain alert to the different sounds which could result in a different spelling of a name we may have better luck in finding an ancestor, even though their name is different from our's.

Mrs. Janice Fink SMITH

Vowels a, e, i, o, u, sometime say their name and sometime sound like they do when we say that egg is hot stuff. These are short vowels.

Certain letters or combinations of letters may sound like other letters:

The letter (a) may sound like a short (o), as in hot, in some words.
e.g., The (o) sound in not sounds like the (a) sound in watt.

The letters (o) and (ou) sometime sound like a short (u), as in stuff.
The (u) sound in up sounds like the (o) sound in done.
The (u) sound in up sounds like the (ou) sound in touch.

Sometime y, u, and o, sound like short i, as in the word is.
The (i) sound in him sounds like the (y) sound in hymn.
The (i) sound in him sounds like the (u) sound in busy.
The (i) sound in him sounds like the (o) sound in women.

At other times (y) may sound like a long (i), as in high.
The (i) sound in ice sounds like the (y) sound in rhyme.

The letters gh and ph sometime sound like (f).
The (f) sound in fur sounds like the (gh) sound in enough.
The (f) sound in fur sounds like the (ph) sound in phonics.

The letters g, ck, ch and que may sound like (k).
The (k) sound in kill sounds like the (c) sound in cat.
The (k) sound in kill sounds like the (ck) sound in buck.
The (k) sound in kill sounds like the (ch) sound in chorus.
The (k) sound in kill sounds like the (que) sound in antique.

In some words (qu) sounds like (kw).
The (kw) sound in KWIK STOP (the corner store), sounds like (qu) in queen.

The letters (ti) and (ci) may sound like (sh).
The (sh) sound in shield sounds like the (ti) sound in nation.
The (sh) sound in shield sounds like the (ci) sound in social.
Sometime (c) sounds like (s); (ed) sounds like (t); (s) like (z), and (n) like (ng).
The (s) sound in space sounds like the (c) sound in cent.
The (t) sound in sit sounds like the (ed) sound in fixed.
The (z) sound in whiz sounds like the (s) sound in desert.
The (ng) sound in going sounds like the (n) sound in thank.

The letters (ei), (ey), (ai) and (ay) sometime sound like long a as in apron.
The (a) sound in snake sounds like the (ei) sound in eight.
The (a) sound in snake sounds like the (ey) sound in they.
The (a) sound in snake sounds like the (ai) sound in gain.
The (a) sound in snake sounds like the (ay) sound in pay.

The letter (i) may sound like long (e) as in he.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT YOUR ANCESTOR IN GREY?

By: Beulah V. White CRUTHIRDS

Did your ancestor serve with the Confederate forces during the Civil War?

Researching Civil War veterans can be rewarding, and sometime disappointing, but it is well worth the effort if you don't give up too easily. To start with find out all you can about your Civil War ancestor, such as: his full name; when and where he enlisted; the name of his company and his regiment; the names of his officers and some of the men he served with; his branch of service, Army, Navy, infantry, calvary, artillery, etc.; the state from which he served; when and where he was born (city, county, state); his pension file number; when and where he lived in a Soldiers Home; and when and where he died.

Send your first request to the State Division of Archives and History, Records Section, of the State from which your ancestor served. Give them as much information as you have, but don't go into an explanation of your relationship to your soldier or use a lot of extra words. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask them to bill you for the cost of whatever information they are able to provide. Usually $3 to $5.00

After you have all the information you can get on your soldier your next step is to go to the National Archives. Complete GSA Form 6751 and mail it to:

Military Service Records (NNCC)
National Archives, GSA
Washington, DC 20408

Ask only for Pension and Military Records. They will send you what they have and bill you for the cost. (I always enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.) When you receive your bill pay it by return mail — you may get better service next time and you will help to build a good name for all of us.

Now that you know who your soldier was, don't you wish you knew more about where he fought and the battles he fought in? This research can be done for you at a cost of about $7.00 Write to:

INSTITUTE FOR CIVIL WAR RESEARCH
c/o John F. Walter
[redacted]

Give your soldier's name, rank, his regiment, company, and the state from which he served. Request a "Capsule History of his Regiment" and ask to be billed for the cost. You will receive information about the origin and designation of his regiment with a list of the companies in the regiment. They will also include alternate designations, if any. You will learn where the regiment served, with dates. The commanding officer's name. The battles and engagements with their locations. A map showing where the events took place is usually included, and the location of the unit at the end of the war is also given.

I am proud of the information I obtained for $7.00 in the Capsule History of the Second Texas Cavalry. I now know more about my grandfather, William Presley White.

PEDIGREE CHARTS

We started publishing pedigree charts with the September 1980 issue of our Quarterly and we plan to publish charts in subsequent issues as space will permit. When we publish a pedigree chart we also publish an alphabetical index of the names shown on the chart, or a set of charts. Annually, in the September issue of our Quarterly, we plan to publish an alphabetical index for all charts published to date. We hope to eventually amass a large collection of pedigree charts which will provide a storehouse of information to anyone doing genealogical research.

Pedigree charts are published free of charge for members and for nonmembers, and there is no restriction as to the geographical area to which the information pertains. We do insist that the information submitted for publication be either typewritten or hand printed. This is necessary to eliminate as many errors as possible during transcription. Most of the time we can work from a copy of a pedigree chart which you already have. The information which we receive is first typed on a 11 x 17 inch chart and reduced during printing to a 8½ x 11-inch chart (standard typewriter size paper). All pedigree charts are printed on one side only, on a right facing page in our Quarterly.

NOTE: Most pedigree charts in general use do not cover five or six generations; therefore, you may need to add additional generations to the chart you have in order to complete one of our charts.

Our charts bear the simple title of "Family Pedigree" printed in Old English letters at the top of the chart. The chart is designed to accommodate two types of pedigrees; one which starts with a husband and wife, and one which starts with a child (single or married). A husband and wife chart covers five generations, counting the husband and wife, and a child's chart covers six generations, counting the child.

1. Husband and Wife Pedigree Chart:

   1st. generation: Husband and Wife.
   2nd. generation: Parents of Husband and Wife.
   3rd. generation: Four sets of Grandparents.
   4th. generation: Eight sets of Great Grandparents.
   5th. generation: Sixteen sets of Great Great Grandparents.

2. Child's Pedigree Chart:

   1st. generation: Child.
   2nd. generation: Child's parents.
   3rd. generation: Child's paternal and maternal Grandparents.
   4th. generation: Child's paternal and maternal Great Grandparents (4 sets).
   5th. generation: Eight sets of Child's Great Great Grandparents.
   6th. generation: Sixteen sets of Child's Great Great Great Grandparents.

NOTE: Additional generations can be added to either chart by the use of a continuation chart, or charts.

The space on our charts is designed to accommodate a person's full name and complete dates. Please give us the full name whenever it is known and we would like to have all dates shown in the following manner; 27 Jan.1874, not Jan. 27, 1874, and never as 7-8-37. We have no way of knowing which is the day and which is the month, and whether you mean 1837 or 1937.

When you submit your chart information for publication you may order as many copies of the chart as you need. The prepublication cost is 5¢ per copy with a minimum order of ten charts, or sets if a continuation chart is required. Let us know how many charts, or sets, you would like and we will let you know what they cost. The cost will be considerably higher after publication.

Anyone, member or nonmember, may order copies of charts which we have published. Write to our Corresponding Secretary to find out if the name you are looking for is on one of the charts which we have on file and she will let you know the cost for a copy of the chart, or set, if there is more than one chart.

Help us to provide a service to others — send in your chart information.

1. The Researcher's Guide to American Genealogy, by Val D. Greenwood, 1973.
   "I regard this book as a 'Bible' for anyone interested in doing serious genealogy research. It discusses correct research practice, and analyzes materials for this research."
2. Lineage Chart Book 1979, Vol. I, published by Tuscaloosa (Alabama) Genealogy Society.
   "This book contains 239 lineage charts, primarily of persons with connections in the Tuscaloosa County area, completely indexed."
3. Geddie and McPhail Genealogy, by Henry L. "Jack" Geddie.
   "Jack Geddie of Ft. Worth, Texas published and copyrighted this book in 1959. It is an account of the Geddie and McPhail families from Scotland, who probably came together to North Carolina, and many of whom subsequently migrated to Alabama and Texas. It contains many family stories and quotations from letters, but very little documentation; however, it is of use in pointing the way to obtaining proof. NOTE: The late Jack Geddie was my fifth cousin through the GEDDIE line. C. M. Dixon."
4. The Clans and Tartans of Scotland, by Robert Bain; enlarged and re-edited in 1946 by Margaret O. MacDougall.
   "Here are 320 pages of Scottish names, traditions and history. There are over 130 color pictures of tartans, with clan crests shown, and a brief history of each clan."
5. The Clan Morrison: Heritage of the Isles, by Alick Morrison, 1956.
   "This small book, one of a series on clan histories, deals mostly with early history and tradition of the clan, nothing about U. S. Morrisons."
6. Snedecor's Greene County Directory, originally published 1856, reproduced in 1957.
   "If only every county had such a book as this one about Greene County, Alabama! It lists citizens of the county (males only, of course!), their occupations, location of their residence, and the date they arrived in the county if before 1824. Lists of voters, churches, advertisements, and many other goodies."

SAVING WATER DAMAGED RECORDS:

On 12 January 1981, the Spalding County Courthouse, Griffin, Georgia was gutted by fire and many records were lost; however, many of the records which were badly damaged by water have been saved.

Within hours after the blaze was put out, inmates from the county correctional institution had removed nearly all surviving records from the smoldering rubble. Some recent tax digests and recordings on public utilities were destroyed in the office of Tax Commissioner Ruby Hill. Superior Court Judge Andrew Whalen lost thirty years of case notes and five current case files. But the bulk of official county records — including deeds and case files of Clerk of Superior Court John Lindsey, as well as wills and estate records of Probate Judge John Snider — escaped the flames. Some of these records were drenched as the fire was put out.

For the next week, State Archives personnel helped to set aside wet records and prevent mildew; made arrangements with the Lockheed-Georgia Company in Marietta, and transferred the soaked papers to Lockheed's altitude environmental chamber, where the records were dried. The Lockheed-Georgia Company has given Spalding County officials a real lift.

As a public service to the county, the aircraft manufacturer has dried out 25 cubic feet of court case files, 38 volumes of old Griffin newspapers and over 900 volumes from the courthouse law library. These were placed in Lockheed's altitude environmental chamber at the equivalent of 60,000 feet above sea level. At this altitude water turns to vapor at 105°F. With the chamber temperature raised to 140°, the records were dry within two weeks. The quick removal of water and a follow-up treatment with fungicidal spray prevented significant damage to the records.

Secretary of State David Poythress commended Lockheed for its cooperation.

DYING FOR THE LAST WORD ? GET A NEW VIDEOTAPED WILL:

Perhaps you can't take it with you, but here's the next best thing!

Murray Meyerson, a Florida lawyer, initiated a videotape service a few months ago and he said he has had dozens of calls since his ads began appearing in Miami newspapers. Florida law requires that a will be written, so the taped variety is only a supplement to be shown when the will is read. It could, however, become invaluable if the will is contested.

Meyerson thought up the videotape setup while reading about the troubles surrounding the Howard Hughes will. Meyerson charges $125 over the cost of the will for the videotape.

1981 MEMBERS' RESEARCH DIRECTORY

The Members' Research Directory is published annually to promote an exchange of information between members who are researching the same family lines. When asking another member for information always be as specific as possible and always enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope (SASE).

Family names being researched are listed in alphabetical order. Each name is followed by the two-letter abbreviation of the State, or States, in which the research is being conducted. The names of foreign countries are spelled out. Membership Numbers are shown below each name to provide a cross-reference to the member who is doing the research. A list of members follows this section.
NOTE: Only one spelling of a name is shown — there may be several variations for some names.

HELP FROM ENGLAND

Mrs. E. M. EVANS, [redacted] offers to help anyone researching ancestors from the Shropshire and mid-Wales areas. While these are her principal areas of research, she would be happy to obtain information from other areas, or advise who is best to contact.

According to Mrs. Evans, researching in England is not as easy as we may think it to be. Quite frequently one can get back to the 1500s without great difficulty, beyond that things get much more difficult but not always impossible. When you know the name of your ancestor, where your ancestor was in England at a certain time(year), and when you know what your ancestor's religion was at the time, it may not be too difficult to locate the records.

Many English surnames evolved from the trade which the person was engaged in at the time, e.g., Farmer; Baker; Wheeler; Weaver; Butcher; Chandler; Cooper; Miller; Forester; Shepherd, and many more. To make matters worse, identical surnames came into use in many different areas of England at about the same time. From this you can see how important it is for you to know the area from which your ancestor came.

Researching in England and obtaining copies of documents is expensive compared to what it costs in the U.S. Birth, death, or marriage certificates, back to 1837, cost £4.50 ($9.50), if the record of the event is maintained in the office of the local Superintendent Registrar; if not, the cost by post from the General Records Office in London is £8.00 ($17.00). In both instances the exact name and date must be known, otherwise those offices prepared to undertake a short search will charge approximately £10 ($21.00) for the search alone. Prior to 1837 it is far more difficult to obtain certified copies, and when it is possible the cost varies considerable, although in some instances a photocopy may be obtained inexpensively.

Some of the difficulty of researching in England can be illustrated by the following: If your ancestor lived in the Shrewbury area in the eighteenth century, but the village or parish was not known, then over twenty parishes would need to be searched just to cover a small area around Shrewsbury. Searching in the County Record Office is usually free, but a minimum fee of £2.00 ($4.20) is made for access to registers retained by the church.

Mrs. Evans charges $1.25 per quarter-hour for her research, but there is no charge for simple inquires which do not require any research. When she agrees to do research for a client she prefers that the client set an amount which is not to be exceeded without further reference. Your personal check is the best method to use when paying for services. Postage from England, via air mail, runs about 94¢ per ounce. Surface mail is cheaper but it may take many weeks to arrive. Don't put U.S. postage stamps on your SASE; buy an International Reply Coupon at your local postoffice and enclose it with your self addressed envelope.

The above information was extracted from a letter received from Mrs. Evans.

Ed.

AN AMERICAN CUSTOM: Sr., Jr., II, III, and so forth.

When a father and son have identical names the father often shows "Sr." after his name. (In some older records you may find "Sr." used as a means of identifying the senior member of a community where there are several families with the same name.) When a father and son have identical names the son adds "Jr." after his name. When a grandfather and a grandson have identical names the grandson adds "Jr." after his name.

A son of a "Jr." adds III after his name; son of a "III" adds IV after his name, and so on.

On death of a "Sr." the "Jr." drops the "Jr." from his name; the "III" becomes "Jr.", and so on.

A nephew or grandnephew adds "II" after his name instead of "Jr."

Sons of famous persons often retain the "Jr." after their name even after the famous father has died.

SOUTH CAROLINA RESEARCH

The following article was first published in the Family Tree Newsletter of the Northeast Cobb Genealogical Society. We are grateful to Mrs. Mary Wallace Day, Editor of the Society for permission to reprint the article in our Quarterly.

Some of our members attended the December (1980) meeting of the Georgia Genealogical Society. The speaker was Gee Lee (Jo) Corley Hendrix, a professional genealogist and author of several indispensible books on South Carolina. Mrs. Hendrix spoke on the peculiarities in South Carolina research. We are including some of her advice for the benefit of our many members with South Carolina ancestors.

Mrs. Hendrix placed great emphasis on neighbors of our ancestors. There are times when these neighbors are the only lead we have. Most of the time a man's neighbors were witness to his will, his land transactions, etc. When he moved it was often in the company of one or more of his neighbors, and many times when his sons and daughters married, it was to children of his neighbors. When copying census records it is imperative that you copy the neighbors for at least ten households on each side of your ancestor. When abstracting land records always record the names of the bordering landowners.

Pendleton District was in the northwest corner of South Carolina. It was ceded Indian land that was granted to Revolutionary soldiers of South Carolina and was opened to purchase by the public. Many people who subsequently moved out of the state were in Pendleton District for a short time. Records of Pendleton District are found only in the state archives and are listed under Anderson County.

Border counties in other states must be searched if you have ancestors in the South Carolina border counties. North Carolina and South Carolina for many years claimed the same land. Chesterfield County records were lost in 1865, but many records of residents of this South Carolina county can be found in bordering North Carolina counties such as Anson. This is just one example of the importance of searching the border counties in other states.

Neighboring counties within the state must be searched as well. The probate records for Ninety Six District, which included the counties of Abbeville, Edgefield, Newberry, Laurens, Union and Spartanburg, can be found at the Abbeville County Courthouse. Newberry County has many records of Lexington County residents. Here the county line changed so often that some folks were not sure which county they were in. In some instances people simply used the courthouse nearest their home, even though it was not in the county where they lived. Records of Saluda County residents before 1897 when it was formed from Edgefield County can be found in Edgefield. There are many similar cases in South Carolina research.

Deeds of early up country South Carolina contain a wealth of genealogical information, according to Mrs. Hendrix. Before 1785, deeds were recorded in Charleston. However, many deeds were not recorded at the time of their execution, and quite a few from before 1785 can be found in the county deed books.

The first settlements were along the South Carolina coast in what was known as the Low Country. The Up Country was settled much later and had very little representation in the Colonial Government. In order to record legal transactions it was necessary for an Up Country resident to ravel great distances to Charleston. Many times he simply passed a deed into the buyer's hand. In some cases the deed was recorded later, and other cases it was never recorded. For this reason it was sometimes necessary to quote a whole chain of title in one deed. This is another reason for searching the records of a man's neighbors. Original deeds before 1785 are in Charleston, but the archives has them on microfilm. After 1785 they were recorded at the county courthouses.

The location of county records must be checked if you are planning a research trip to South Carolina. In some cases all or some of a county's records may be at the state archives. In other cases, all of a county's records may be at the county courthouse.

Colonial Grants and Plats are located in the South Carolina Archives. During the Colonial Period it was necessary to appear in person before the Council to petition for land. If successful, the petitioner was given a Warrant of Survey which was taken back to the surveyor who made two plats. One of these was recorded and sent to the governor for his signature. Only then was the grant issued. Often vital information such as ship passenger lists, names of family members, and place of origin were recorded at the time of the petition. The Council Journals are not indexed, but the precept or warrant date, which is the first date on the plat, is the key to the Council Journal. If you have this date, you can write to the archives and request copies of the Council Journal entries for that date.

For examples Mrs. Hendrix referred us to Carolina Genealogist, No. 21, page 3. This is the beginning of Editor Mary Warren's abstracts of the Governor's Council Journal. We also refer you to Family Puzzler, No. 609, pages 11-13 and No. 614, pages 16-18. Mrs. Warren is also editor of this publication, and she has given a very clear and precise explination of how to use Colonial Plats as an entry to the Council Journals. Mrs. Warren has also included much of this information, along with abstracts of the Council Journal for 1768, in her interesting and useful book, South Carolina Citizens and Immigrants, 1768. This is available from Heritage Papers, Danielsville, GA 30633.

Quit Rents were a form of taxes paid to the King. There are five volumes of Quit Rents in the state archives covering some of the years between 1733 and 1774. The name of the landowner, number of acres, and amount paid are given. Although they are not indexed and may require a great deal of the researcher's time, these Quit Rents are a valuable source.

Memorials, also located at the archives, may contain genealogical information. From 1733 to the Revolution, a landowner was required by law to register his land holdings. These Memorials are a recording of how a man came by his land. Many times a chain of title is given, and often there is information on land acquired by primogeniture, or on land granted by North Carolina and later found to be in South Carolina. References to unrecorded deeds may also be found in Memorials. There are sixteen volumes of Land Memorials in the South Carolina Archives.

The South Carolina Archives now has a computer index of thirteen different groups of records. Every time a man's name appears in one of these records, even if it is just as the neighbor of a landowner, it will be included in the index. At the present time the following records are included:

1. Court of Common Pleas Judgement Rolls, 1703 - 1790.
2. Recorded Conveyances, 1719 - 1785 (these are Charlston Deed Books).
3. Secretary of State's Land Grants, 1694 - 1776, complete.
4. Plats, 1731 - 1775, complete.
5. Memorials, 1731 - 1775.
6. Revolutionary Claims, 1778 - 1804.
7. Tax Returns 1824, for the Lower District.
8. R.M.C. Office, John McCrady Plats 1680 - 1926. This is a special collection.
9. Renounciation of Dower 1726 - 1787.
10. Petitions, 1776, 1782 - 1830, scattered dates. Only the first ten names on a petition are indexed. Look for neighbors.
11. Committee Reports, 1776 - 1830.
12. Resolutions.
13. Petitions to Practice Law, scattered, after 1800.

Mrs. Hendrix is the author of the following books on South Carolina:

1. Pendleton County South Carolina Deed Books A and B.
2. Edgefield County South Carolina Deed Books 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6.
3. Indexes to Edgefield County South Carolina Probate Records. This also includes index and cross index to Equity.
4. The Jury Lists of South Carolina 1778 - 1779.

BOOK REVIEW

We have received a copy of AN INDEX TO GEORGIA COLONIAL CONVEYANCES AND CONFISCATED LANDS RECORDS, 1750-1804 (Colonial Records Series, Number Three), published by the R. J. Taylor, Jr., Foundation,

The main section of this book consists of a carefully edited, computerized every-name index to the eleven-volume series of Georgia colonial conveyance (deed) books. These volumes were maintained from 1750 until 1804 and contain records of transactions from the early days of the colony in the 1730s through the beginning of the American Revolution, as well as documents relating to the disposition of lands confiscated from Loyalist during and after the war.

Also included in the book are an index to names contained in three related records of sales of confiscated lands and an index to names mentioned in related legislation.

The book contains approximately 40,000 references to names of grantors, grantees, adjacent landowners, witnesses, former owners, and others mentioned in hundreds of documents.

This is a valuable index. Use it before going to the state archives and you will save many, many hours in your research. I found twenty-six names in this index which were the same as the names of our current members — maybe they are your ancestors? If they are you have struck a gold mine of information. To receive your personal copy send $8.00 plus sales tax (Georgia residents), to the above address. This is another good buy from the R. J. Taylor, Jr., Foundation.

The following article contributed by Mr. James C. Reed, President, Harp & Thistle, Ltd., [redacted], [redacted]

YOU COULD LOSE A BUNDLE WHEN YOU PUBLISH YOUR BOOK

If you fail to do your homework before selecting a printer, your book could cost you a lot more than it should. Having a book privately printed is always expensive. Most amateur authors expect that to be true and they are prone to accept the first estimate without question. Proof of this is found in the number of family histories now selling for $40 to $75 per copy. Some genealogists seem to have lost sight of the real objective in publishing a family history — sharing the story of their forefathers with relatives and with future generations. That objective is best served by keeping the retail price as low as possible.

Few established printing firms are unscrupulous and dishonest. That is not the point of this article. The reasons for the variance in the cost of printing a book are many. Each printing company has its own unique methods, machinery and manpower. Each has a different array of capabilities and services. While the cost of your book is based primarily upon two factors, (a) number of pages, (b) number of copies you order, the addition of extras can run up the cost very quickly. These extras include fancy end-papers, special artwork, slickpaper dustcovers, fees for publicity and advertising, and distribution service. You really do not need these. What you really want is a sturdy, well-bound book that will last fifty or a hundred years. You will want to advertise the book by writing to your kinfolks and you can mail the finished books yourself, from your home.

Begin your search for a printer right in your community. Maybe the local newspaper publisher can do your book. If not, he can be helpful in finding a printer who works for a reasonable fee. If you need only 50 or 100 copies of your book, it can be done very nicely by one of the many "instant" printing shops that have cropped up in the last ten years. This method of quick printing uses a photo-offset process that is quite economical and it has become very popular with genealogists. If you are determined to have a nice, clothbound book that will last a long time, however, you will want to contact several printers who do "short run" printing jobs. Some firms will not do less than 250 or 300 copies of a book and they usually state that in their advertising. You will want to write to several firms for estimates and while you are at it, you should ask for their booklet of instructions to guide you in preparing your manuscript. The pamphlets can be very helpful and are worth having, even if the firm charges you a few dollars for them.

The most crucial part of this process is writing the letter to the printer. Your first impression is created here and if your letter rambles on and on, it says plainly that you are an amateur lacking experience. This leaves you wide open for a price you may not like. Here is how you can look professional: 1. Use a letterhead if you have one available, 2. Type your letters, or hire someone to type them for you, 3. Be specific and concise in your needs. You might follow the style of this sample letter.

Almost all reputable printing firms will gladly send you one of their books for inspection. For the most part, the quality of these books will not vary in great detail, but the prices will astound you in some cases! Your book may cost you as much as $12 per copy or as little as $4.50 each!

A book of genealogy rarely turns a profit, but careful selection of the printer can make the difference between breaking even and losing hundreds or thousands of dollars. Write your letter carefully and send copies to five or six printing firms before signing a contract to have your book done. The extra time will be well spent!

SQUEEZING EVERYTHING OUT OF COURT RECORDS
GETTING THE MOST OUT OF UNITED STATES LAND RECORDS
THE FINE POINTS OF GENEALOGICAL CORRESPONDENCE

by Colin James of Denver, Colorado

What gems they contain, what goodies you can find in them and that is primarily because we have had no experience with going into court records, plus there are those who proclaim and contend that the basis of all genealogy is court records. As an attorney, I would like to believe that, but I would have to disagree because I don't believe it is the basic wherewithal to any genealogical information. Court records are helpful, but not all that searching. Probably vital records, such as births, deaths and marriages, are the most important genealogical aids we can use, if they are available for the time period with which we are concerned. Next, in order of importance are census records for the period and the area with which we are concerned. Then, probate records should come next in order of your sequence of search.

If probate records don't cough up what you need, land records are of considerable importance and the fourth item on your list of sequential searches perhaps. If land records don't reveal the missing information you need on a particular family, you can resort to court records which most people categorize into civil and criminal court records. There are only three types of court records for genealogical purposes, civil, criminal and probate. Probate records are a field unto themselves and we could spend hours alone on them. Civil and criminal court records fall into a convenient category to subject themselves to consideration together, but I think that is only the fifth item that you should go to if all else fails. Let's put it this way, if you have all the information you want on a particular family line and want to embellish that with additional information or perhaps confirmatory dates, it never hurts to go to civil and criminal court records, because they may reveal very interesting facts about a family.

Keep this in mind with regard to any court records. However much you feel your ancestors never left a court record behind them, never left their footprints in a court record because they were law abiding, or perhaps had insufficient property to leave a probate record behind them, nothing could be further from the truth. No matter how law abiding you feel you are, look back for a minute and see how even though you don't think so, you will probably pass on to your reqard by leaving some footprint, some record of yourself in a court somewhere. Take an example of a person who witnesses an automobile accident, you are not a participant, you are not the driver, but you witnessed the accident. You may be hailed into court as a witness, against your wishes perhaps, but you are subpoenaed into court. Now you are not a litigant nor a party to a court action, but on the records of that court, there will be a record that you were paid $6.00 for a certain day's testimony as a result of your having been subpoenaed as a witness.

Another example, in the older colonial times, most tax records are closely allied to court records, because the local county assessor or county treasurer would have to have his assessments for taxes for the forthcoming year approved by the judge before they were valid. That is not a procedure, to my knowledge, these days, but it was in some colonial states. So you are in court and your ancestors would be in court because their names would appear on a tax list. If all else fails, after you have gone into court records, we have the catchall, the garbage pail of all other miscellaneous tax records, such as tax lists, school lists, morticians records, cemetery records, things of that type.

A lawyer loves to go into the distinction between trial courts and appellate courts, the distinction between state courts and federal courts and the distinction between civil and criminal court records. For a genealogist's purposes however, we can disregard all of these distinctions because you want court records at any level; you want civil court records; you want criminal court records; you want probate court records; you want state court records; you want federal court records; you want lower court records and you want appellate court records.

Perish the thought of having to become an expert on the different types of courts and whatnot. You want to grasp any type of court record you can find for these deceased ancestors for whom you are looking for additional data. It might be wise to keep one distinction in mind, however, and that is the distinction of the categories of lower court records and appellate court records.

If a person feels agrieved and files a complaint in court or goes to court or litigates, he naturally has to go into the lowest court level possible, the trial court. If he is dissatisfied with the judge or jury at that level, he can have a second bite of the same apple by appealing an adverse decision to a higher court, the appellate court. In many cases, if he is dissatisfied with the decision of the appellate court, he can go one step higher. And, in some cases, when you have a federal question concerned as distinguished to a state question, you can appeal to the final ultimate aughority, the United States Supreme Court, the nine old men who sit in Washington.

For genealogical purposes, there is a much fuller record available at the trial court level than at the appellate court level. Why; because an appellate court never hears testimony all over again. They merely hear the case in canned version. Example: a case is tried at the lower or trial court level; the decision is adverse to one of the litigants and he appeals. On appeal, the appellate court does not hear the witnesses' version, reading only the transcript of the proceedings that occurred in the lower court, a typewritten book in volume form which may be five or six hundred pages of all the questions and answers given at the lower court level.

The judges of the appellate court then go over the proceedings in the lower court and make a decision as to whether or not the judge or the jury at the first level, the trial level, committed any error. The purpose of the appellate court is to correct the lower court if error has been made, so the same record appears in the appellate court that appears in the lower court. An appellate court judgment or decision has the virtue, however, that it is published in bound volume form, a printed volume which the Supreme Court of each state issues. If you are looking for a lost ancestor, perhaps in the seventeen hundreds, you can often find that ancestor's name in the indexes to these bound volumes of appellate court decisions, much easier than having to go back yourself to the original county and look up the indexes to the trial court. That is why you should keep in mind the distinction between trial courts and appellate courts.

The means to which you gain access to each particular court, the trial court and the appellate court, is a little different. Every court indexes its cases. If you are looking for a lost Arbuckle in Pennsylvania in colonial times, the easiest and quickest way to get to lost court records is to go to the county in which the Arbuckles are presumed to have lived in that period of time and go to the various courts in that county and ask to see their court indexes. These indexes are usually bound volumes in which the litigants' names are listed by surname only to begin with, but in later times by surname and given name. There are usually two volumes, one for plaintiffs' names and later, not until about 1850, however, one for defendants' names.

What is the difference between a plaintiff and a defendant? The plaintiff is the one who goes into court; he who has been damned or wronged and takes the case to court. He files a complaint in court. The person he sues is the defendant. You have two parties, one says yes and one says no, the plaintiff and the defendant. The clerks of these earlier colonial courts only indexed by plaintiffs names. Why? The number of citizenry in the county was small; the attorneys knew all the litigants; they knew what was going on. They didn't have to ask for particular defendants' names; they knew who was suing, so that they would ask for a case, the Jones case or the Smith case, and the clerk would pull it out of the file.

As the areas became more populous, there were many Joneses so they began to have defendants' indexes. These later indexes will have the full name, as Jones, John, under the J's and the case number 4321. You then have to ask the clerk of the court, will you please get me the packet, the case docket or the file packet, call it what they will in that particular state, for case 4321? Acadia or Belair, if you are going into the older colonial states, case packets are usually filed in the basement or the attic. It takes the clerk time to look them up, so they don't love genealogists. If possible, call in the day before and say, "I want to look up some old court cases. Are they filed in your office or are they filed in the storage room?" Better yet, if you can find the case number the day before, give the clerk the number and ask if it is convenient to have this case or file on her desk the next morning so you may look at it. It gives a little better flavor to your demand and you know how court clerks are often not too considerate of genealogists' pleas for information.

You should have no trouble at all in getting into old files, even in those states which have what they call "closed record laws." You are familiar with the growing tendency for non-amenity; we don't want someone else to know what our affairs are. That was not the case in older times; not until the last ten years has this become an obsession with some courts, some legislatures and some judges.

There are closed record laws in many states which say that certain types of cases are not open to public perusal. Primarily adoptions and you know why; the fear of revelation of the real, natural parents. There are little tricks of the trade in getting adoption records, which, if you follow, you will find pay dirt and you can open up almost any adoption record if you know how to go about it. Some probate records are closed, those that pertain largely to existing probate cases where the estate is still open. Why? Oh, some people like to go down to the court and see how much their neighbor left, whether they owned three cars or two cars. Courts have tried to put a stop to that idle inquiry. But they sometimes open up even existing pending probate court records, if you identify yourself as a genealogist and look sincere and honest.

But have no fear about going into old dead cases; cases which have been settled many years ago. There is no reason for preservation of secrecy about them, unless they pertain to something about adoption or illegitimacy, so you should have no trouble getting into these records. You are going to be faced in some states with the situation of well we don't open up these records because of lack of time. If you go at it right, you can get any court record opened up. Lack of time on the clerk's part is no excuse and if you approach the clerk after she has had a hearty lunch, you should have better luck! But to go in and demand, pound your fist on the table, these are my rights and I want my constitutional rights, you are asking for trouble and should get trouble. Courtesy will certainly get you everywhere if you go at it right with these clerks of courts. After all, they are paid to do a day's work and if you order photocopies that helps to pay the overhead.

The case docket or the case file is not all there is to search in a court record. There is another facit which you should examine at the same time in connection with the particular case. In addition to the case file, there is a docket book which the clerk of these courts keeps, called variously minute book, order book or docket book, depending upon the state. In some states it is a chronological story of what happens in each court each day. The judge may take up ten cases during his day's work on the bench. His clerk enters in a docket what decision or what action the judge took in each case and the file clerk in the back room enters the minute orders in each case in another chronological entry book which gives all the transactions in any particular case.

An example: a docket book in 1813, Piqua County, Ohio, in a probate record shows that the judge on December 16, 1813, in case number 84, Daniel Aran was the deceased, appointed William Tucker as administrator; the judge also on the same day set bond for the estate at $1,200; advised the appraisers that they were commanded to return in court about ten months later and advise the judge as to what they had appraised the estate for.

The next day, December 17, is the Elizabeth Morris estate and the judge did the same thing, appointed sureties in that particular probate case and appointed George Pontius as the appraiser and bond was set for $3,000. This is a probate docket, called administration docket, same thing as probate, but chronological December 16, December 17. It is wholly without regard to alphabetical sequence, A one time and an M the next time, taking chronology by date.

Another type of docket, 160 years later, is called an order book for a court in Colorado. On March 14, 1972, Sol Menge took up at 9:40 a.m., the case of Vaughn versus Helm with a certain case number; he heard a Motion to Quash, which means to set aside something. The plaintiff appeared with counsel and defendant did not appear; the court heard arguments concerning and cited authorities and ordered that the motion was granted and the defendant must answer the complaint within 20 days.

Half an hour later, in the case of In Re: Jacobs (in regarding Jacobs or the case concerning Jacobs), the court heard a citation for discovery of absence and he set a hearing for 2:30 p.m.

The next one is a little bit of genealogical gem. In the case of the Guaranty National Bank at 10:15 a.m., where the bank is suing Young, et al (and others), there was a hearing on the plaintiff's motion to publish summons on a nonresident defendant, whose name was Malcolm Shear. That meant that the defendant was out of the jurisdiction and the plaintiff said, "your honor, let me publish a notice in a newspaper that he is being summoned into court because he is not in the state." The defendant returns to the United States of America in August of 1972 from U.S. Naval Service in Chile according to the Affidavit of his U.S. Navy Commanding Officer. The motion was granted with the return on three days notice upon the defendant's return to the U.S.A., but not later than September 15, 1972.

Now this is a case which involves a man named Shear, but the heading is Guaranty National Bank versus Young and others. Shear does not appear as a defendant in this summarized version. He does appear in the original court heading if you were to ask for that particular file. But what does this prove? This proves that Malcolm Shear was out of the country in Chile, South America in 1972. In 100 years from now, they may wonder where was grandfather Malcolm; we can't find any record of him for three years in Colorado. Well, he was in Chile and this proves he was in Chile. This shows how court records can cough up a lot of genealogical information that you don't dream is ever available.

These two docket books, one in 1813 and the other 160 years later, have not changed their procedure one bit, although in a little more effective form in present day methods.

Another type of docket shows every bit of action taken in any one case. A judge may take action on a case on fifteen different days; fifteen different times matters come up before him on that case. The clerk of the court enters each of those daily transactions in a summarized sheet, usually in a separate book called the Docket Entry File in some states or the Order Book in others, so you have to feel your way along to find out what type book they call it in that particular court. Don't be concerned over the technicalities of nomenclature, each court has the same general type of records.

One reason it is important to look up these docket books, which summarize all of the action taken in a case, is because also, you will find little gems like exhibits 1 to 32 are stored in basement vaults. Exhibits 1 to 32 may contain family letters, charts, anything of interest in that particular case and that may be a gold mine to you. A docket book may say this case was tried with companion case number 4321, that gives you a clue. The litigants in this case had some interest in another case that leads you to the second case as a possible source of data. So don't overlook that. Having tried this one or two times, you will feel like an ond veteran.

I note that people seem to have a lot of trepidation about going into court records for several reasons. The nomenclature is unique, wherewithal, herewith, aforesaid, in re, et al, all of this mumbo jumbo, but given a little experience with it, you can certainly have no troubles at all. I cannot recommend too highly a tremendous aid to court records, The Researcher's Guide to American Genealogy by Val D. Greenwood. It came out in 1973, 535 pages, only $10 and a gold mine. It took a young chap six years to write it, a genealogy instructor at the Mormon Junior College in Rexburg, Idaho, called Ricks College. He found there was nothing in print where he could give his classes a general background of genealogy, with some degree of depth, something for the beginner, something for the intermediate and something for the advanced student. He spent six years gathering together everything he thought should be in a good instructional text and this was the result.

Several of us urged him to go into law; he did and at age 35 and with three children, he graduated from law school last June and is now waiting to pass the Utah Bar Examination and working for the Genealogical Society there at the same time. He is a Mormon, but he somewhat casts a jaundiced eye on some advocates of Mormon genealogy in his book; he feels that they are name searchers. Twenty percent of the book is devoted to basics and eighty percent to actual examples of what to look for in all types of records; it is particularly good on probate and court records and things of that type.

Once you get into these court files, once you get the jacket before you, you are going to find a mass of papers that will floor you. The important things to look for in any court file are on the top of page two. The first thing in the jacket will be a complaint which is what the plaintiff filed and he says, in effect, "your honor, this is my squawk, this is why I have been wronged." You will then find a summons which is an order to appear in court. The summons must show when and where the defendant was served. The sheriff has to say, I duly served the within summons by delivering a copy of it to defendant John Doe at Timbuktu, Iowa, on March 13th, so you know that John Doe was living at Timbuktu, Iowa at that particular time period. There are various motions that the parties will file, which may be of interest. You can become enraptured with these cases, so give yourself twice as much time as you think it will take because you will spend a lot of time going through this dead timber.

Then the defendant must file an answer. He must tell the Judge his side of the story and that may reveal important genealogical information. After the complaint has been filed and the answer has been filed, the parties are then at issue. One says I do and the other says I didn't. One says yes and one says no. One says you owe it and the other says I don't owe it. Then the judge or the jury decide the case and you will find at the very end of the file either the decree of the jury, what the jury decides, or the order of the judge. Be sure to look that over, because often that will state that certain parties have died in the meantime.

An example, you are well familiar with the fact that lawyers are accused of dragging their feet, we are slow, we are antiquated, we are too conservative. It may take two years for a case to come to trial, after it has first been filed. During that two year period, some of the litigants may pass to their just reward and you will find substitution of parties. A wife is substituted for her deceased husband at his date of death, so all of that information may give you what you are looking for in connection with a particular family. I list all of these contents of the case jacket as paragraph number one, top of page two. I mention the evidence file in paragraph two and I also mention the docket which is paragraph three, a thing you should look for. Now this all pertains to court records at the lowest level. [Note: Paragraph and page numbers refer to an outline used.]

If a case is appealed, you go to the appellate court and what would you find in the appelate court? You will find a transcript, either typewritten or printed, of all the testimony and evidence in the lower court. You will find appellate briefs of the two attorneys on both sides as to why they feel the lower court or the jury did or did not make a mistake. That is really of no importance or interest to you because it is a legal argument. It does not give dates of birth, death or marriage, so that is not too important and the final decision is not too important because you have the parties' names and the date from the lower court. Remember the appellate court does not receive any new information. All the information the appellate court has will be found in the lower court records. Why then should genealogists go to the appellate court records? Only because some of the indexes to the appellate court records are easier to find and closer to home than if you have to get on your bicycle and go back to Pennsylvania or Georgia to find the original court indexes in these county seats.

The only way you are going to have access to these court records is to either go yourself or employ a researcher to look up the records in the county seat for you, the indexes. Or secondly, to use a wonderful godsend and that is to order and obtain from the Salt Lake City Mormon Library a microfilm copy of those indexes. The Mormons spend over nine million dollars a year on genealogy and we all benefit. The depository of books and records in the library is amazing, but their virtue is that you can order for seventy-five cents from Salt Lake City on two weeks loan, a microfilm copy of any of these court records and other things, too, which you can look at, at your convenience, as close as Wichita, the closest one to you of their 138 branch libraries.

The Mormons have microfilmed all of this. But you are going to read somewhere or hear someone say that only ten percent of all the available court records have been microfilmed. That is true, but where the statement is misleading is that even though only ten percent of the records have been microfilmed, that ten percent is the most important thing in the court records, the indexes, the nitty-gritty, the guts of it and that is why that ten percent leads you to the imbalance of the ninety percent. So you really have access to as many court records as possible on these microfilms.

You're not able to go back to Virginia to look up the original court records at Augusta County, Virginia and you don't have the time or can't take the time to go to Wichita to look at these microfilm indexes from Salt Lake City. What can you do? Here is a shortcut that might be of help to you and it sometimes pays off beautifully. I told you that the various Supreme Courts of all the states publish their final decisions in bound volumes. They give the decision of the Supreme Court as to why they decided certain ways. You are not interested too much in the decision. You are interested if that case perhaps pertains to your ancestors and if the decision of that case will reveal information as to birth, death, marriage or residence of those missing ancestors.

About 1870, the West Publishing Company of St. Paul, Minnesota, upon the behest of attorneys, devised the idea of publishing the decisions of all the Supreme Courts of all the states. These bound volumes are called the "Reporter System" and report all the Supreme Court decisions, but only of the states, not of the federal courts, which is another set. The company gathers all of these cases together and publishes abstracts or indexes, which lawyers use, because under our system of jurisprudence we go by stare decisis (Latin for prefious opinions and rules.)

A judge who is hearing an accident case in Hutchinson, for instance, will try to decide the case based upon the precedent, what other judges have decided on a similar set of facts in other courts. You don't know what those fact situations are in previous cases unless you have a report of the decisions of the previous cases, so the West Publishing Company sought to gather these decisions together to give lawyers a convenient working tool. The company has a monopoly; the volumes are expensive, $22 a volume, and they come at the rate of about one a week. No genealogical library has them. You will find them only in some county court libraries, in the libraries in Topeka, Wichita, Kansas City, so a half a day spent in one of these law libraries will really pay off.

As a device to help attorneys, without knowing genealogists, the West Publishing Company put out in 1906 what is called the "Table of Cases" for all cases decided in American courts on the appellate level from 1658 to 1906 .. all appellate court decisions, not the lower court, but the appellate court, and keep in mind that only about five percent of the cases that are decided at the lower court level are ever appealed from. If you have lost all contact with an ancestor, go to this six volume set called a "Table of Cases," volumes 21 to 25 of The American Digest, Decennial Editions, published every ten years since 1906.

Lay your problem at the law librarian's feet. You want to find Smiths in 1860 in Pennsylvania, so ask for the table of cases that pertain to that period. Unfortunately, you will only find surnames and if you are looking for Herkimer Smith, you are sunk. While Herkimer is an unusual name, all you are going to find in the index is SMITH, but, it will list the state from which each Smith decision was rendered and you can narrow down the fifteen pages of Smiths to maybe one page of Pennsylvania Smiths and furthermore, it gives the date of the case. Again, you lay your problem at the feet of the librarian and ask how to find this particular case. He will show you how to go to stack number 16, pull down that particular decision in that particular case by a reference number and you will find that case set out in toto.

If you find that one of those cases pertains to land, and they used to litigate very extensively over land in early frontier times and colonial times, or if you find that it pertains to an estate, a probate dispute, where sons and daughters are battling over papa's assets, you may find a veritable gold mine. But, if you find only one, it is certainly worth the time you spend because it is an untouched field. Genealogists need this so much that lawyers who are interested in genealogy have finally persuaded the Genealogical Publishing Company in Baltimore to reprint these six volumes into three bound volumes (available in two or three years). But beat the crowd, get into this act before the rush starts and learn how to use these records because once you have tried it, you will always like it.

The West Publishing Company admits that it did not gather together all of the possible cases in 1906. Why did it set forth 1658 as the first case it indexed? Purely because that was the first case they could find in the American colonial times that had had a published printed decision. Since then, they have found many more cases. Historical archivists, not necessarily genealogists, have begun to publish printed volumes of these decisions which they have dredged up from old courthouse basements, because they contain valuable historical information.

Genealogists can benefit by these published volumes and they are multitudinous. Any large library like Kansas City, Salt Lake City, Washington will have access to these. Early New England Court Records, a bibliography of published material, put out by Harvard Law School in about 1930 is the best. It lists what purported decisions are available and where they can be found. An example: page 12 says that the Governor and Company of the Massachusetts Bay Colony is in five volumes, from 1628 to 1686, each volume having about 500 pages, and most large law libraries in the East will have these volumes and any good library like Library of Congress or Boston and New York will also have these.

An example of another one: Michigan Under British Rule, Law and Law Courts from 1760 to 1796, covers only a 36 year period, but early and colonial, so that might be helpful. Put out by the Michigan Historical Commission in 1926, this contains abstracts of the decisions and an index which lists the litigants by name. A gold mine, if you are interested in Maryland is the Proceedings of the Maryland Court of Appeals, 1695 to 1729, a 36 year period, limited time, but still early. Put out by the American Historical Association in 1933, this lists the actual decisions in toto.

In 1961, Harvard also put out Colonial Justice in Western Massachusetts, an original judge's diary of the administration of justice in the Springfield Court of Massachusetts Bay Colony. See what a help that would be.

Let's go South. Abstracts of the Inferior Courts of Pleas and Quarter Sessions in Orange County, North Carolina, 1777-1788, only 11 years, but a bound volume of about 300 pages. If you are interested in North Carolina, in that eleven year period in Orange County, this is a must. In this North Carolina volume, it was ordered by the judge, in 1783, that Winnie Kennedy, aged four years last fall, be bound over to William Tate until 18 years of age; it orders the recording of a deed from John Estes to David Sloan; Daniel Nelson was appointed overseer of a road in lieu of David Douglas ... examples of records found in this volume. North Carolina High Court Records, 1670 to 1696, again only 26 years, but early, North Carolina State Archives, 1968.

If you are interested in New York 1691 to 1715, 23 years, Guardianships only in Dutch with English translations, The Holland Society, 1971. New York Historical Manuscripts: Dutch, Translated and Annotated by Arnold J. F. Van Lear, Edited with Added Indexes by Kenneth Scott and Kenn Stryker-Rodda. Four volumes with Registers of the Provincial Secretary, 1638 to 1660, and Council Minutes, 1638 to 1649. The Provincial Secretary of New York was a Judge, yet he disguised his decisions as the Record of the Provincial Secretary ... another gold mine containing court depositions, wills and inventories, bills of sale and other legal documents. Published on behalf of The Holland Society, 1974, $75.00

I have mentioned nothing about federal courts. The National Archives Service issued in 1972 a 26 page bibliography of Federal District and Circuit Court Records before 1840 available through the National Archives Services. This is free; ask for special list number 31 National Archives. This, then, lets you use microfilm of these federal records at some of the local federal depository areas; there are 11 regional branches, the closest for Kansas is at Kansas City.

One last item, you have no idea of what a plethora or deluge of matters were formerly decided by courts and why earlier court records are so helpful. Such things as apprenticeships, which gave the name of the chap and how old he was and so forth, always had to be approved by a judge, so they appear in a court record. When a servant was indentured, that was in a court record because many employers defrauded servants of wages. Naturalizations were handled by courts. They still are, but the footwork is done by the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization which wasn't the case in those times. Road Petitions; in earlier days when they wanted to put in a county road, the judge appointed three overseers or sighters who went out and looked at the ground and reported to the judge, "Your Honor, we have sighted the road, we have stood here and looked down the row of cotton woods and we feel this is a proper road and should be put through at county expense." The judge then would recite in the court records the names of the property owners along whose property this road was to go, the names of the overseers and whom they talked to or got evidence from to convince the judge that this was a proper road.

The legislatures of many states threw into a court proceeding anything that required sworn testimony or evidence because a judge was an honorable man who would hear it to the best of his ability and render a good decision. So courts in older days were required by legislatures to pass on many things which are now handled by administrative agencies. Such things as the licensing of an ordinary, which is nothing more than the issuance of a tavern license, a liquor license, was in the older days a court matter or ferry permits now handled by the public utilities commission.

Take as an example; admission of your grandmother to the county farm. Today, grandmother has either social security or social welfare; she does not have to go before a judge and prove to the satisfaction of the court and a judge that she is indigent. In those days all of these decisions were handled by a judge.

Everyone overlooks, I am convinced, the virtue of criminal records in the earlier days. Going back to what I have just said, many actions which today are considered too petty, too trivial to warrant any criminal proceedings, were in the older days, a subject of very long drawn out and very bloody court action in the criminal courts. An example, the witchcraft trials in Massachusetts. Trespassing was at one time a criminal offense. Nowadays, if your cattle are habitually getting into somebody's meadow, your attorney writes a letter to the property owner saying cease and desist. There is no court action, don't make a federal case out of it, just a nice letter will probably cure it. So, don't forget the criminal records. In other words, grab any records you can. Many of these records have been destroyed, so don't be too pernacious, don't be too choosy, get anything you can lay your hands on to find these missing ancestors in those older records.

Who has an adoption problem? In older days as in these days, an adoption cannot be effective unless there is a court decree. It is possible that children were placed out without benefit of court decree by family consent. We will give the children to Uncle George and, if that is agreeable with the children and Uncle George, there may be no court record on it. But remember this, the age at which children could elect a guardian was 14 years. If a youngster under 14 years of age chose to leave home, today they call it "split," they would have to go, in those days, to the judge and get court approval of splitting. Over 14, they were on their own and they could do pretty well what they wanted.

You have to be careful of one thing, the age at which minors, those under 21, can do certain acts in this state, vary from state to state and it varies from decade to decade. An example, most of us were raised in the generation where you could not marry without parental consent unless you were 21. My gosh! It is age 16 in Idaho now. In many states the boy has to be over 21 without parental consent and the girl only has to be 18. So it varies. In many states you can drive a car at age 16; you cannot drink alcohol until you are 18; you cannot sign a will until you are 21. So, you have to be very careful of what the limiting ages were in the state in which you are concerned at the time.

Where are you going to find this out? There are all kinds of guides to each state. National survey of Court Organizations put out last year by the Bureau of Census for the Department of Criminal Justice, a branch of the Department of Justice (257 pp., $2.40), shows the various courts in each state and what their jurisdiction is. Search and Research by Noel Stevenson, a Mormon lawyer from near Los Angeles, gives the name of the exact title of the court to write to in each state for particular court records. If you want divorce records, it gives the name of the court; if you want probate records, it gives the name of the court. Go no further, this is right at your fingertips in your KGS Library, Search and Research.

Only ten percent of those of us who pass on leave wills. Why? To go into the reasons why you don't — you don't get around to it; you don't have enough property; you disposed of your property before your death; all of those reasons. So, if you write a letter to the clerk of a Probate Court and ask for the will of Benjamin Arbuckle, you may not get an answer for several reasons. First, you only asked for ten percent of the information he has in his hands. Ninety percent of the people in his county have passed away without a will. If you ask if he finds any wills, he has a convenient out to refuse to answer because he is not going to look for it.

Keep in mind that you want to ask for both testate and intestate proceedings. He who passes away with a will is a testator, testate (Latin for testament), a written instrument, a will. He who dies without a will is intestate, without a will, without a document. So, you want the clerk to search fully for a will or any intestate proceedings. Ask for uncertified copies. Why waste fifty cents a page for certification when you can ask for uncertified copies at a cheaper rate? When you have to file copies for lineage papers, that is something else, but just for your own personal genealogical files, save your money.

Court clerks, particularly probate clerks, are anxious to find any excuse they can not to answer our letters, because we are a bother to them. They are anxious to get onto things more interesting than these darned genealogists. So give them an excuse and they will dump your letter in file 13 very promptly. Don't give them the excuse, word your letter please in such a way, a very nice way, that you demand an answer. The way you command an answer is to say; "Please advise me whether or not you find any probate record, book and page, and so forth ...." Now what does that do? That puts the burden upon the clerk to tell you or definitely answer your letter yes or no and he can't wiggle out of that answer. You enclose down at the bottom your SASE envelope and that gives them a further reason why they can't decline, so you have them pinned to the wall.

An enigma to me are these women who sign a letter in their own handwriting, Mrs. John Doe. You are never Mrs. John Doe when you sign your name. You are Ruth Doe and any person who receives a letter signed Mrs. John Doe knows that you have not read your Emily Post. So type in underneath your name, Mrs. John H. Doe, but sign your name Ruth Doe. Anything that sends me into absolute orbit are these women who address envelopes Ms. Mary Doe. You don't know whether you are fish or fowl. Take your choice but tell us what you are.

GETTING THE MOST OUT OF UNITED STATES LAND RECORDS

You will recall that when we first began to discuss the various sequential searches you can make in various genealogical records, we mentioned that court records, probate records come as the third preference and civil and criminal court records come as the fifth preference. But land records should be searched, I feel, after you have searched vital records and found all you can; after you have searched census records and gotten what you can; after you have searched probate records; then go on to land records. I am a great believer in cutting corners and saving time and taking the easiest records first and land records are not easy, but they are still not as difficult as court records and they often reveal more than court records.

The basis of all American wealth up until the middle eighteen hundreds was land. A man was reckoned by how many acres he owned and not by how many Chevrolets he had in the garage or how many shares of A.T.&.T. his wife owned. Land records are particularly fruitful for that reason, because there had to be a record of it. You won't believe this, but it is true, that America, our country, is one of the few nations that requires that instruments pertaining to land transfers be recorded, be placed on public record, if they are to be valid. If any of you are into English, Scottish or Irish genealogy or continental genealogy, too, the reason you see so little emphasis placed on land records, deeds and whatnot is because those countries do not require that instruments pertaining to land be recorded.

The general way to go into land research in England is not to go to the public record office, but to go to an estate, a manor, a large holding, a plantation, a farm or ranch, call it what you will, and go to their muniment room. A large estate will have a muniment room where they keep the family archives and all of the deeds that pertain to the land of that particular area, but they are kept unrecorded. If they don't have a muniment room, they may have a muniment chest, a lock box, in which they keep all of these documents. When a man wants to sell a piece of land in England, he turns over a big box to a barrister and says, "There is the proof that I own the land." The contents trace the history of the land from 1066 down to date.

In this country that is a no no. Everything that pertains to a piece of land would have to be placed on public record at the courthouse. Of course, that is fraught with problems, for when the courthouse burns or the union troops burned it during the Civil War, your records are gone. At the same time, you are taking that risk by having the documents in a muniment chest in England, because the home could burn up, probably more easily than the courthouse could burn. So, we live in a country where land records play a vital role in genealogy because no transfer of land is valid or legal until the documents concerning it are placed on public record.

In genealogy we are looking for four things, we want to prove to our own satisfaction four things about any previously deceased ancestor. Date and place of birth, date and place of death, date and place of marriage, and fourthly and sometimes most importantly, parentage, that is, we want to prove that Henry Smith was the son of John Smith. If you have three Henry Smiths in the county at that time, which you have all experienced, you have to prove that a certain Henry Smith was the one son of John Smith. Sometimes you can prove the first three items but you can't prove that parentage and land records are particularly valuable for proving that one thing, parentage.

Basically, to know all there is about land records and to get the best you can from them, it is helpful to know what information you can hope to get from them. A deed from a seller to a purchaser placed on public record, of course, sets forth and proves that that piece of land was owned by the seller at that particular time in that particular county. It proves that the purchaser acquired land there. It does not prove that the seller lived in that county or that the purchaser lived in that county. If you live in Johnson County, Kansas you can own land in Ford County, Kansas. That is no problem. By the same token, if your deceased ancestor moved from Kentucky to Kansas, they often signed a deed selling the Kentucky land after they moved to Kansas, so that does not prove they were living in Kentucky at the time they signed the deed. It just proves they owned land at that time and probably formerly lived in that area.

Furthermore, land records and primarily deeds often recite that John and Mary Jones as sellers, selling a piece of land to Henry Smith. It may go further, we hope it does, and recite that John and Mary Jones are the sole surviving children of Henry Jones, proving parentage right there, in a deed which is placed on public record. Going one step further, if John and Mary Smith are the grantors or sellers of the piece of property, it is a pretty good shot, if they don't recite what they are, that they are husband and wife, particularly in those states east of the Mississippi River which have dower interests. All you have to do to find out about dower is to look up in Greenwood's The Researcher's Guide To American Genealogy [KGS Library.] All of these legal terms in connection with land and records are very elegantly set forth there with a good deal of explanation. Don't confuse dower with dowry. Dowry is the property that a wife brings into a marriage, for in feudal times, the wife's father paid the young bridegroom to marry his daughter. Dower is the wife's interest in estates east of the Mississippi, a certain stated portion of her husband's property upon his death. The theory behind dower is that when the husband died, and husbands as a rule die on an average of four years before their wives, the legislatures of the various states considered it advisable to make some provision for the wife. They wanted to prevent the husband from leaving all in his will to the little red haired nurse in the hospital; or they wanted to prevent him from losing everything by putting up the family homestead in a poker game. So, they said a man cannot dispose of his real estate, unless, during his life, his wife signs the deed with him.

In these states east of the Mississippi you are going to find in most cases, wives signed deeds also because they had to and furthermore, the acknowledgment clause at the end of the deed will often state that I, John Doe, a Notary Public, having examined Henry Smith and Mary Smith each separate from the other, do hereby certify that they signed the foregoing deed. The law requires a notary public to examine each one separately form the other, to be sure that Henry was not holding a gun at Mary's head to force her to sign the deed, proving, usually, that it is a husband and wife transaction. So these deeds east of the Mississippi contain that fruitful clause.

Why only east of the Mississippi? Because the states west of the Mississippi in most cases have abandoned dower, instead they have homestead interests. Now, don't confuse homesteading a piece of land with homestead. You homesteaded a piece of land when you lived on it for five years, performed certain improvements and got free title from the government. A homestead entry is, for instance, when a man buys a quarter section in Kansas and then the wife goes down to the courthouse and enters her homestead rights against that acreage. Again, the legislature thought it was advisable to not permit the husband to be able to transfer away the family homestead without the wife's knowledge, he must get her permission. So, the wife can enter a homestead claim against the land and those homestead claims crop up often in real estate transactions and help to prove that the woman was the wife of the husband.

You can also find in deeds, particularly in the southern states, recitations that certain people had relationships with other people in the same deed or are referred to in the deed. An example, the only way you can transfer title away from a deceased owner, if you own land and pass away, the only way you are going to get title out of your name is to have a court proceeding where the law says, either because you file a will or because the judge decrees it, that this land is inherited by or goes down to certain named people. That is one way of transferring title out of your name. The other way of transferring title out of your name, of course, is to do it during your lifetime while you are living.

In many cases, however, after the property owner dies, to circumvent the necessity of going into probate court, the widow and the children got together and said we will go to the family attorney and have him draw up a deed whereby the wife, Mary, and the children named, all of them are named and sign the deed, transfer that property to a purchaser and they recite in the deed, we, the undersigned parties, are the only heirs at law of John Jones deceased. The laws of every state provide that after that deed has been on record from anywhere from eight to sixteen years, depending upon the state, that it is an inconvertible fact. Nobody can dispute that Mary and the children were the sole heirs of John, the father, the husband who died.

There have been attempts, of course, for children to sign such a deed and recite that they were the sole surviving children, when they forgot to mention, John, the black sheep, who moved to California, and whom they were trying to cut out of his proportionate share of the estate. But once that deed has been on record from eight to sixteen years, even John cannot controvert it. The reasoning being, if John does not come home within the eight to sixteen years, he should have no interest in the estate.

Those deeds are gold mines because they recite who is the widow and who are the children and they often recite the sole surviving children, but watch out for that word surviving. That does not necessarily mean that the people named in the deed are the only children of those parents, because there may have been other children who have died befor the deed was signed. Again, Greenwood's volume is superb in pointing out these little tricks, these little red flags to watch for when you are examining land records.

Let's take up the methods by which you can acquire title to land, because, if you know how your ancestor acquired title, you are going to better be able to find out genealogical data from those instruments. There are only certain ways by which you could get title to American land. You have heard of the word "headright." It is peculiar to Virginia and the southern states. It was an amount of land, usually fifty acres, given to a person who transported, at his own expense, those from foreigh lands to this country. It was a cheap way to get land and at the same time to import cheap labor. If you wanted to own 200 acres of land, you could import four people, pay their passage to Virginia and you would get four headrights. You were then responsible to a certain extent, depending on the laws of Virginia or of the other states, for that person's care and upkeep. In other cases, other states, once they got here they were free, they were not indentured to you. So, you have to know the laws of the state with which you are concerned before you are sure that a person was indentured.

The person who paid their passage certainly wanted something in return, so he would probably indenture them, bind them, get them to contract to work for him so many months or years to pay off the cost of that passage. Those are headrights. The headright will not be in the name of the person who was transported to this country, but only in the name of the person who paid the passage. If the person had enough money to pay the passage to get headrights, you are pretty well assured they were a person of some means.

You are all familiar with bounty land because you have heard of military warrants and whatnot. In short, it was land given to a person who had served in the armed forces as an added recompense, a bonus, a method of payment, for having offered their life in the service of the country. They got land in varying amounts and there again, if you want to know the status of the ancestor who got bounty land, you can look up a table. It is in several volumes, Greenwood has it and E. Kay Kirkham's ABC's of American Genealogical Research, which you have in your library. This table shows that a lieutenant, for instance, was entitled to 200 acres and a captain was entitled to 300 acres. By looking at the size of the land and the size of the acreage, you will know the ancestor's rank.

In some states, Florida, for instance, the state gave land away to encourage settlers to migrate to that state. These lands were called donation lands; no money was paid; all you had to do was go there and settle. It preceded a homestead by 200 years, so it was the ancestor of the homestead transactions, but I think peculiar only to Florida.

You can also acquire land originally by purchase of the land in the public domain. What is the public domain? Not many of us have gone into this with too much thoroughness. The colonial states and the states in the second tier behind them and needless to say our good friends of Texas are not public domain states. The other areas are the public domain, the areas over which the United States Government, the Federal government as opposed to the State government, exercised control, jurisdiction and reserved the right to sell or dispose of.

You could get land in the public domain in several different ways. The easiest way was to buy it at $1.25 an acre, cash, and that was later changed over to a credit basis. Pay so much down and so much a year, these are called credit entry files. Go to a good text, Greenwood's, for instance, and learn all about credit entry files. Another way of getting land in the public domain states was by homesteading. Moving on the land, cultivating it for five years, making certain improvements, paying $1.50 entry fee. No more, not per acre, but $1.50, a one time shot and the land was yours. Many of our ancestors in these states got their land by that method. Starting in 1860, during Abraham Lincoln's administration, the homestead entries were perfected as late as 1928.

Another way of acquiring land was by private land claim. Take the situation where your ancestors moved west of the Mississippi, shortly after the Louisiana purchase in the early 1800's. There was no jurisdiction by the U.S. over that land; they had no surveys; they had no way of selling it; they just squatted, moved onto the land, the bottom lands, the rich lands, which they farmed. Then, when the United States began to exercise jurisdiction over these lands, they reared up and said, "Whoa, we have been here for 15 years, our sons are here, we are going to stay here, we certainly have a right to stay on this property." The United States said, "Yes, you do. You have a private land calim and, if you file your claim in a proper way, the United States will confirm to you that you had a prior preference to that land by reason of having squatted there before the United States exercised jurisdiction over it."

To those of you who have done any research in the southern, western states, Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, private land claims are multitudinous from the old Spanish land grants, preceding the Louisiana Purchase of 1803 and it is quite tricky to establish those old land claims and to search them out. Lowell Volkel, who spoke here recently to you, is a great proponent of these private land claims and, as you know, Clifford Smith has recently published in two superb volumes, which you have, The Federal Land Series, Volumes 1 and 2. They set forth, as never has been done before, the people who made private land claims, but only in the State of Ohio. Many people think that these two volumes pertain to other states, but Ohio only. If you are concerned with Ohio before it became a state, go no further than the Federal Land Series.

Those are the various methods by which you can get title. Now, we have to know how you get title out of these various transactions because then is when you begin to worry. You have to understand that the books in which the transactions, by which a person acquired original title, are recorded, differ greatly from the books in which they transferred title. There are two sets of books entirely — two sets of records. In other words, the counties kept entirely separate records of those who acquired title by these methods I have just mentioned and apart from books which record how people transferred title between themselves after they once got original title. You are concerned with two problems, but many times the genealogical gold mines are the original records from which they acquired title because they set forth from where they came, when they were born. They had to make an application to get these lands and had to set forth all of this genealogical data in these original applications.

Don't ever forget a few quick legal terms. When you speak of a grant or a patent, they are synonymous, a grant is a patent. It is the instrument by which title was originally granted or given or conveyed from the king, from the government, from the governing authority. You always get a grant or a patent; you do not get a deed. You had to make application, you had to serve for two years in the revolution or you had to homestead it, things of that type. Also, keep in mind that the person who receives land under a grant or a patent, is called vary logically a grantee or a patentee.

When you "run" the deeds, you ordinarily go to the Indexes of the deeds from one party to another. Many people fail to go back as far as they should and search these original record books. The original records are variously called, depending upon the state and even the county in the state, land tax books, books of original entry and some states call them grant volumes.

After an original owner acquired title, I told you there were only two ways he could divest himself of title or title could get out of his name. Number one, he could transfer it by deed from one person to another, from himself as the patentee or grantee to another purchaser. Number two, he could die and under the second alternative, when he died you will find on the records of that county, some method by which title got out of his name into the successor's name. I mentioned one way earlier. Another way is to place on public record a certified copy of the will of the deceased person and the will, itself, may say, "all to my beloved wife Mary." That will, when placed on public record, serves to transfer title. Remember in England, they have no such system, they have a different method and that is why these public land records in this country are so superior.

Another way that they can divest themselves of title is by a foreclosure or a tax sale. If you own land and fail to pay taxes, the county sells that land at a Sheriff's sale or tax sale to gain from somebody the taxes which you didn't pay. The price that the county sells that land for is usually the amount of the unpaid taxes. So, you find in the public record sometimes a deed from the Sheriff of Timbuktu County to John Jones or from the treasurer of the county. That serves to take title out of the name of the person who did not pay the taxes and invest someone else with the ownership of that property. When you find that your ancestor owned land for a succession of years and all of a sudden you find no further transactions, no deeds from that person, no wills placed on public record, it is a fair shot that you can trace that land by looking in the index under Sheriff or Treasurer or Assessor, depending upon the title of that particular person in that particular county. Because one of them has to sign that deed to put title in some new purchaser's name.

Another way of getting title out of a person through his failure to do something, is when the owner mortgages the property. He signs a loan at the bank or wherever and transfers title to that property to the lender, the life insurance company or the bank, in trust, and the lender keeps title to that land, not possession, but title until the lien or loan is paid off. If the mortgage is not paid off, the public trustee of the county or the sheriff or the bank, sells the land and from the proceeds of the sale, pays off the loan and, at the same time, transfers title to that land to a new owner. Accordingly, if you don't find the successive conveyances on the land, look up under foreclosure, public trustee, because the name of the person who signs the deed or the title of that office always has to be on the deed. If John Jones is the public trustee of that county, don't look under John Jones, because he is signing it just as his representative agency capacity.

Many counties mix up and index together the land deeds, the sheriff's sales for back taxes, the foreclosure sales. It varies from county to county and from decade to decade within the same county, so there is no sure fire formula you can go by. Ask the clerk in that office, if the index to mortgages is a separate index. If so, you will have to go to a mortgage record or a mortgage index and look up title that way.

Be ye not dismayed, if you find your ancestor never acquired title to that land as far as you know, but all of a sudden, your ancestor crops up as having mortgaged the land or sold the land. How does that occur? Sometimes there is a time lag of up to ten or fifteen years after a person applied for title to the land under a patent or a grant before the title was issued in that purchaser's name. During that ten or fifteen year period your ancestor may have tried to sell the land by executing a deed or he may have mortgaged the land before he even had title to it. That was common in frontier areas like Kansas and the midwestern states because it took so long to get the paper work done between Kansas and Washington.

An excellent resume' of this particular aspect of land transaction is in a volume by Norman Edgar Wright and, if you have $7.95 left over after buying Val Greenwood's book, please treat yourself to a Christmas present and buy Building An American Pedigree by Norman E. Wright, 640 pp., 8½ x 11, paperback, Brigham Young University Press, Provo, Utah 84602 (1974). This is not as good as Val Greenwood's but it has virtues Greenwood's does not have. It does not have an index; it does have a very good table of contents. The reason he left out the index is that it would have added to the cost of the book and he was trying to keep it down for student purposes, since it is being used as a text at BYU.

Norm Wright has a national reputation of having the best set of maps showing migrations of any person in this country. He has collected them for years. One of his fames is, if you want to know genealogy, if you want to cut your search time, you have to know migration — why they went from here to there and when they went from here to there and by what route they went. Often when you are hunting a needle in a haystack, you have them in Ohio, but you can't get them back to Pennsylvania or Virginia. If you know what routes early pioneers used to get from Pennsylvania and Virginia into Ohio, you can follow those routes and you will sometimes find that they dropped families along the way or they stayed a generation en route to gain more money or time to get to their family destination and you can find them along that route.

Don't flounder around looking futilely. Norman Wright has 212 maps in this volume of which about 60 percent are migration. He has purloined, gleaned these maps from every possible source and you can take any state in the union in the second tier of states, that is the states west of the colonial states, and find the routes your migrantancestors took to get from the colonial states into this second tier of states through Norman Wright's book. Its virtue is migrations; it is tops on those; but at the same time, it points out this last item I have given you about searching these land records and not being dismayed if you find your ancestors sold a piece of land before they even got title to it.

If you do go into mortgage records, remember the person who mortgaged or borrowed the money is called the mortgagor and the person, the bank or the lender or life insurance company that loaned the money is called the mortgagee. The mortgagor signs a mortgage or a deed of trust, they are the same, it depends on the particular state you are in. The borrower signs one of those instruments which conveys title to the benefit of the lender until the loan is paid off.

It is unfortunate for genealogists that all of the colonial states don't follow the same method of land descriptions that we use in these western states like Kansas. Our system is superb and we have Thomas Jefferson to thank for it. He devised the system in 1787 and it has stuck with modifications ever since. It has been the dismay and the envy of all countries. Australia adopted our system in toto, because it was so good. The early colonial states all follow the system of metes and bounds descriptions. You have seen those descriptions. They run from tree to post to stream to rocks to the lighthouse to the elm tree and back and forth. They are heck to follow. They are not usually rectangular; they are all mixed up because there were hills and valleys in those New England and southern states. There was no rhyme or reason to the description. The difficulty with it is that the elm tree in 1760 has disappeared and the pile of rocks in 1840 has been moved and the stream which ran down the center of the road or the farm in 1870 has been altered in its course so you have all sorts of problems. The system Thomas Jefferson devised for describing lands is called the rectangular system and most of the land descriptions in the area west of the Mississippi are rectangular. It makes it much easier to follow and for genealogists it makes it easier to plot out the land your ancestor owned.

Somebody is going to ask where to find the indexes to deeds. You are concerned with Connecticut. There are two ways of doing it just as there were with court records. One is to employ a researcher to look up the deed indexes in that particular county seat. The alternative is to order on loan from Salt Lake City, via the Wichita Genealogical Branch Mormon Library, a microfilm copy of those indexes. You get the microfilm copy for 75¢ for two weeks and you have time to look it over at that library. You cannot take it out of the library. Once you find your ancestor's name on the deed index, all you are going to find is a certain book and a certain page listed. That means in Book 12, Page 46, there is that deed referred to in the index. You then write to the clerk or the recorder of deeds, whatever he may be called in that county, and ask for a photostat copy, uncertified copy, of that particular deed, and when you get it back you may find pay dirt of descriptions of these parties. Don't ask the clerk to tell you what is in the deed; they are too busy and also they want your dollar per page to pay the overhead.

Another way to go at this is to write to the abstract company in the particular county involved. Each county seat, each one of our 3,000 counties in the country today, has an abstract of title company. These abstract companies specialize, all they do is take copies of the records from the recorded of deeds and probate court offices and keep those copies in their files. Then, when an attorney or real estate broker asks for a history of a piece of land, they can reconstruct the history of that piece of land from the time it belonged to the Indians, down to date. They show every transaction pertaining to this piece of land which they put up in an 8½ x 14 folder, bound together, maybe 400 pages. They are expensive, $4.50 per entry and land in this area may have 300 entries.

All you wanted to know is if John Jones, your ancestor, ever owned any land in that county during a certain time period. If the courthouse has burned. or you don't want to pay a researcher to do it, you can write the abstract company. Tell them you are a genealogist and they will know what you want and will send you the book and page of the record you want or maybe they can even send you the photocopies. Ask them their prices before you order. They are not in this business as the clerk of the court as a public courtesy. They are in this for money and they will charge you so much per hour to look or so much per entry. Be ye not dismayed if you pay them $10 and they don't find anything. It is better to pay them $10 than to pay a professional $50 and get the same answer.

The last method, of course, is by personal search. Don't make the mistake that I mentioned before of failing to search all possible land records. So many people go in time after time and look for the deed indexes alone. You have to look for the sheriff sales, the mortgage records, the tax lists, such things as lis pendents (Latin for litigation pending). When there was a lawsuit over a piece of land, the attorney for the person who was trying to claim the land slapped on the public record, a lis pendens. He paid the recorder of deeds $1.25 to place on public record a document which says, "Know all ye men that John Doe claims an interest in Section 2 by reason of a pending lawsuit between John Jones and Henry Smith." It is a red flag to put everyone on notice that if you buy this land or deal with it or lend money against it, you deal at your own peril because the land may be tied up in litigation. A favorite trick when Mary sues John for divorce is to slap on a lis pendens so John can't go out and say she is not going to do that to me and sell the family homestead out from under her eyes. She slaps on a notice that there is litigation pending between John and Mary and no one can buy the house from John unless they talk to Mary first.

You will find that there are many published volumes, particularly in the last ten or fifteen years, of old land deeds. There is a crying demand for these by libraries and archival institutions; and people more and more are going into the original deed indexes and either publishing an index of the grantors and the grantees; or they are going one step better and publishing an abstract, a summary, of the original deeds themselves. Many of you subscribe to the Tri-State Trader, Knightstown, Indiana, $7.00 a year. I think it is the best genealogical publication, next to The Treesearcher, that there is. It comes out once a week and is primarily an auction, an antique paper, 40 pages and the last three pages of every issue are devoted to genealogy, a gold mine. Everything I have told you today, I would dare say, has occurred within the last three years in the columns of the Tri-State Trader.

Willard Heiss, of Quaker fame, was the columnist there for years, but the editor of the Tri-State Trader is a young chap named Tom Mayhill, a dedicated genealogist. He lives in Indiana, but he went into Pennsylvania and has published Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, Deed Abstracts and Oaths of Allegiance. This 1973 revision of an earlier book covers the period 1729 to about 1770, Deed Books "A" through "M" and includes the adjoining landowners and witnesses, with a complete index.

Some indexer has indexed the probate records of New Castle, Delaware. Volume 2 covers a seventeen year period, 1681 to 1699, a gold mine, if you are looking in Delaware. There are many more volumes, but this shows you how you can find things. An example, a deed from Hartman Hayman (?) to Barbara Mars Lander, married, dated August 12, 1684, and that deed was acknowledged in court. Why do they enter something like this? In those days there were no notary publics. When you wanted to acknowledge an instrument, swear that it was your own handwriting, in your own hand, you went before the judge and the judge did not sign the deed as having witnessed your acknowledgment, but the judge ordered that that deed be placed of public record. That was the same as the judge kissing it with approval and saying, put it on record, I know it is true, I saw him sign it.

Now mixed up with all of this, you are going to find such things as road sitings, an occasional court case, adoptions, any kind of mish mash, because early clerks were not too assiduous in keeping their records in the right book. So, a personal trip to the county seat is often more advantageous than if you employ somebody else to do it for you.

THE FINE POINTS OF GENEALOGICAL CORRESPONDENCE

Genealogical correspondence is an extremely interesting topic and we could go on for hours! First, you have done all you can at home. You have exhausted all of your local resources and then you have to go afield and find help elsewhere. How can you find it best with a minimal amount of time and effort and money and not run fast without running smart at the same time? There are several ways. And these are not exclusive, there are many more than these, perhaps. First, I hope you are all aware of The Genealogical Helper, now a bi-monthly, published by The Everton Publishers, Logan, Utah. It is primarily a query volume, replete with queries of ... will exchange data on John Jones, Virginia, 1860, etc., at the same time, in two issues a year, March and September, they issue a directory of genealogists. There is an index to all of the people who advertise in that particular issue as wanting to exchange information or wanting information on particular lines. They index those querists by their own surname and they also index them by the county where they reside.

If you are looking for somebody to help you in Timbuktu, Georgia, look up in the March or September issue of The Genealogical Helper under Georgia and Timbuktu County and you will find listed the numbers of the queries in that issue of all the people who live in that county. That doesn't say that that person will be interested in helping you; you just know that there is a brother or sister genealogist in that county. Why not write to that person and say I have found your name in The Genealogical Helper. You did not advertise as being willing to help, but would you care to look up this or that for me for which I will remunerate you. Offer to pay them. Often they will do it for free because they are brother genealogists. Often they will write back and say my fees are $10 an hour, forget it, go on to the next prospect. You don't have to use their services, but it is one way of finding someone in the local area. Particularly is this good if you are searching in a county where there is no record searcher, where there is no known person who can help you and where the county clerks in the public offices are rather uncooperative.

If you want a professional genealogist, there are two ways of finding the real pro, a good one, an acknowledged one, one who has passed the exam and knows what they are about and dry behind the ears. First, there is the Board for Certification of Genealogists, 1307 New Hampshire Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C., which certifies certified genealogists (CG) and genealogical record searchers (GRS). Mrs. Leo Gamble, a KGS member is a GRS. She took a stiff exam and submitted an application to qualify; they have "kissed her with approval" and said this woman knows what she is about; and is acknowledged by this board as being competent and capable of searching records in any area of the country. Now, she has a specialty, there are areas in which she is more familiar, but at least she is qualified to search any area, because basically genealogical search is the same anywhere you go. If you write the organization in Washington, they will send you a list of all the people who have been certified by them, a free list of about 40 pages, and you can pick and choose the person you want for the area concerned.

You can get the same thing in a little different flavor by writing to the Genealogical Society in Salt Lake City. They have an accreditation program whereby they qualify a person as an accredited genealogist.

The third method is one with which I have had excellent luck. Everyone who has tried it glows with enthusiasm. It is the student approach. It is a money saver. If you find you can't get the records yourself, through your available means, it never hurts to write to the history department of the XYZ High School at the particular location you are concerned with and ask if they can refer you to a history student who is interested in doing some research on a particular family in their area. Do not mention that you are a genealogist, you may get no answer. Call yourself maybe a biographer of biographical historian and that will trigger their enthusiasm to help you out. More often than not, you will get an answer from the teacher. Teachers are underpaid and they like to moonlight to pick up extra cash. The teacher may do the work for you, so you may get top dog treatment.

If you are concerned with a town where there is a college, I would suggest that you write to the college history department. You will get a senior student at college who will be more knowledgeable than a high school student. There are a few problems to watch out for with this. Namely, you must be sure to specify with particularity to the student exactly what you want, so he won't run hog-wild in getting a short course in genealogy at your expense. You want particular records searched for certain things and you have to tell him so.

When you do write to a local researcher, whether he be a theacher, student, professional or genealogist, there are certain things that you should be sure to send: A summary of everything you have, arranged orderly. Summarize what you know on one sheet. List the sources you have searched. Most importantly, be sure to itemize your negative findings — what volumes you have searched with negative results. Be sure to specify exactly what you want. Don't say you are trying to find the parents of John Doe. Tell them something like this ... From all I know, and from the enclosed summary, I presume that John Doe lived in a certain county about a certain time. Tell them why you think so, then ask them to please check the deed indexes, check the probate records and check this and check that to see if they can find any record of this particular person. Do not restrict your search to one particular person. If you are looking for George Dockstader, tell them to let you have a record of all the George Dockstaders they find. No doubt, as you progress along that family, you are going to tie all these Dockstaders in together and, if you have a record of what they found, it is going to enable you to more quickly plot the whole family.

It is very important for you to ask the searcher to note for you any discrepancies they find in the records. One professional reported he had searched the court records in a certain county and found nothing. What the darn researcher forgot to say was that we are missing the record book for 1803 to 1805 and that was the very time period for which they were concerned. If the searcher had said, I have found nothing after searching from 1800 to 1820, but I note the record book for 1803 to 1805 was burned or destroyed, will then that would clue you in that you have to look elsewhere for that particular time period. A good professional will do this of his own volition, but don't take it for granted that every professional is a good professional. Ask them specifically for this particular notation.

Over the years, I have collected some of what you might call tried and true clichés. Some never fail techniques with which I have had good luck or others have told me about and some are rather bold and some are downright bodacious. At times, when all else fails, they will produce the ultimate that you are looking for. For instance, I mentioned before, don't say you are a genealogist. That is a red flag. Say you are working on a historical biography of John Smith or say you are a historical biographer. That saves them from saying that is one of those kooks, we won't answer that one.

How many times have you gotten a letter saying, I understand that you know something about the Smiths? You wonder how they got your name. So come on, be honest about it, say John Doe of Cleveland wrote me and told me that you were known to be knowledgeable on the Smith family. Don't hesitate in telling them how you learned about them and it satisfies that person's curiosity. Don't say in your letter that you are a descendant of John Smith five generations back. Better yet, enclose in the same letter a one page summary of your line of descent; or you can do it by a five generation lineage chart; or you can do it by listing successive marriages right straight down; any number of ways of doing it, but it shows your line of descent. Put it on a separate sheet of paper so the addressee has it for a quick reference and at the same time, if you do enough correspondence, you can have that sheet mimeographed or make carbon copies of it and enclose with other letters and save having to type the whole thing over again.

Never say in a letter, I want this or I want that. That is the gimme. It would be a tremendous help to me if I could find that or this and you might possible add, I would be glad to send you any information I have on this family in a certain period, etc. Remember, always offer to exchange something in return for what you are asking. You get much more cooperation. Too demanding a tone or a lack of reciprocity rarely produces results. I have found this extremely helpful. Don't say I look forward to hearing from you or I hope to hear from you soon. That lets the addressee, the recipient, put the letter aside, saying, I will get to that when I have time. I always add this .. I hope to hear from you by February 18, because I am working a good part of that day on the Smith family. I give them a deadline in a nice tactful way and they will then put that letter on top of the pile and perhaps say, I am going to write him tomorrow because I want to get this information to him before February 18th.

One time, I made the mistake of saying I would be in Los Angeles on March 25th and would call at that time. I should have offered to exchange data and not mentioned that I was going to be in Los Angeles on March 25th. Let them send me what they would; what they cared to exchange or trade and, if I had further questions, quiz them over the telephone on March 25th. These little psychological factors can often be the difference between getting what you want and getting nothing.

Never, never, and I learned this the hard way many times, never enclose cash, particularly to clerks, recorders, and public officers. It is too tempting for the clerk to put that money in his pocket and put the letter aside. Always send a check. When that check is cashed and comes back to you, you have proof that they received your two dollars and if they don't answer you within a month, you can say, I note that you cashed my check on a certain day so that is a gentle gibe to get them to produce what you asked for.

Try to avoid common clichés;"yours of the eighth has been received." Make your letter sound interesting, like I noted in your letter of the eighth that you mentioned so and so, but don't get too wrapped up in making your letter chatty. I fond that you get much more courteous answers if you retain a certain formality; a little cool aloofness establishes a professional attitude. Unfortunately, some of the people with whom we correspond want to be pen pals. If you start off and keep on a formal basis, you can avoid this pen pal business.

What do you do when you have written letters to a person who has invaluable information you need and you get no answer? These techniques are only for those people whom you know have the information. You have heard from different sources that they have the whole line, but they just have not taken the time to answer you. I have sometimes written a letter: Dear Mrs. Smith ... Could we make this write Colin James week (I put write Colin James week in quotes)? That sometimes shames the person into writing. And I have used this, it is kind of funny, but it has brought results. Dear Mrs. Smith ... You have my March 10th letter and then in quotes, "Hope springs eternal from the human breast."

Don't ever enclose a SASE, a self-addressed, stamped envelope, without putting on the letter itself, down at the lower left-hand corner, Enclosed SASE. Often people will put the envelope in one pile and the letter in another pile and they will think, when they get to the letter, why this guy never sent postage so I won't answer his letter. So, if you put in the corner Enclosed SASE, they will know they have misplaced your envelope. These little things often count up.

Never enclose a family group sheet without partially filling it in. You have an excellent form of that type that you are selling here today. Fill in at least the husband's name or the wife's name because that triggers the person to whom you are writing to fill in the rest of the form. Also, cross out the things that you know are not pertinent, like if the person is living, cross out the line that says died. It makes things look easier for them. There are certain times of the year when it is not advisable to write another genealogist. Never write between November 15th and January 1st, because they are getting geared up for action for Thanksgiving and Christmas. Genealogy comes to a slow halt during that time. If I write letters during that lull, I date them January first and put them in a pile to be mailed on January first. Never write and expect an answer from someone around April 15th. Never write to a young family with children from about May 15th to June 15th. You know why, school is about out and they are dreading the summer. They are getting ready for that onslaught of summer vacations and they don't want to answer genealogy. I have found, however, that genealogy letters written during the summertime often produce as good results as they do in the wintertime.

AGAIN, anyone who signs her name as Mrs. John Doe should be tarred and feathered. Don't show your ignorance by signing your name Mrs. John Doe; sign your letter Helen Doe, but if you must, put underneath it Mrs. John Doe in your own handwriting. Give the recipient the courtesy of telling him that.

We all make this mistake in an endeavor to save time; we write to a public official and ask for too much. A woman mentioned to me today that she had asked for four records from a clerk of a court back East and never had an answer. The reason she didn't get an answer was because she asked for four records. Make it short and simple. Ask for one record; test the water for temperature first. If you find you have luck, then ask for the second record, spaced a few weeks apart. The same thing applies to correspondence with an individual. You know that Aunt Lucy has done a lot of work on this family. Don't write and ask her to let you have all she knows on this family or answer the following 20 questions. It will bore her. Ease into it gradually. Ask a question first like where is your father buried and get her confidence and enthusiasm geared up and then ask the important questions later. Establish the rapport with her first. Another thing, don't ask her questions that require answers in the text of the letter, say could I bother you to answer the enclosed questions and then on a separate sheet of paper write out your two or three questions. Where did Lucille die? Where is Lucille buried? Then leave a space after each question for them to answer. It makes it much easier for them to jot down the desired answer and they will do it faster and more enthusiastically.

There are techniques on genealogical correspondence that are really not in Emily Post and weren't taught us in high school. I can recommend nothing better than Dr. John F. Vallentine's book, "Handbook For Genealogical Correspondence." You have the first edition in your library. A revised edition came out a few months ago, which somewhat duplicates the information in Noel C. Stevenson's "Search and Research" of the names of the courts to which to write, but it contains a good many other tips, too.

I cannot recommend highly enough the tips given by Norman E. Wright in "Building an American Pedigree." He has four appendixes to this volume which are superb and unknown anywhere else. He had his senior genealogical students find out from the various vital records, repositories in each state, how much they charge for a birth, death or marriage certificate; whether or not they would return your money if they made a search and did not find the records you want. Some states will make a search and charge you a search fee, even though they don't find what you want and return your letter saying nothing found and keep your two dollars. He notes this on each state and this is the only place in print where that is given. Also in this summary, he sets forth for each state whether that state will search a general time period for the records you want. You know that Lucille Jones died in Florida between 1850 and 1870. You don't know the exact year. In many cases, if you write to state repositories and ask for a death certificate for Lucille Smith, they will write back saying they cannot process your inquiry until you give a more definite date. Many states may search up to a 20 year time period without an additional charge. Other states will not search more than ten years, without charging you a search fee all over again, so this guide lets you know what those fees are and various time limits.

Norman Wright, also has an interesting appendix, if you are interested in photography, called the "kiss system" ... Keep it sweet and simple, a procedure which, I think, costs less than $50.00 for the equipment to make your own genealogical expedition to county courthouses. Between these three volumes, Norman Wright's "Building an American Pedigree," Noel Stevenson's "Search and Research," and Dr. John Vallentine's "Handbook For Genealogical Correspondence," there is nothing more in print that gives better tips for genealogical correspondence and I have been looking for good articles for 15 years.

CHASING MY ANCESTORS

I have a hobby I really enjoy.
Its actually become my favorite toy.
Chasing my ancestors round and round, and some of them chose not to be found.

I look here, I look there, I look everywhere,
Searching and researching without a care,
Checking each name from date to date,
From county to county and state to state.

From attic to cellar, cemeteres, too,
Censuses, old Bibles, so much to do
I'll never get through, their lives to unfold,
It's just like a story waiting to be told.

If you need something to do with your time
Try this hobby, I'm sure you will find
It's interesting, fascinating and lots of fun,
And something you can leave to that Great-Grandson.

Bonnie Walden, 1981

SPIES OF THE CIVIL WAR

Many Northerners opposed the war even when the Union war effort was at its peak. Lincoln's political enemies, Southern sympatnizers, textile mill owners, and others who wanted an uninterrupted flow of cotton, hampered the government in numerous ways. Some resorted to violence and sabatage. There was a secret organization whose membership was sworn to overthrow Lincoln and negotiate a peace with the South, and went so far as to wreck troop trains and call on soldiers to desert. This organization was called the Knights of the Golden Circle, and were also known as the Copperheads.

The Copperheads waged a secretive underground war against the Lincoln government. Union agents infiltrated the ranks of the Copperheads and the hidden struggle raged — an endless battle of spy against counterspy, of assissination, arson, and ambush. Led by Lafayette C. Baker, head of the Secret Service, the Union searched out the country's hidden enemies.

In the South there was a similar struggle against Confederate sympathizers. The Heroes of America was a secret society made up of Unionists in the South who pledged to destroy the Confederacy, and it sought to accomplish this by murder, treachery, and deceit.

Both sides practiced espionage and many men served on both sides as spies. Tim Webster, a Northerner, succeeded in gaining President Davis' friendship even while sending military information to McClellan. Webster was later exposed and hung.

A Confederate, Tom Hines, had planed to burn New York City and almost carried it out. Another of his plots was to free thousands of Confederate prisoners held in Camp Douglas, Illinois, near Chicago. He would have succeeded but Felix Stidges whom he thought was his trusted aid, was really a Union counterspy.

Rose O'Neal Greenhow, a Confederate spy, had been queen of Washington society in the Buchanan administration, and her intimacy with the President the subject of gossip. She was related to Stephen A. Douglas by marriage and when John Calhoun died, she heard Calhoun's prediction of the war. Calhoun's predictions caused her to become a spy immediately after the war started.

She gave the Confederates acurate information about the Union Army movements before the Battle of Bull Run. The message telling General Beauregard that the Union troops were marching was sent through the lines rolled in the hairdo of Betty Duvall, one of Greenhow's agents. After passing through the lines with some difficulty, she unrolled her hair before a Confederate general and gave him the important message. A few days later Mrs. Greenhow added details and predicted the route that General McDowell's men would follow. She did much to help the South win the first battle.

Mrs. Greenhow sometimes boasted of her achievements as a spy. This may have been the reason why the Federal agent, Allen Pinkerton, found out about her. He found evidence that proved she was a spy and she was placed in the Old Capitol Prison. Even while Mrs. Greenhow was in prison she remained an active spy during her four month stay.

For some reason she wanted to frame Senator Henry Wilson of Massachusetts as an accomplice. She allowed Federal officials to find love letters from Wilson, which were forgeries. When Mrs. Greenhow was released from prison she went to Richmond, and was given $2,500 by the Confederate Secret Service to operate as an agent in Europe. She spent much of the time there writing and publishing her memoirs, which were successful as Confederate propaganda.

Mrs. Greenhow drowned in 1864 while trying to make it to shore in a small boat from a blockade-runner, at the end of a voyage from England. She was carring money to the Confederate government which she had raised in England.

The most famous of the feminine Confederate spies was Belle Boyd. At the age of 17 she murdered a Federal soldier who was raising a United States flag over her home in Martinsburg, Virginia. She was quickly arrested and imprisoned. She repeatedly risked her life to provide Turner Ashby and Stonewall Jackson with vital information which helped them win the Shenandoah Valley Campaing of 1862. Miss Boyd ran a gantlet of Federal fire at Front Royal, Virginia, in May 1862, to tell Jackson that the twon was lightly held and to urge a swift advance.

Romance led Belle into and out of trouble. One sweetheart, C.W.D. Smitley a West Virginia cavalrymen, betrayed her and she was imprisioned in the Old Capitol Prison. She made history there by furiously assailing the Federal detective chief, Lafayette Baker, when he urged her to sign a loyalty oath to the Union. "I hope that when I commence that oath, my tongue may cleave to the roof of my mouth. If I ever sign one line to show allegiance, I hope my arm falls paralyzed to my side ... Get out! I'm so disgusted I can't endure your presence any longer."

She was later released from prison, but while she was there she lived like a queen. She read, fashionable magazines and ate fine foods brought to her by sympathizers.

In May 1864, Belle was trapped on a blockade-runner captured by a Federal ship. She was carrying papers to England fro Jefferson Davis when she was captured. Belle was taken to Boston but was held there only for a short time. A young ensign on the Federal ship fell in love with her and he proposed to her. She persuaded him to become a Confederate spy, and when he was discovered and dismissed from the United States Navy she sailed to England. The ex-ensign, Sam Hardinge, followed after her and they were married in London.

A Union spy, Miss S. Emma E. Edwards, a young Canadian nurse who was so skilled as a rider and marksman that she forged as a hunter and provided meat for her patients? Besides these skills she was also an impersonator. During the fighting around Yorktown, early in 1862, she disguised herself as a Negro man, and worked for several days behind Confederate lines. Emma brought back detailed information on Southern defenses and plans, and she discovered a counterspy.

During the Seven Days Battle she disguised herself as a soldier, Frank Thompson, and was an orderly to General Phil Kearny. In Pope's campaign in Northern Virginia she made three visits into enemy lines. She penetrated the Confederate headquarters and learned many secrets.

Emma Edmonds also did other things for the Union. After the battle of Antietam she was riding with a cavalry company and was wounded when the Confederates overwhelmed the column. At Fredericksburg, which was under heavy fire much of the day, she served as an aid to General Hancock. While serving with the Western armies, she wounded a Confederate captain who was trying to get her to join the Confederate Army. After this incident Emma decided the war was too dangerous and left the field. She then became a detective for the Union in St. Louis which was full of Confederate spies. While in St. Louis she was responsible for spotting many of their activities.

Charles Heidsick, another Confederate spy, carried information for the Confederates through enemy lines. Before the war he collected accounts for his firm. But when the war came and he was caught in New Orleans, he turned to more exciting work. He worked on several Mississippi steamers disguised as a bartender and carried information through the lines for the Confederacy. General Butler caught him and Heidsick was almost hung.

Dr. William T. Passmore, also a Confederate spy, was used by Robert E. Lee in 1862. He dressed in rags and pretended to be a half-wit, and wandered through the camps of General Burnside selling produce from a cart. General Burnside gave him a pass for daily entry into Federal lines and talked freely in front of the doctor at headquarters. Passmore is credited for getting information which enabled Lee to make plans leading to victory at Fredericksburg.

Antonia Ford from Fairfax, Virginia is also said to have helped the Confederates win the first battle at Bull Run, with information she picked up behind Union lines. Little is known about how she operated. General J.E.B. Stuart did give her a commission in October 1861: "Know ye: that reposing special confidence in the patriatism, fidelity and ability of Miss Antonia Ford, I, James E. B. Stuart by virtue of the power vested in me, as Brigadier General in the Provisional Army of the Confederate States of America, do hearby appoint and commission her honorary aide-de-camp, to rank as such from this date. She will be obeyed, respected and admired by all the lovers of a noble nature."

Almost two years later, Colonel John S. Mosby, used Antonia as a spy. With her help he was able to abduct General E. H. Stoughton from his own headquarters, several other Federal officers, and eighty-five horses, without firing a shot.

This incident sent Lafaytte Baker, the Federal detective, into action. He sent a woman agent to Fairfax, posing as a Southern sympathizer. The two women became friendly and Antonia revealed her commission from Stuart and told her other secrets. Baker took her prisoner and jailed her in Washington.

Antonia was engaged to Major Joe Willard of the Union Army. He managed to get a transfer from the field to the prison department in Washington so he could be near Antonia. He got Antonia to sign a loyalty oath to the Union in 1863. In return for her pledge to give up spying for the Confederacy, Joe Willard resigned from the U. S. Army and they were married.

In addition to such spies and agents were the unknown ordinary people, both Yankee and Rebel, who risked their lives passing on information or carrying messages between the lines. They numbered in the thousands, these "little" people, and were perhaps braver than most decorated soldiers. No flags flew for them, no bands played. If captured, the death sentence was almost assured, for military justice offered only a hangman's noose to spies.

PEDIGREE CHARTS:

The Society publishes Pedigree Charts, without charge, for members and for nonmembers. This is one method by which we hope to help others with their research. You may find a name or date you are looking for, or you may have information which will help others. A Pedigree Chart with missing information is just another form of a query.

When we receive the information for your pedigree chart we prepare a six-generation, 11 x 17-inch master chart and have this reduced to an 8½ x 11-inch chart during printing. Pedigrees which cover six generations, or less, require only one chart; longer pedigrees will require continuation charts. You may order ten or more copies of your pedigree for 5¢ per sheet prior to publication in our Quarterly. Reprints after publication will cost 15¢ per sheet. These prices do not include postage.

Let us know how many copies you need and we will let you know the total cost including the postage. Do you need copies for your children? grandchildren? relatives? ??

The following information was provided by Janice Kitchens Hagan (Mrs. William R. Hagan), [redacted].

Most of the AYCOCKS of Wilkinson County, Georgia are buried at Ramah Church, to the right of the church. The graves of Barden and Elender AYCOCK, and Sarah SAVAGE, are large flat slabs with the names and dates scratched into the cement. Unfortunately, this cement is badly flaking and will soon be illegible if it isn't already. But the three slabs are together near the other AYCOCK graves, so they're still easy to locate.

The Benjamin Jasper AYCOCK cemetery is off Georgia 57E, 3.5 miles from Ramah Church on the second dirt road on the left one mile from the County Maintained by-pass. Go down the dirt road 0.4 mile to a pine woods on the left. Walk along the heavy underbrush to your left for about 30-35 yards and bear left. The graves are surrounded by heavy underbrush on two sides with a double fenced grave area behind the headstones. Benjamin Jasper's is the last grave in the row, with a Masonic marker — 20 Nov. 1830 to 6 Apr. 1915. Martha Ann KIRKPATRICK (or Witt) AYCOCK is buried in the middle — 3 Nov.1835 to 16 Apr. 1915. Their son James Irwin AYCOCK has the near grave — 26 Nov.1858 to 26 Jul.1902. James's wife Molly Newby AYCOCK SANDERS is buried at Ramah Church.

SOMETHING NEW!

FAMILY RESEARCH RECORDS:

Mr. R. Dean FOWLER, [redacted], has sent me some copies of his family research record, including some biographical material. This gave me an idea — why not publish these in our Quarterly? Seems like a good method for passing on information which someone else might be looking for and, at the same time, someone might have some information which would be of help to Mr. Fowler. Let me know if you think this might be a worthwhile addition to our Quarterly. Ed.

If we do decide to publish FAMILY RESEARCH RECORDS from our members I will need to have readable copies from which to work. Typewritten copies are the best, but these are not possible in all cases. The next best thing is a hand-printed record. Absolutely no copies written in longhand! It is easier to decipher a record which is hand-printed by using all block letters than it is to decipher one which is printed with upper and lower case letters, nevertheless, if your's is already printed I will have a go at it. If you are working on a new record I highly recommend that you use BLOCK LETTERS throughout. As an example: This is upper and lower case letters.

THIS IS BLOCK LETTERS.

In general, the quality of documentation is sadly lacking on most genealogical records. We need to upgrade our documentation. A good guide to follow is CITE YOUR SOURCES by Richard S. Lackey (copies available from the Editor). If we decide to print FAMILY RESEARCH RECORDS in our Quarterly please check your documentation before sending in your work.

Speaking of documentation, Federal Census records are both a boon and a bane for genealogists. In many cases I think we read too much into a census record. We should remember that the primary value of a census record is to show that a person resided in a particular place at the time the census was taken. And that is about all it is good for! However, if you MUST cite a census record please give the full identification and not just "1860 Census, Georgia."

FAMILY HISTORY:

The following articles are reprinted from THE GOSPEL MESSENGER, No. 5, Vol. 9, Butler, Georgia, May 1887.

BIOGRAPHICAL
Elder John Blackstone

Elder John Blackstone was born in Virginia in 1780, on what is called "Old Christmas Day." Of several children he was the youngest, and never saw his father, who fell in battle near the close of the Revolutionary war. From what the writer has heard him say, he was quite a rude boy, and as his mother could not support the family nor manage him very well, she bound him out to a relative. As he was considered a leader in mischief among the boys, he received many hard cuffs and knocks for his unruly conduct, and never attended school but about three weeks in his life.

By some means unknown to the writer, after growing up he went to St. Augustine, Fla., and afterwards to Brunswick, Ga., and for a time was in the military service at St. Mary's. The next account we have of him he was in Augusta, Ga., where he became acquainted with and married Miss Catherine Harvey, about the year 1799. At what time he was received into the church among the Baptist I do not know, but soon after he joined the church, in 1804, his mind become much weighted with preaching the gospel. But such was his feeling sense of unworthiness and entire unfitness for such a sacred calling, that he shrank from it and even said he could not, and would not do it. Thinking to get rid of such impressions of mind, he took his little family and moved from Georgia to East Tennessee, but much to his distress and surprise, the impression increased upon him, even while he was vainly striving to suppress and keep it hid from his brethren and most intimate friends. But after struggling along in this state of rebellion for near three years in Tennessee, it pleased God to sorely afflict him till he was reduced to a mere skeleton, and physicians, family and friends all gave him up to die. And such were the trying scenes through which he passed in this sore affliction, and in fact, during the three years of his stay in Tennessee, that some things would seem so incredible he has often been heard to say that he did not like to talk about them to others, lest they should think it a mere visionary thing, or as an idle tale, and thereby shake their confidence in his veracity. He has told me that he believed he was as miserable and as completely enveloped in darkness the greater part of the last year he remained in Tennessee, as Jonah was while in the whale's belly. And when he was brought to the point to feel that he must preach or die, he took his family and returned to Columbia county, Ga., near Augusta, to the same church of which he had been a member before he left Georgia. From the best information I now have, I think the name of the church was Grove. At this church he preached his first sermon. How long he had been preaching before his ordination was called for is not known. It is true his credentials are in my possession, but by some oversight they are not dated. Elders Abraham Marshall, H. Holcomb and Isaac Justis are the names of the presbytery who officiated at his ordination at Grove Church. From about 1808 up to 1821, his time appears to have been mostly employed in preaching in the counties of Columbia, Jefferson, Warren and Burke, in Georgia. In 1822 he moved to Crawford county, Ga., and was soon chosen as one of a committee to organize the county and locate the county site at Knoxville, which was named by him. His good sense, quick perception, honesty and integrity soon won for him the confidence and esteem of all who knew him and placed him in the front rank as a representative man of his county.

He was a member of the first Inferior Court organized in Crawford county, as the records will show, and at the first election ever held in the county for Representatives to the Legislature or General Assembly, he was chosen by the people as their Senator, and so well and faithfully did he represent the interests of his constituents, and discharge the duties of the responsible trust committed to him, that he was re-elected annually for nine successive years.

But while Elder Blackstone was faithful to the best interests of his State and county in the Legislative department, he was faithful also to his obligations and duties as a gospel minister. He assisted in organizing several churches, to wit: Mt.Paran, Salem, Mt.Carmel, Providence, Abilene and Union; also Old Mt.Pisgah, in Monroe or Bibb, now known as Calvary. He was present and assisted in organizing the Echeconnee Association, the first session of which was held at Mt.Paran, and I think he was Moderator. This was about 1825.

[But of the many striking incidents in the life of this remarkable man, to the honor of his memory let it be written, that of all the Baptist ministers of his day, he was one of the very first to discover the corruption introduced in Baptist churches and Associations by "vain philosophy and the cunning craftiness of men" as manifested in the "Modern Missionary Institutions," which he regarded as being after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ. — Col., ii., 8. As a faithful watchman, he sounded the alarm, and told the churches what would be the result. He boldly met and showed the corrupt tendency of the Modern Missionary Institutions and Inventions, and denounced them as unscriptural innovations which would corrupt and divide the Baptist denomination. — M.]

But the strange and seemingly unaccountable part of his history, of which he seldom wished to speak, is about this: I have heard my grandmother say that during the greater part of their stay the last year in Tennessee, grandfather was very sick for several months, and it was thought by all who saw him he would surely die. He was reduced to a mere skeleton, and for three days and nights he lay with his eyes apparently fixed on some object above him, kicking with one foot and snapping his fingers, incessantly repeating the words, "Now I have it; now I have it." During these three days and nights he took no nourishment whatever, and the last night of the three, after all the family and friends had retired, grandmother dropped into a sleep on the bed by his side, and when she awoke, about light in the morning, she heard some one call out at the door, and rising hastily to see who was there, to her great surprise, grandfather was standing out in the yard holding to a post. But what was to her still more astonishing, the door was fastened on the inside of the house, just as she had left it on retiring to bed. Grandmother said she knew assuredly that he was out of the house, but how or when he got out she could not tell, for he had not walked a step for some time before this, and now, when found out of the house in that strange and unaccountable manner, he had to be carried into the house with all the care which would have been needful for a little, helpless infant. In speaking to the family and friends about this strange affair, he contended that he had been back to Georgia.

Butler, GA., March 16, 1885. Z. A. Fowler.

In addition to what Brother Fowler has written above, we deem it proper to say that Elder Blackstone was a very remarkable man. We first met him in September 1843, when the Beulah Association was held with the church at Concord, Tallapoosa county, Ala. He had then been serving that Association as Moderator for about fourteen years, or from the time it was first organized. For many years he had then been living in Chambers county, Ala., about eight miles west of La Fayette, and was a member and pastor of the church at Macedonia, and in fact, we think he was in the constitution of that church. In July, 1845, he was one of the five Elders who officiated in our ordination to the ministry, and in a few months afterwards he resigned the pastoral charge of the church at Macedonia, and subsequently moved away to Coosa county, Ala. The church being thus left destitute of any pastor, we were unanimously chosen, and in much weakness, fear and trembling accepted the call, though but a youth as a church member or as a minister.

FAMILY HISTORY:

From this date on for six or seven years we met occasionally with Elder Blackstone, and a few times took short tours of preaching with him. As a gospel minister Elder Blackstone was wonderfully blessed with a clear knowledge of all the cardinal points of the doctrine of salvation by grace. He had great variety in preaching, and no matter how often one might hear him, he had something interesting that you had not heard from him before. He expounded his text in such system, order and competness, and in such a calm and forcible manner as to leave the attentive hearer with the whole body of it in his mind for many days to come. He was a natural, calm and easy speaker; his articulation was clear and distinct, and though he knew nothing of grammatical rules, he seldom made a blunder in this respect.

Elder Blackstone had great conversational powers. Having utilized nearly everything that he had seen and heard so as to make it yield some practical good to himself or others, his fund of general information, and his easy, chaste manner of conversation, made him one of the most agreeable and interesting fireside companions to old or young. But his work on earth is done. He fought a good fight. He kept the faith — and now rests with Jesus. He departed this life at Knoxville, GA., 28th June, 1859. — M.

The following editorial by our publisher Sam McDowell, appeared in the October 1981 issue of Kentucky Pioneer Genealogy and Records. It is a timely reply to comments made by the Editor of the National Genealogical Society Quarterly in the September 1981 issue of the Quarterly. Reprinted with permission of Sam McDowell, McDowell Publications, Inc., [redacted]

The great bulk of genealogical research and publication today is accomplished by amateurs of varying goals, qualifications and resources. Their products, for the most part, also vary in standards of format, documentation, and other "accepted" parameters. However, they almost always meet the goals of the compilers and are usually more than acceptable to the reader. These amateurs should be applauded and encouraged and that is the purpose of this editorial.

The September 1981 issue of the National Genealogical Society Quarterly carried two scathing editorials by George Ely Russell, C.G., F.A.S.G. on the . . . "cavalier disregard of established standard forms and practices" and the . . . "glut of unreliable and nonconforming product and service offerings." He recommends that "nonstandard work need not and should not be accepted, justified, or excused."

The National Genealogical Society would apparently dictate to the great scrawling mass of genealogists, both professional and amateur, just how to research, organize and publish the results of their efforts. They might be shocked to learn that a few of those people have never heard of the National Genealogical Society. It appears that they would define the standards and identify the individuals who have the talents to apply them. Perhaps they should come down from their ivory tower and learn that most genealogy is done for enjoyment and that scholarly rules and regulations do not usually contribute to the enjoyment?

Most individuals and groups who publish family histories and genealogical source records lack the resources for producing "scholarly" works. They are constantly being discouraged by groups or individuals who pick their work to pieces, usually concentrating on the bad, and disregarding the good. This is frequently done by "scholarly" book reviewers.

A good example can be found in the October, 1981 issue of Genealogy by Willard Heiss. Genealogy is a publication of the family history section of the Indiana Historical Society. On page 6, Quaker Records of the Miami Valley of Ohio by Eileen Davis and Judith Ireton is caustically reviewed. The review begins, "Here is another book of doubtful value." (The reason it says "another book" is apparently that the review immediately preceding this one is also unnecessarily caustic.) The first line sets the tone for the entire review which attempts to emasculate this work. Most books are not sent in for review in the hope that a good letter grade will be achieved. Nor are most authors merely searching for praise. They are sent in so that readers of such material will be apprised of their content and their availability. In exchange, the reviewing agency acquires a book for their library.

We submitted a book for review but that is not the source of my dissatisfaction. I am embarrassed that I submitted two of my valued clients to such rude treatment. We will not knowingly subject our clients to such unnecessary abuse.

Please, if you are compiling a publication or are just thinking about it, don't be discouraged by individuals or groups who set themselves up as criterions of what is good and right. Do the very best you can but do keep on keeping on. They are your ancestors and the material will be treasured by your descendants. If you try to meet all of the requirements of the self-appointed criterions you will never get your book published. In the words of one unknown American, "Damm the critics. Full Speed Ahead!

ANCESTORS

By: Bonnie K. Walden

If you could see your Ancestors all standing in a row,

Perhaps there might be one or two you wouldn't care to know.

Now turn the question right around and take another view,

When you shall meet your Ancestors, Will they be proud of you?

The following was submitted by Mrs. Henrietta M. Click, [redacted]
The gravestone inscriptions were copied in January 1980 by Mrs. Click and her daughter Virginia Click Adam. Permission was granted by Mrs. Click for publication in the CGGS Quarterly. We appreciate information of this type because we believe that it may be helpful to others in their genealogical research.

St. JAMES CEMETERY
(Established 1860)

St. James Cemetery is located on Pass Road, just west of Wilson Department Store in the Handsboro Community of Gulfport, Mississippi. At one time the St. James Catholic Church was located on this site. The cemetery contains graves of both white and black persons.

Starting at the east side of the cemetery, from the south end, gravestone inscriptions are listed row by row. There are several stones throughout the cemetery that are identical — they may have been furnished by the church. All are fairly new with a cross indent and no lettering cut into the stone, these stones are marked with an * in the following listing.

The present (1981) St. James Church is still located in the general area. It is now on Cowan Road.

The following announcement was received from the NATIONAL ARCHIVES TRUST FUND BOARD, Washington, DC 20408

VETERANS RECORDS BY MAIL TO COST MORE STARTING 1 SEPTEMBER 1981

In order to keep the records reproduction program on a self-sustaining basis, the National Archives is making two changes in its pricing and payment policies on mail requests for copies of veterans record files. Both take effect on Sept. 1.

The cost for reproduction of each record file will be increased from $3 to $5. The price rise is the first in 5 years. The Archives' Central Reference Division receives more than 200,000 mail requests annually for files of veterans records, including pension files, bounty land applications, and military service records dating from the Revolutionary War to the early 20th century.

In the second change, a prepayment policy will be put into effect in order to reduce the administrative overhead of maintaining an extensive billing system. Beginning Sept. 1, customers are requested to send payment with their orders when the total cost is known. Payment can be made by check, money order, or Master Card of VISA credit cards. In cases where the cost is not known, a price quotation can be obtained by requesting the order form for copies of veterans records -- NATF Form 26. Write to: Military Service Records (NNCC), National Archives, Washington, DC 20408.

SOUTHERN WOMEN IN THE SIXTIES

I was just entering my teens in a little town in south Georgia when the black clouds and heavy thunderings belched forth hate for our Southland from heartless enemies. Soon the tocsin of war sounded and met with ready response from brave men and strong, ready to fight for homes and loved ones in defense of their country on the field of honor.

The women, equally brave and strong, offered no resistance, for no one loved a coward, but with torn and bleeding hearts they bade goodby to husbands and sons, brothers and sweethearts, some never to return, who gallantly bared their breasts to missiles of the foe and passed on to meet their God.

Those four long years of the 60's seemed almost endless. Time seemed to forget its hurry and was waiting, waiting, waiting. At last, weary, worn and footsore, the thin grey line turned faces homeward, not conquered but outnumbered — that was all. The war was over, and not until the veil is lifted, and when time is no more shall we know why all this loss and bloodshed.

They returned to find a devastated land and great destruction from the cruel hands of our foe. But that was not the worst by far. The reconstruction days exceeded the conflicts in battle. The Freedmen's Bureau put all sorts of mischief into the heads of our once quiet and content slaves, who stood by us so gallantly as our protectors. Surely a people of so low a mentality could not be blamed for acceding to such glowing propositions as mentality as were held out to them as free men. They fell for all that was told them at this time. They were offered the ballot as well. Could they be blamed?

Why, no! They felt that at last they found true friends. It beggared explanation. To their credit be it said that as slaves they were loyal to us who were left in their care, and when these slaves saw and knew it all depended on them — the living on the farm for man and beast — they were proud of their achievement and never betrayed the trust. They were proud of their skill as farmers. They made bounteous crops, and strange to say there were no failures. Disaster never befell us, always plenty of foodstuff and meat raised for all. Some tobacco was produced as well as wheat, corn, cane, cotton, rice, potatoes, milk, butter, chickens, and eggs. These slaves felt a personal interest, and were diligent in all branches of labor, keeping the stock in good condition and well fed. Most large plantations had blacksmith shops, shoe shops, carpenter shops and men fitted for every branch of service. Work was carried on smoothly as when the master was present.

In time commodities gave out such as were not raised on the farm, and we were forced to substitute. For instance, coffee was hardest to get and the women devised a decoction not unlike Postum of this day. We chipped sweet potatoes up fine and dried, gathered persimmon seed, okra seed, adding meal and rye, throughly drying and parching and grinding served as a matter of "have to." Parched peanuts made cocoa. Dry strawberry and raspberry leaves made our tea.

Sometimes we would pick cotton from the seed by hand and not wait for the gin to separate. The cotton was carded into rolls, spun to thread on wheels, and in a little while we had plenty of thread on hand to work up. By using two threads from two broaches we made a double thread and twisted it on the spining wheel to make stronger thread. There was art in carding and spinning. A good hand could card enough rolls to make a day's work for two women in less than half a day. Weaving was more intricate.

Then for sugar we used syrup and it was called "long sweetening." Strict economy was taught us from the beginning of our era, and nothing was wasted. Salt was our gravest concern. How to save meat without salt was a sad problem, and grew serious as salt grew scarcer. A thrifty mind made the effort to supply families with salt by selecting old smoke houses of long standing, where meat had been hung to rafters for ages. By experimenting in digging up the floors of those smoke houses (for of course the floors were just dirt and the drippings from meat for years) the dirt was found to be very salty. Then by boiling this dirt and submitting it to other processes such as straining, etc., it was found that by evaporating the stuff and allowing it to dry, salt was produced. That did for a while, but a far better way was found. Parties of neighbors were formed, taking negro men and goods in wagons (the white women going in carriages) who took provisions and camped near the Gulf and made salt, bringing enough home to last a long while. Even with salt we were economical.

In our part of the South we were not molested by the enemy's raids. We were too far from the fighting zone. The battle fought nearest us was the battle of Atlanta. Another was at Girswoldville, Georgia. However, we often got rumors that the "Yankees were coming!" and that kept us on the "jump," so we kept prepared by burying all valuables, hiding things that could not be buried. When General Beauregard made an appeal for all plantation and church bells in 1862, (this appeal was made because the South was sadly in need of cannon) as many bells as could be obtained were "laid on the alter." It was at this epoch that some one buried the bell from our Methodist Church in the swamp behind the cemetery. This bell was reinstalled when hostilities ceased, and now does service as if new.

Work at night was carried on by pine knot fires, for coal oil was not in use. We learned to make substitutes for candles by melting bees' wax and tallow and dipping a wick made by putting a few strands of thread together. Before it was too cool for our purpose we wound the wick around a large bottle and close but not to lap, beginning at the bottom of the bottle and putting on all possible up to the neck of the bottle, leaving a piece to stand above the mouth of the bottle. As the wick burned low, it was lifted and relighted till entirely consumed. Later we learned to mold candles.

Beautiful hats were made by stripping palmetto blades and pleating them into braids and sewing into hat shapes. Dainty fluffy flowers were made of feathers of geese and ducks. Some we colored and some we left natural, mostly white, for we had no ribbons.

Our greatest discomfort was when we no longer had stationary. Every available piece of blank paper was put in use. Envelopes were made to do double work for we turned old envelopes inside out, regluing them. Wall paper was used the same way. We spun and wove lovely goods and made our dresses. We made button molds of circles cut from dry gourds, and by covering the molds with contrasting goods we made nice dress trimming. We used stays for dresses of old umbrella rods, rattan and whalebones. Our hoopskirts we made do service just as long as possible, and when no more could be bought we cut grape vines, while small and tender, splitting the vines and running in tucks in petticoats, and you must know they were short lived.

Yes, I was a Southern girl, and now feel proud that my name can be numbered among the women of that day, and as I said, I was entering my teens in 1861. I was glad to be useful. Children from infancy to maturer years seemed to understand and appreciate the ordeal the older ones were passing through; though we did long for pleasure at times and realized that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." Occasionally we had a party, mostly starvation parties. But we did a little better if one of our boys came home on a furlough. Then we would run the gauntlet and boil syrup and have a candy pulling.

There was just one physician left to look after the sick and that was Dr. P. B. D. H. Culler. He had a lovely large home and after battles soldiers were sent to the rear and sometimes to our town if near enough, and somehow Dr. Culler knew how to keep his house full. The long veranda seemed always full of them, sick and wounded. Other homes were opened for the same purpose but he had more than anyone else and under his constant care they were made well and were sent back to the front. Then he had others come, but most of these were older men.

Sometimes a young soldier came. And cupid was just as cute then as now and kept his quiver full of arrows. At times they were accurately armed and some fell for "Prince Charming" for cupid kept actively active. This was in 1863 and 1864. We lassies were permitted to droll afternoons after our work was over for the day. We thought that hour all too long in looming and that weary wait was the proverbial straw. How we would primp, dressed within the traditional "inch of our lives", and turn our faces "Culler-ward" and with a certain quick step made for the house with the cool veranda where we always saw convalescent soldiers. What a joy that hour was. To and fro in the twilight we strolled as was our wont, while beyond were the purple hills, silhouetted beneath the golden rays of the setting sun.

In the epoch of plenty how difficult it is to look back through 65 years and recall vividly the conditions which proved our women of the Southland the noblest creatures who ever lived to bless a country! Their courage never wavered because of disappointed hope. The South and the men at the front needed just such women so full of resolution, fortitude and hope.

Before the war ended the government required all farmers to tithe every thing they made on the farm to help feed the army. And how bravely and gladly the responses come from anzious hearts that were filled with hope of ultimate success. Hope still thrilled and comforted them with authentic seal of actual demonstration out of the shadowy mists of "maybe" up to the shining peaks of "certainty" at last, and when it was all over, property gone, slaves freed, money no value, education cut short, it was then more than ever that our women were at their best.

But shadows yet linger about the gates of the morning, and the coming years of reconstruction were worse than yesteryears; although our men were home then to handle the situation, and in time things became adjusted. The traditions of the South were pre-eminent.

Yes, through all those dreary years never-ending hope was our anchor, and even when the hours were darkest, hope tenaciously clung to our heartstrings to encourage even the weakest of us! No one who did not live it can ever realize how alone, how almost hopeless we women were in many a little town, whose quiet churches had looked upon our marriages and seen our beloved carried to the grave!

Surrounded by dusky faces whose loyalty we believed in yet somehow feared, seeing our supplies grow ever smaller and poorer, hearing sadder and sadder rumors from the front — still we carried on!

And with it all we were lovers of peace. All was love and harmony, each one ready to help the other, all working beyond strength. Just ever paler, weaker, sadder little groups clinging to one another as the shadows grew darker and the victory receded from our view!

GENEALOGY . . . How To Get Started

By CARL READ

First published in January 1982 issue of Retirement Life. Reprinted by permission of the author.

I have been pleased by the positive response to my column about American surnames. For my readers who have asked how they may begin a family history I present this short introductory lesson with the hope that it will answer some basic questions and be the start of a rewarding hoby that will give you much pleasure.

You could hire a professional researcher, of course, but you would miss the best part of this activity — the thrill of discovery. In doing genealogical research you will, almost effortlessly, absorb a great deal of American history and in addition you will discover yourself anew, for genealogy tells us where we came from and who we are.

If you pursue the hobby long enough, you will also learn that in just ten generations you have 1,024 grandparents, each of whom has made a definite contribution to your physical and mental make-up. You cannot escape becoming aware that every man is truly your brother, for we each have a vast network of forefathers that extends back into the mists of the past, beyond recorded history.

INITIAL STEPS

You begin this exciting adventure by writing down all that you know about your immediate family and yourself: full names, and maiden names of all females, and dates and places of birth, marriage, residence, and deaths. You cannot do this on one huge sheet of paper, family-tree style. Use a family group sheet for each family unit, father, mother, their children. File these sheets in a looseleaf notebook, either in alphabetical order or according to family relationships. Take special care to write dates clearly — 5 March 1912, and not 5-3-12, which is easy to misinterpret.

Interview the elders in your family and record their data on family sheets. Seek out the old family Bible and copy the information from it. Having done all the foregoing exercises, you will be prepared to go to the public library and ask specific questions about the past. Some will be impatient and want to skip over the things they already know, but remember; we seldom do a family history just for ourselves, and the generations to come will be curious to know about you and your family, what you looked like, what you did for a living and where you went to school, even what kind of car you drove. Maybe your father owned a Pierce-Arrow of a Moon Roadster, so put that down and include a picture of it if you have one, of Dad in his straw boater and high collar, leaning against his motor car. This will lend life and color to your story.

Your librarian can be very helpful in getting you started, even if your library has no genealogical section. You may find a local history that names some of your ancestors as early settlers. Many books of local history were published at the turn of the century and they contain valuable clues for following up in county court records of births, marriages and deaths. County land records are also helpful.

Be aware that not everything in print is gospal truth, for these local histories were based on conversations with folks who lived in your county 80 or a hundred years ago, and not on careful documentry research. That is why facts must be double-checked aginst official records whenever possible. Ask your librarian about local historical and genealogical societies, for you should join one of these. They offer courses in proper research techniques and they can provide the forms you will need for keeping good family records. They might even have a book about your family that was done by an ancestor!

ONE VALUABLE TOOL

The federal census has been taken every ten years since 1790 and this is the single most valuable source for the family historian who can use it properly. Many researchers do not use it at all, because it demands time, patience, imagination and good analytical judgments.

These records are sometimes faded and hard to read. The handwriting is often quaint and almost indecipherable and the names are usually spelled several ways you have never seen, but if you will study the census very carefully, it can yield fabulous results.

Some libraries have in their collections indices to early census records, in book form. Using these will save you hours of time, for they point you to the page on which your ancestors are found.

Every competent researcher learns that names have been spelled dozens of ways over the last 300 years, so it is smart to copy down all names that look or might sound like the name you are researching. If your name is Loving, be assured that kinfolks have been recorded as Lovan, Loven, Lovin, Lovings, Leving, Lovering, Lovern, Lovorn and Lovvorn and many other ways besides. Remember that our pioneers were almost never educated and the man or woman who could read and write was the exception. Names were recorded phonetically just as they were pronounced by the applicant who came to the court house for a marriage license or a deed to property. He usually could not tell the recorder how to spell it.

It can be useful to write down the names of families that lived on both sides of the family you are researching, too, for you may discover that they were related if you check the census against court records. A son or daughter was often given a parcel of land on the homeplace as a wedding gift, and here they built their first home.

TO SUMMARIZE

In summary, I repeat that genealogy begins with yourself and your immediate family, so write down these facts first. Then proceed to the local library or one that has a genealogical section. Join a genealogical society, for the help you get there will prove invaluable. Search the county court records, the federal census records and do not forget to look for church and school records and any newspapers that may be on microfilm, for these carried births, marriages, and obituary notices.

Finally, when you have a significant collection of data in proper form, publish a family history for the benefit of future generations and place some of these in libraries. Do not be put off by the rogues, rascals and scalawags you have found in your family tree, for every family has them, and some of them are very entertaining. Above all, do not wait until you have solved every puzzle and documented every fact in your story, for no one has ever lived long enough to do that. The perfect book has never been written and never will be.

I Search Because

By: Victor R. Myrick

Why read those ancient record books with pages tattered and torn,
Or search for cemeteries deep in the woods with tombstones broken and worn,
Or travel to places distant and strange where my people lived long age,
And write many letters to folks far away to find out what they know.

Some restless force from deep within my life and heart and mind, Reaches back to years gone by and drives me on to find,
Each ancestor who forms a link in a chain from the distant past,
For each has given a part of himself to me whose link is last.

The person that I am has come from each one bit by bit,
And brought together from them all into my life are fit.
As part of me they live today though lying in their grave, Alone, forgotten, they must not stay their memory I must save.

Like pieces of a puzzle brought from places far and near,
I build their lives as I build mine adding year by year.
In filing cabinets, folders filled and notebooks fat they thrive,
As long as one is not forgotten that one is still alive.

The following contribution by Mr. James W. TURNIPSEED, Jr., [redacted], is continued from the December 1981 issue of the QUARTERLY.

BOOK REVIEWS

GORDONS YOUNG AND OLD. By Clarice C. Cox (1978)

In this book Mrs. Cox has drawn together vital statistics and some family traditions from the descendants of Silas Gordon, born about 1796 in North Carolina, and his wife, Sarah (Cook) of Coweta County, Georgia. While the book would profit from better use of documentation, it still stands as an excellent record of the Gordon family, having been collected from living descendants of Silas and Sarah over a period of several years.

In 160 pages the book details the families of Silas and Sarah; John Wesley and Mary (Banks) Gordon; descendants of Davis Gordon; Family of Silas C. C. Gordon; Lemuel Prue Gordon; Ludie E. Gordon Duncan; the Cook Lineage; Jason Tomlin Family, plus some ancestors of Silas Gordon. The book is hardbound, 8½ by 11-inches, and has a surname index. Write to Mrs. Cox for the price. SHANHOLTZER HISTORY AND ALLIED FAMILY ROOTS. By Wilmer L. Kerns (1980)

Published in October 1980, this volume of Shanholtzer history of 1,056 pages is a monumental work showing the skills and the love of Wilmer Kerns for his family. The book has a fine table of contents, a full name index of 130 pages, and it is broken down into Sections, Chapters, and Generations, making it simple to use.

Chapter One begins with a brief explanation of the American name Shanholtzer, which Kerns says is of German origin from the name Schoenholzer, meaning "the expert woodcutter or carver" — a name that has taken on a variety of aberrant spellings in the United States of America: Shinholtzer, Shinholster, Shaneholtser and many others. The patriarch of the family appears to have been Johannes Schoenholzer, who settled in Chester County, Pennsylvania in 1727. Some of the Pennsylvania families migrated to Frederick County, Virginia, and Hampshire County, Virginia (now part of West Virginia), after the Revolutionary War.

Members of this family will long treasure this book for the large collection of more than 200 photographs plus the excellent history herein contained. Kerns, a Ph.D. with a long career in both the academic and political fields, writes easily in a lucid style everyone will enjoy. This book should be useful to many researchers because of the materials it holds about allied families: Buckwalter, Buzzard, Cowgill, Fries, Fultz, Hott, Keiter, Kerns, Loy, Parlett, Poston, Queen, Ritchie, Saville, Whitacre and Yeakley.

Typeset, indexed, hardcover, in 6 by 9-inch format. $42 postpaid.

GUIDELINES FOR PREPARING FAMILY PEDIGREE CHARTS:

A pedigree is a record which shows a descendant's bloodlines through ancestors in ascending order; parents, paternal and maternal grandparents, great grandparents, and so on. Pedigree and lineage records, while often referred to as being synonymous, are not the same. Lineage records show a descendant's line of descent from a particular ancestor; usually the paternal line of descent.

The FAMILY PEDIGREE chart is designed for showing the pedigree of an individual, and for the pedigrees of a husband and a wife. For an individual's pedigree the two-line box in the center of the chart is used; it is left vacant for a husband and wife's pedigrees. Spacing on the Pedigree Chart is scaled for use of pica size type and ten letters per inch (10-pitch). The 11 x 17-inch chart is designed for reduction to 65% for printing on 8½ x 11-inch paper. This will give a reduced chart with top, side, and bottom margins of ½ inch; and a binding margin of 1½ inches. Although it is not recommended, elite size type will give a readable record when pica type is not available.

Each five-line box on the chart provides space for the following:

"h." Husband's full name; First-Middle-LAST.

"b." Husband's date of birth; DA-MO-YEAR.

"d." Husband's date of death; DA-MO-YEAR.

"m." Date of marriage; DA-MO-YEAR.

"w." Wife's complete MAIDEN NAME; First-Middle-LAST.

"b." Wife's date of birth; DA-MO-YEAR.

"d." Wife's date of death; DA-MO-YEAR.

NOTE: Show a husband's surname and a wife's family name in all capital letters.

Show all dates in the following manner; 18 Jul.1917. Use the three letter abbreviation for all months except May. Do not leave a space between month and year, except for May.

For other than a husband's first marriage show the marriage number on the "m." line in the following manner: m.(2) 31 Aug.1940; m.(3) 6 May 1950, and so forth.

The Pedigree Chart covers six generations when starting with an individual, and five when starting with a husband and wife. It may be continued to cover any number of generations. A basic number is assigned to all charts in a pedigree and a dash number is added for any continuation charts; e.g., 100, 100-1, 100-2, 100-3, and so forth. A second pedigree would have a basic number of 101, a third pedigree would be number 102, and so forth. On the basic chart show the dash number of a continuation chart to the right of the marriage line in the last row of boxes. The information in this box is repeated in the first box on the continuation chart. At the bottom of the chart show the date the chart was prepared and the name and address of the person preparing the chart.

MAKING USE OF FEDERAL/STATE CENSUS RECORDS AND MORTALITY SCHEDULES

The first U.S. Census was taken in 1790 and each ten years thereafter. The 1790 census through the 1840 census shows only the following information:

1. Head of household by name.
2. Number of white males over sixteen.
3. Number of white males under sixteen.
4. Number of white females (all ages).
5. Number of other free persons.
6. Number of slaves.

In the 1850 census every individual was identified by name, age, sex, and color, and the birthplace of children were shown for the first time.

In the 1860 census American Indians were included for the first time.

In the 1870 census the value of individual property holdings was added.

In the 1880 census the relationship of each person to the head of the family was shown, the martial status of each person, and the place of birth of his or her mother and father. The 1890 census was almost entirely destroyed by fire in 1921.

In the 1900 census the month and year of birth was included, length of marriage, and number of children of each adult woman. Most of the 1880 and all of the 1900 censuses have been placed on Soundex. Many states have conducted their own censuses, usually on the year halfway between the federal census years. Starting in 1985 the Federal Census will be taken each five years rather than on the ten-year cycle. The 1910 Federal Census is due to be released around August 1982. If you would like to have a search made of a later census record write for an "Application for Search of Census Records, BC-600," to the U.S. Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census, Pittsburg, KS 66762.

Many census records have been published or are available from commercial sources on microfilm. To find out what is available you should first check with your local library and the Genealogical Helper (magazine) for commercial sources.

In addition to population schedules there are Mortality Schedules for 1850, 1860, 1870, 1880, 1885 (part), and 1900, but these are not available for all states for all years. The mortality schedules list all people who died during the year prior to 1 June of the census year, i.e., 1 Jun.1859, through 31 May 1860.

Federal census microfilm rolls are no longer available through interlibrary loan from the Federal Records Center. They may be purchased from the National Archives or they may be viewed at one of the Federal Records Center. Some major libraries also have copies of these films and you should first check a library in your area, or one in the area where you are going to search for an ancestor, before going to one of the Record Centers or before buying a film from the National Archives.

TEXAS RESEARCH — BIRTH, DEATH RECORDS RULED OPEN

A section in the Open Records Act that permits a county clerk to keep birth and death records confidential is unconstitutional, Attorney General Mark White said. Answering a query, White overruled an Attorney General's opinion issued in 1973 which held that a county clerk could prevent the public from seeing such records. That opinion, White said, overlooked a Texas Statute first enacted in 1836 which provided: "The county clerk shall give attested copies whenever demanded of all papers recorded in his office and he shall receive for all such copies such fees as may be provided by law. As a result, a county clerk is not authorized to withold any records filed with him, said the Attorney General. (Ft.Worth Gen. Soc. Mar '82 Newsleter.)

If you have Texas ancestors and would like to know if their death records are available, you can write Texas State Library, Box 12927, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711, and request death records for the surnames you are researching. They will send you a list of people by that surname from 1903 thru 1943. The lists contain full name, date and county of death, and death certificate number. The fee is ten cents per page, and they will mail you a bill with your information. If you locate an ancestor on the list, you can then write the Bureau of Vital Statistics, Austin, Texas for a copy of the death certificate. If your ancestor died after 1943, you will have to know the year of death. (Diablo Descendants Issue #57)

Texas charges $3.00 for vital records. The address is: Bureau of Vital Statistics,

MARRIAGE AND DEATH RECORDS IN GEORGIA TO REMAIN OPEN

Timely action by Georgia citizens has been responsible for maintaining access to marriage and death records. Through the cooperation of the Legislature, an amended House Bill 780, mentioned in earlier FAMILY PUZZLERS issues, has been passed, and signed by the Governor. Because some terms of the new bill may not be immediately known to records custodians in Georgia, the following transcription has been made from a copy of the act. Use this is opposition to your obtaining these records is encountered.

A BILL TO AMEND THE GEORGIA HEALTH CODE - HB 780/CSFA

"88-1725 (a). To protect the integrity of vital records, to ensure their proper use ... The provisions of this subsection shall not apply to court records or indexes of marriage licenses, divorces, and annulments of marriages filed as provided by law.

(e) When 100 years have elapsed after the date of birth or 75 years have elapsed after the date of death or application for marriage, or divorce, dissolution of marriage, or annulment, the records of these events in the custody of the STATE REGISTRAR shall be transferred to the State Archives and such information shall be made available in accordance with regulations which shall provide for the continued safekeeping of the records.

(f) Official copies of records of deaths, applications for marriages and marriage certificates, divorces, dissolutions of marriages, and annulments LOCATED IN THE COUNTIES SHALL REMAIN ACCESSIBLE TO THE PUBLIC."

88-1726 sets limits for use of information obtained from vital records. Subsection (f) provides:

"No copies or parts thereof of a vital record shall be reproduced or information copies for commercial or speculative purposes. THIS SUBSECTION SHALL NOT APPLY TO PUBLISHED RESULTS OF RESEARCH."

A provision for searches, and maximum fees for copies have been set by the law. At the hearing it was disclosed that the Vital Records section maintains an index to births at their office (47 Trinity Ave., SW, Room 217-H, Atlanta, GA 30334). This index provides the following information on each person listed: Full name, sex, color, date of birth, county of birth. This index is open for public use.

While the information contained in the index is much less complete than that found on a birth certificate, the index does provide a method for checking actual birth locations and exact dates needed in genealogy. The provision of 88-1726 also allows an author to use the information taken from the birth index as part of a family history, since such a history is the results of research.

The above article appeared in the FAMILY PUZZLERS, March 25, 1982, No. 753; Mrs. Mary Bondurant Warren, Editor.

CGGS NEWSPAPER MICROFILM PROJECT

The purpose of this project is to preserve the history of Houston County by microfilming the county newspaper, the Houston Home Journal, which dates from 1870, with a few issues missing.

Mrs. Addie P. Howell, CGGS Corresponding Secretary, has worked many hours on this project and has read the papers through 1912. The Obituaries from 1870 through 1912 are included in her recently published book, Cemeteries and Obituaries of Houston County, Georgia. Addie and her husband is preparing the newspapers for pick-up by the University of Georgia Microfilm Department.

The CGGS has agreed to pay 8¢ per microfilm exposure to have these newspapers microfilmed by the University of Georgia. The first filming will cover issues of 1870 through 1920. Money to cover this part of the project has been donated by members and friends of CGGS without having to use a fund drive. The University will give CGGS a positive microfilm copy of all issues and we plan to place this on loan to the Nola Brantley Memorial Library in Warner Robins where it will be available to the public.

This is an on-going project and we must work diligently to collect funds for the next phase of microfilming. The total cost is expected to amount to around $3,000. The Houston Home Journal will be asked to send copies of all current issues to the University where they will be kept until enough are on hand for the next filming. After they are microfilmed the current issues will be destroyed and the old copies used in the first filming will be returned to the source from which obtained.

On 10 May 1982, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Howell of [redacted], and Mrs. R. L. Cruthirds of [redacted], current President of CGGS, were given a tour of the Library and Microfilming Department at the University of Georgia, Athens, Georgia. Mr. Barry Baker, Assistant Technical Director, Microfilm Department, UGA, told us that the history of Georgia and its people is contained in our old newspapers. The genealogical material available is the greatest of any source we have today. Mr. Baker said that anyone and libraries may purchase copies of microfilm from the University. They are continually working to complete the task of copying all known Georgia newspapers.

We need additional contributions to help us complete our project and to continue microfilming issues published after 1920. As a non-profit, Tax-exempt organization your contributions are tax deductable. We must all pitch in to finish this project and make a lasting contribution to our community and posterity. Thanks for your support.

Mrs. Beulah V. White Cruthirds, President,
Central Georgia Genealogical Society, Inc.

The following cemetery records were contributed by Mrs. Andrea Hickman White, [redacted]. She has arranged the names in alphabetical order for each cemetery and included inscriptions shown on the gravestones.

TELEPHONE RESEARCH -- ATLANTA GEORGIA LIBRARIES

The following article appeared in the Family Tree Newsletter of the Northeast Cobb Genealogical Society.

The Atlanta Public Library offers a service known as "Telephone Reference" or "Ready Reference." Anyone may contact a special number within the Atlanta Public Library and obtain information from a library employee familiar with reference facilities. This is especially beneficial when one desires information from funeral notices or obituaries. By calling this service and giving the date of death for your ancestor, you may be able to obtain a list of surviving relatives. The researcher is authorized to check the local newspapers for three specific dates, usually the date you give him and the next two dates as well. If he is successful in locating the notice, the researcher will usually contact you within twenty-four hours and read this notice over the telephone. If the Atlanta Public Library does not have the desired newspaper record, they may be able to direct you to another Georgia library that has it. The University of Georgia, for example, maintains an extensive collection of Georgia newspapers. The Atlanta Public Library will check three sources for one person at any given time. This telephone reference service is located at the central branch of the Atlanta Public Library, One Margaret Mitchell Square, Atlanta, GA Phone 404-688-4636.

HOW TO HIRE A PROFESSIONAL GENEALOGIST

From time to time we all need help with our research, or help in compiling our work if we plan to have it published. Getting someone to help with the research is often a matter of necessity, and getting professional help in compiling our work for publication can usually save us many dollars. For a free pamphlet on "How To Hire A Professional Genealogist," and a list of members of the Association of Professional Genealogists, write to the Association of Professional Genealogists, Box 11601, Salt Lake City, UT 84147 and enclose a business size SASE.

Using "MA BELL" by Max L. Tatum

In the following article Mr. Tatum tells how he has made good use of the telephone to do genealogical research and some of the methods he uses. Mr. Tatum is a member of CGGS, and lives at [redacted]

First, let me state that I do not consider myself to be a professional genealogist. The methods described herein have worked for me and I have never seen them described in print. Maybe my relating them here will help some of my fellow "Grandpa Safari Enthusiast."

My wife and I have received hundreds of individual genealogies through the mail and we have never sent SASEs (Self Addressed Stamped Envelopes) when we wrote asking for them. However, the herein described methods would not be very practical if you are researching the "Smiths" or the "Jones" or any other large family, but for a small family they work just fine.

When I decided to research and compile a book on the BUNDRICK family (my wife's family), I decided to make it a hobby and not a profit making venture. Other men spend thousands of dollars on hunting and fishing, so why shouldn't I be able to do my "own thing"? This way, I can leave something for posterity and have fun doing it. My wife helps me some, but she lets me have most of the fun!

The first thing that I learned about genealogy is that you start with yourself and research backward. If that be true, why not also start with other present-day people with the same name and search back, eventually tying them all together? That is where "Ma Bell" comes into the picture.

Many libraries maintain a library of telephone directories and I am fortunate that the Albany, Georgia Library (where I live) has quite a large collection. I first copied all of the BUNDRICK'S addresses and phone numbers from this library of telephone directories and wrote to all of them. I promised, in my letter to them, that if they would fill out the form which I included in my letter to them, that I would write them back and give them a brief history of their family, even swap. I have kept that promise and have written to every person who filled out one of our forms. In my response to them, I have described in detail a brief history of their family if, at that time, it was known to me. If I could not completely describe their "roots," I wrote back and told them so, explaining that more research was needed and I would write them again at a later date, which I did. PLUS, I have always made it a policy, in every letter, to enclose a copy of some old document relating to their family, a land grant, war record of their ancestor, an old deed and, in some cases, a copy of their ancestor's family Bible.

The forms that we have used, I must say, have been a problem. I have been unable to find a stock-form to my liking that I could use. All charts are out - they are too difficult for most laymen to figure out. The form had to be so simple that one did not have to stop to figure out what we wanted. Another question arose, when we were attempting to design the form, was how much information to ask for. If you ask for too much information, they throw up their hands in disgust and you get nothing. If you do not ask for enough, look at what you miss. We designed several forms and tried them. One, after having several hundred printed, we discarded because I sat down one day and attempted to fill it out myself and I had trouble. Enclosed, is one that we have used for some time and we still would not change it. Anyone is welcome to copy it. (See last page of this article.) The form that we used in our early mailings asked for more ancestors than our present ones do. Maybe that was necessary in our early stages of research, but this type does not get as many returned as the form we presently use.

We have also worked in another way, attempting to get our forms filled out. This way, we have had about a 75% response to our letters. If we know the positive identity of a group of people, this way works. For instance, we correspond with one family member and they give us the names and addresses of their other family members. In this case, we write one letter, keep the original, and send all photostatic copies. The letter is addressed as, "Dear Descendant of ____".

We endeavor to explain in the letter that we are attempting to compile a family genealogy and we do not expect to make a profit from it. Filling out our form does not obligate them to purchase a book when they are published. Since they are the only ones who can give us the information on their family correctly, their descendants reading the book 100 years from now will prefer to have the information written correctly, and so would we. We give them a brief history of their family, taking the family tree back as far as possible. We also enclose a copy of some old document as previously mentioned. 75% answer and we do not send a stamped-addressed envelope.

Or course, there are some who will not write you no matter what. There again "Ma Bell" comes into the picture. We phone them. We do our phoning during the weekend when the rates are less. To keep from destroying our budget, we never phone very many at a time.

I would never admit to being guilty of recording a telephone conversation. However, we do have a small tape recorder which has a suction-cup that attaches to the telephone should we want to record the conversation, and no one would be the wiser. It would be surprising how much information could be derived from listening to the tape for the second or third time if the conversation could be recorded . . . .

The information-telephone-operator is also very helpful by giving us additional people on occasion. Quite often, we ask for the number of one person - the operator does not have that one but offers the number of another one by the same name. That gives us one more name to add to our list of addressees. We maintain two separate address cards on each person, one filed by "city" and one by "name." This helps to locate and identify migrant-addressees.

Our letters are always typed on plain paper. A printed letter-head would indicate to some that we might be attempting to make a business out of our hobby. We feel that pen and ink would be even better, if my penmanship were more legible.

So far, we have had only one person to hang up on us when we telephoned. We found out later that this gentleman thought that we were someone else. One good lady, after our third letter to her, finally answered and stated that she was giving us all of the information that she knew and for us to please leave her alone. On second thought, this is one letter that we never answered. Another lady phoned us from Houston, Texas and indicated that she thought that we were working with the Beatrice Baley Company. (This is the book company that, by their advertising, makes one believe that you are ordering a family genealogy and for about $30 you are sent a list of a few addresses with a few pages of instructions on how to research your family tree. A gyp in my opinion.) We wrote this lady and advised her of how to get a refund from the book that she mistakenly ordered.

It gives one a warm feeling to know that most of the letters that one writes are read by many other people, at family gatherings, etc., other than the recipient. Most are also retained by the receiver for many years because they contain their family history. It is also nice to know that there are very few towns in the U.S.A.which do not contain at least one friend who we made through our genealogical letter writing and telephone calls.

Not all of our puzzles have been solved, but we are about ready to start typing the BUNDRICK book. You gotta' stop someplace . . . .

No, I am not an employee of the telephone company. I am a real estate broker.

CEMETERIES AND OBITUARIES OF HOUSTON COUNTY, GEORGIA

by Addie Paramore Howell (1982)

After six years of crawling through the underbrush to decipher hundreds of ancient headstones, Mrs. Howell has this year published the results of her hard work. Her book will be welcomed by all who have ancestors and kinfolks buried in central Georgia, for it is a fine supplement to court records. Not only the large municipal grave yards are covered here, but this enumeration of sixty cemeteries includes many little forgotten family plots, like the Avera Cemetery, with only six graves and the Bryant family grave yard, which saw its last burial in 1911.

The cemetery "census" in the book fills 128 pages and the obituary notices take up 154 additional pages with brief accounts like this one: "Captain George C. Albaugh died on June 2, 1908. He was 82 years old last November 29th. and for the last 12 years had made his home with his son-in-law and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Fulwood and Miss Ida Albaugh, near Fort Valley, Georgia." After the obituaries are three pages of medical terms found in the death notices, then some late additions to cemeteries, and a full-name index, which makes the book easy to use.

Printed on fine quality paper by offset process from a camera-ready typescript, the book is easy to read, being in 8½ x 11-inch size. The text has not been reduced. The binding is cloth-over-hardboard and the cover is black with gold-imprinted title, making it a handsome and sturdy book that will last many generations. Some minor flaws show up in the front materials, but this is likely the fault of the printer, who has scrambled the prefatory pages badly. A map appears before the title page, and the map bears no date. The title page is a left-folio page, as is the first page of the text, which renders the entire pagination incorrect. These errors do not detract from the usefulness of the book, however, and Mrs. Howell is to be commended for her years of hard and careful work. For price, write to her: Mrs. J. D. Howell, 319 Houston Lake Boulevard, Centerville, GA 31028.

MEYER'S DIRECTORY OF GENEALOGICAL SOCIETIES IN THE USA AND CANADA

by Mary K. Meyer, Editor. (1982)

In this fourth edition of the directory Mary Meyer has carefully compiled 92 pages of information about the genealogical societies of north America. Every genealogical organization should have this reference work and, more important, should register with Mary Meyer so the next edition will include facts about their society. For the very low cost, $18.00, Meyer provides a free copy of the latest directory and prints all the facts provided by each registering organization. Here is an economical way to secure new members who have moved away from the home turf!

The directory is professionally done, typeset in clear, easy-to-read print, and has a complete index in the back for locating the society you may be interested in. The book is done in three sections: I - Canadian societies; II - Societies in USA; III - Independent Genealogical Publications, including some newsletters by family associations. On page 78 are listed the State Councils of Genealogical Societies, with addresses. The directory may be purchased for only $15, by writing directly to Mary Keysor Meyer, 297 Cove Road, Pasadena, MD 21122 (The fee for registering your society is only $3.00!)

WIMBERLY FAMILY HISTORY, by Vera Meek Wimberly, (1978)

Wimberly families that did not buy a copy of this limited edition of 300 copies will surely regret their decision. The book treats the Georgia family of William Wimberly and his descendants who moved to Louisiana with great affection. Mrs. Wimberly has done her homework well and this is reflected in every one of the more than 680 pages of text. In the final chapter she presents some history of the family of Stafford, a black family that served the Wimberlys before the Civil War.

Allied families found in the index in considerable numbers include Alexander, Allums, Conly, Cook, Davis, Elliott, Giddens, Golson, Hall, Huckaby, and Lawson. The total pages number 767, with a complete full name index of 71 pages. The period covered in the book begins in 1672 and traces the family to the present generations in 1978. In hard cover, 6 x 9-inches. Price is unknown and the book may well be out of print by now, but it might be worthwhile to write to Mrs. Vera Meek Wimberly, 22 Winged Foot Drive, Conroe, TX 77304.

FAIRCLOTH — A GENEALOGICAL HISTORY OF WILCOX COUNTY, GEORGIA

by G. Mallon Faircloth, [redacted] (1981)

In spite of many major flaws, this is not an entirely bad book. To begin with, the title is not fitting to the book's contents, for it deals almost exclusively with the Faircloth clans and families. There is no table of contents to guide one to his own branch of the family, but a list of six parts: Part 1 - Snow Hill to Snow Hill; Part 2 - War; Part 3 - Estates and Heirs; Part 4 - Last of the Twelve; Part 5 - The Seven Lines; Part 6 - The J. W. Faircloth Family. The pages where these parts begin are not listed, and when one finds Part 3 -- he finds it titled, not Estates and Heirs, but "Robert Lee's Line." A short surname index of 8 pages offers some help in locating individuals, but is far from satisfactory for a book of 315 pages.

Looking at the better side, the book does present much documentation and a host of photographs and there is some solid genealogy in it for the Faircloths who can ignore the above mentioned faults. Bound in blue cloth covers, in size 6 x 9-inches, it is attractive and sturdy. Offset lithography is clear. Extra copies of this limited edition of 250 copies are said to be available from G. Mallon Faircloth, P. O. Box 873, Cordele, GA 31015

PEDIGREE CHART CONSOLIDATED INDEX

This is an alphabetical index of names appearing on all pedigree charts which have been published in our Quarterly, including those in this issue. Below each name the year of birth and death, when known, are shown in brackets. This is followed by the number of the pedigree chart where the name will be found. Names are indexed letter-by-letter and "Mc," is indexed as though the full form were shown. We plan to publish a consolidated alphabetical index of published pedigree charts annually in the September issue of our Quarterly.

We publish pedigree charts, free of charge for members and nonmembers, in the hope that the information will be of help to anyone researching the lines shown thereon. If you have information which will help to complete a chart, or would like additional information about a particular family, please correspond with the person whose name is shown at the bottom of the chart.

When you submit your pedigree for publication you may order additional copies for 5¢ per copy — minimum order of 20 copies. After publication you may order copies of any published chart for 25¢ per copy with a minimum order of $1.00 postpaid within the U. S. These prices are subject to change without notice.

BOOK REVIEWS by Carl READ

THOMAS GREEN ALVEY AND HIS DESCENDANTS, by Thelma Caraway Landrum and James Raymond Landrum (1982), 284 pages, cloth, size 8 by 11.

In this carefully documented compilation is the lineage of Thomas Green Alvey, born between 1745 and 1750 in St. Mary's County, Maryland. The names of his parents are unknown, but they are believed to have come to America from England. Thomas was married twice and is known to have had at least three children: George (1773-1840), and Thomas Green, Junior, (1780-c.1820) by his first wife, and another son, John Baptist Alvey by his second wife, Monica Riney. Thomas, Senior, was a soldier in the American Revolution, serving with honor in the Third Maryland Regiment of Colonel Ramsey under General Smallwood of the First Brigade. His term of enlistment was from April 1778 until he was discharged on 24 April 1781.

Thomas G. Alvey left Maryland and moved his family to Nelson County, Kentucky, sometime between 1781 and 1786. Here they seem to have remained until 1811, when they made another move to settle in Perry County, Indiana, in that part which was taken from Knox County.

The book is superbly laid out in three parts, with Part One devoted to Thomas Green Alvey, and Part Two containing seven chapters and Part Three containing eight chapters. While a surname index is lacking, this fault is overcome in large part by the addition in the Table of Contents of all the names of direct Alvey descendants to be found in each chapter, so that almost anyone related to the family should be able to determine quickly in which chapter his or her nearest kin are located. A further enhancement is the presentation of many early wills and documents in facsimile form, as well as a good collection of early photographs. Mrs. Landrum and her son, James, have turned out a very fine product that should be welcomed by all ALVEY families with Maryland roots. For the price, please write to Mrs. Thelma C. Landrum, [redacted]

THE RODDENBERRY FAMILY, by George Lee Thurston III, Editor, based on the papers of Robert Samuel Roddenbery, Junior (1979). Bound in hard-cover, size 6 by 9 inches; indexed, 357 pages.

Robert Samuel Roddenbery of Moultrie, Georgia, spent much of his spare time between 1925 and 1971 gathering notes for this book of family history and writing to kinfolks all across the USA. As so often happens when one sets out to do a family history without setting definite goals, his life was cut short before the book could be published, but the papers of Robert were saved from destruction by his son, Doctor Thaddeus Roddenbery, who passed on all the many letters and notebooks to George Thurston, who, in turn, compiled this most informative record of the Roddenberry family. All too often, when the family historian dies, the work of a lifetime is lost forever, but in this case the story has a happy ending with the publication of this book, of which Robert Samuel Roddenbery would surely be proud. [Roddenberry or Roddenbery.]

Although the author does not tell us much about the onomastics of this rare surname, RODDENBERRY, he does say the name has had various spellings over the centuries: RATTEBBURY, RATTENBURY, ROTTENBURY, ROTTENBERRY, RODENBERY and RODDENBERY. He is to be commended for at least looking into the variant spellings seen inEngland and America. The family historian who stoutly claims that his family name has never been spelled but one way is displaying his inexperience in research.

The descendants of George Rottenbury (sic), born 20 June 1758 in South Carolina are delineated here in seven chapters of the book. In addition to the seven chapters are several appendices which shed some light on early English ROTTENBURYS, who came to America before the birth of the subject of the book.

George Rottenbury or Rottenberry and wife, Mary Knight, had eight children and all of them married and reared families — (a total of 87 children!), except Seaborn Roddenberry, a twin of Sampson Roddenberry. Seaborn died at age 20 years. The names of the children who survived and married were: John (b.1797); William (b.1798); Richard (b. date unknown); Henry (b.1803); Robert (b.1805); Jane who m. James Kersey; Sampson (b.1816). The author has also made excellent use of maps, photographs and documents, giving a sort of balance to the book, which is written in fine, readable style. The book is typeset in easy-to-read typeface. The narrative portions, some of them submitted by family members, are literate and entertaining and cause the family members to "come to life" on the pages. All in all, this is a well composed book of great value as both genealogy and biography. Readers who may wish to buy a copy of the book are advised to write to The Roddenbery Memorial Library in Cairo, Georgia for the price.

THE GOURDIN FAMILY, by Peter Gaillard Gourdin, (1980). Hard-cover, offset process, indexed, 6 by 9 inches. Produced by the Southern Historical Press, Inc., [redacted]

This 590 page history of the American GOURDIN family contains, in addition to a solid account of the descendants of Louis Gourdin of Charleston, South Carolina, a vast amount of documentation and a fine collection of photographs. Louis, a son of Valentine and Mary (Piedevin) Gourdin, of Caucourt, Artois, France, came to South Carolina prior to 1693. He received a patent for lands in Charleston County — several patents, in fact, adding up to more than 2,000 acres, which would have made him a wealthy man by today's standards. Aside from his lands, however, he was not blessed with material wealth and cash, despite his boasts in letters to his French kinsmen that he was rich. Louis died in 1716, leaving a will that bequeathed to his daughter, Marianne, his moneys and placing his minor children under the guardianship of one Elie Hory.

One meaning of the word "gourdin" is "club or bludgeon" and it may be more fitting to this book than to the family itself, for the reader who is eager to get down to the meat of the family structure is first "clubbed" with pages and pages of wills, deeds, bills of sale, inventories, lists of slaves and God-knows how many other pieces of paper. Most families complain of a lack of documentation of their ancestors, but it would seem that someone in the Gourdin family kept every scrap of writing that had anything at all to do with anyone named Gourdin. The book might have been much more readable if the author could have forced himself to leave out some of the dusty details of property ownership.

The book consists of eight chapters: ONE - In the Beginning; TWO - Theodore Gourdin II; THREE - Estate of Theodore Gourdin II; FOUR - Elizabeth Gourdin Gaillard; FIVE - Theodore Louis Gourdin; SIX - Peter Gaillard Gourdin; SEVEN - Martha Sarah Gourdin, and EIGHT - Samuel Gourdin. The full-name index adds up to something like forty pages (the pages are not numbered in the index) plus a page or two called the Slave Index. This seems inadequate for a book of 590 pages, so the reader may have difficulty finding the family members he seeks unless he wades through the entire book page by page. Another meaning of the word "gourdin" applies to someone who is "engourdi" (benumbed) and anyone who tackles this book and reads it in its entirety will surely come away benumbed and stunned by the mass of facts in it. It is not what this reviewer would call "a good read" — rather, it may be compared to a book of astronomy or higher mathematics that requires close study. If you have any links to the Gourdins, however, this book belongs on your bookshelf.

THE THOMAS PHILLIPS FAMILY, by Mabel Phillips Baker, 1981. Hardcover, 219 pages, with a very brief full-name index of only 3 pages.

This neatly done book is printed by the offset method from camera-ready typescript and it traces the Phillips descendants of Thomas Phillips of Pennsylvania through six generations. In the Introduction, Mrs. Baker flatly claims that the first member "of our family to come to America was the Rev. George Phillips (1593-1644)." She says George and wife, plus a son, Samuel and two daughters, Abigail and Elizabeth, arrived with Governor Winthrop on the ship ARBELLA. No support is offered to establish a connection with Thomas Phillips, "said to have lived in Pennsylvania, near Pittsburgh."

Mrs. Baker is rather careless with facts and tends to rely heavily on "hearsay" evidence about her ancestors of early America, but the book does improve as she draws nearer to her own generation. The book contains some documentation and some interesting photographs which are extremely well reproduced.

Family legend says that Thomas Phillips was from Wales, but very little effort has been expended to prove that supposition. He was twice married — first to a woman named Nancy (last name unknown), who died shortly after January 1790. The second wife was Susannah Kittle. Not much work was done to determine which of his nine children were born to either one or the other wife. No sound research was done to learn when any of these children were born. Their names were: Henery, Isaac, Joseph, John, Thomas, William, Moses, Susannah, Thomas and Benjamin. Of these nine, Benjamin was the ancestor of Mrs. Baker. Two children were named Thomas, it seems, and perhaps because the first Thomas may have died in childhood.

Readers interested in buying a copy of this book should write to Mabel P. Baker, Box 217, Cantril, Iowa 52542.

In Memoriam

JAMES CARL READ

1918 - 1982

Carl was president of Harp and Thistle, Ltd., and author of two genealogical books: The Bourlands in America, and The Loving Family in America. He was an active member of the Central Georgia Genealogical Society, Inc., where he served as the Book Review Editor. Carl was a professional genealogist who worked tireless for the good of our Society and its members, and he was always ready to give of his time and expertise to help his fellow genealogist. Even though he experienced considerable pain and suffering for months before his death, he prepared the book reviews which appear in this issue of our Quarterly. Carl was a stickler for correctness of form and format but he never let these obstruct his recognition of a book's value as a genealogical or historical publication. We shall miss Carl. He was a friend to all and a valuable asset to the Central Georgia Genealogical Society.

Carl is survived by his wife Mabert Keil Read of [redacted]; a daughter, Betty Dyer of [redacted]; a son Ronald Read of [redacted]; his parents Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Read of [redacted]; a brother, C. W. Read of [redacted], and four grandchildren.

Community Service

One of the purposes of the Central Georgia Genealogical Society is to support the community by undertaking worthy projects which will benefit everyone and help to make the community a better place for ourselves and future generations. We presently have two projects underway, they are: Microfilming the Houston Home Journal newspaper, and reprinting an early history of Houston County. The University of Georgia has completed microfilming nineteen rolls of the newspaper at a cost of $913.30 paid for by CGGS. The remaining issues (1935 to 1980) are now being microfilmed at the University. Typescript for the history is completed and the index is being prepared. This should be ready to go to the printer sometime in February 1983. We need financial help for both of these projects and your contribution in any amount will be greatly appreciated — tax deductable.

PRESERVES HISTORY

Houston Home Journal Volumes Now On Microfilm At Library

By RENEE PENN

WARNER ROBINS — Phase 1 of the Central Georgia Genealogical Society's preservation project has been completed, and 20 volumes of the Houston Home Journal now are on microfilm at the Nola Brantley Memorial Library in Warner Robins.

Members of the society gathered at the library Tuesday morning for an informal presentation.

"We started this project one year ago, and now we have completed Phase 1 of what will be an on-going project," said CGGS president Beulah V. Cruthirds.

The first phase of the project cost approximately $912, according to Mrs. Cruthirds.

There is a master film of the Houston Home Journal, a 112-year-old newspaper in Perry which relates much of Houston County's history, at the University of Georgia, Mrs. Cruthirds said.

"Now the Warner Robins library has a copy of the Houston Home Journal's issues from Dec. 17, 1870 to December, 1935," she said.

All microfilms of the Houston County newspaper will remain on permanent loan to the Nola Brantley Memorial Library.

CGGS, which has a membership of more than 140, undertook the microfilming project at the suggestion of a Arkansas man who contacted the society last year and asked for assistance in locating an old obituary. Not only did the man bring up the idea, he also made the first contribution to the project, Mrs. Cruthirds said.

CGGS was formed in 1978, and the members represent not only Middle Georgia but Texas, California, Kentucky, Florida, Alabama and Mississippi as well.

Attending the presention Tuesday were CGGS members Virginia Roberts, Arthur Cruthirds, Mrs. Cruthirds, Ernestine Hickman, Pearl Douglas, Decia Simms, Joanne Lusk and Thomas L. Carker.

LAND DISTRIBUTION IN GEORGIA

Reprinted from an article in the November 1982 issue of Southern Echoes, Volume IV, Number 3, published by the Augusta Genealogical Society, Augusta, Georgia.
Contributed by: Mrs. Beulah W. CRUTHIRDS, [redacted]

From a presentation by Miss Margaret Johnson, Map Curator, Georgia Surveyor General Department, State Archives, Atlanta, Georgia.

Georgia's land was distributed to its citizens under a "Head Rights" system while under British control and under "Bounty" and "Land Lottery" systems after the Revolutionary War.

Land was initially distributed, from 1732 to 1735, under a program which meant essentially that the person leased the land from the proprietor, Georgia. The right to property passed from male heir to male heir because females were not considered eligible to inherit land at that time. In 1755, when the charter reverted back to the King of England and Georgia became a royal colony, the Head Rights system was begun and remained in effect until 1776. This system, the head of a household was entitled to 200 acres, and 50 acres for each member of his family — with a limit to 1,000 acres. The applicant obtained a voucher of entitlement from the Captain of his military district. A warrant was issued and the property surveyed. The acreage was reported by the Surveyor General's Department and the grant was then made by the government.

After the Revolutionary War, Head Rights issued by the King were replaced by Bounty Grants issued by the State of Georgia. There were two different types: one which was awarded to a citizen for not aiding and abetting the British; and the other for military service during the war. There were five times as many grants issued to citizens for not aiding and abetting the British as for those who actively fought the British. A person would apply to a land court, contending entitlement for either a Citizen Bounty Grant or a Military Service Grant. The property would then be surveyed prior to the issue of the grant much as just before the end of the war. It is important to realize that grants under these systems were surveyed only between 1784 and 1786 and that grants were made only during those two years. If a search shows a grant issued after that time, it clearly would indicate that it was not a bounty grant.

Land Lotteries were held in 1805, 1807, 1820, 1821, 1827, and 1832. The Governor appointed District Surveyors who divided the available land into equal plots. A person applied to his Militia District Captain who would add his name to a list. A written application was not required and a person could merely claim eligibility verbally for a certain amount of property. The residence requirement for the first lottery was one year but became five years for each subsequent lottery.

A complete list of all persons qualified and interested in the lottery was compiled — an individual could have his name entered twice at any one lottery, but, if he won, he could not apply for a subsequent lottery. Names from the list were placed in one barrel and numbers representing the property were in another and then drawings were held. After the winner paid the required $12.00 to $18.00, the grant was issued. The only information included on these grants was: the name of the grantee, the county in which he lived when he registered for the lottery, and the date that the grant was issued. Indices of land lotteries list only the names of the fortunates winning the drawing and not the names of the actual grantees. That information can be obtained from Miss Johnson's department. A person was not required to take out a grant immediately upon winning a lottery. The winner started paying taxes at once but many did not take their grants until they came to the point where they wanted to sell the land to someone else. Some who won the lottery in 1805, for example, did not take title to the land until 1820. If the winner decided he did not want the lot, which happened in many cases involving swamp land, the lot would revert back to the state and would be sold at public auction.

There are over ten thousand maps in the State Archives which cover Georgia and other states in the Southeast. Some maps show Georgia when first divided into counties, with the oldest giving county line surveys in 1705. Different county maps can be seen which show cemeteries, schools, and the old road systems. The Surveyor General Department cannot conduct searches for people but will be very happy to make records available. It should be remembered, however, that this office has records only of the original grants and not a record of subsequent transfers — these transactions would be recorded in county records offices. If difficulty is encountered in looking for a record, it will be important to know the genealogy of the county involved because there have been so many changes in counties. The Surveyor's county map file can help in this respect.

The Georgia Archives building is between the Capital and the Stadium and visitors are always welcome.

RICE

83-272 Mr. L. Camp GILLIAM, [redacted] seeks information on parents of wife of Anderson RICE, who was supposedly born in North Carolina, was in Wilkes County, Georgia for a while, married Rebecca . . . who was born in Washington County, Georgia in 1790, was in Baldwin County 1810-15, thence to Jones County, Georgia and finally to Bibb County, Georgia where he died in 1844 at his residence three miles from Macon, Georgia. His name is associated with a Thornton RICE in Baldwin County — possibly a brother. I strongly suspect that William C. RICE of Bibb County was a son (he had six children), but the only one I know for sure is Martha Anderson RICE, b. 1814, m. Zachariah LAMAR in 1834 in Bibb County. The Zach LAMARS moved to Houston County, Georgia where Zach died in 1853. Later Martha RICE moved to Upshur and Camp County, Texas with her oldest daughter Sarah Ellen LAMAR who married John Lawson FELDER.

CAMP

William died and Elizabeth married a Mr. . . . DUNN, who died previous to the death of Sarah Elizabeth Reeves Camp DUNN in 1858 at Elyton, Alabama. Would like to contact descendents of this Camp-Reeves family.

KELLEY

Anxious to communicate with anyone who knows of these BOON-SAWYER-HOLSTEIN relationships. What relationship is Littleberry to Willis, John and William BOONE of Bibb, Baldwin and Jefferson Counties?

SKETCHES OF ALABAMA, by Mary Gordon Duffee. Edited by Virginia Pounds Brown and Jane Porter Nabers. University of Alabama Press, 1970 (University, AL 35486). Hardcover, 77 pages, footnotes 12 pages, index 6 pages. $9.95 in 1970.

The Birmingham WEEKLY IRON AGE ran fifty-nine articles from 1885 to 1887, by Mary Gordon Duffee, called SKETCHES OF ALABAMA. Now in book form, it makes for a very delightful journey with Miss Duffee from Tuscaloosa, Alabama to Blount Springs, Alabama thru what is now the city of Birmingham.

You'll laugh at her description of school yards, "always with a switch orchard convenient for the cure of misbehavior." You'll be fascinated with her legend of the two Indian fishermen, whom "the Great Spirit, angry over their duel, doomed the two to sleep by day and fish as friends by night." You'll cry at her description of the boys who "were among the first to volunteer and follow the flag of the South," in the War of Northern Aggression. You'll be shocked to read, "men split rails for 40 cents a day ... corn was 30 cents to 40 cents a bushel ... butter 8 cents ... honey 6 cents ... chickens 10 cents each." You'll marvel at Dr. Bart's, UNFAILING CURE FOR ALL PULMONARY DISEASES - WITHOUT THE USE OF MEDICINE. What was this miracle cure? Read and see! Meet the Duke of Birmingham, described as "careless in dress yet elegent in manner." Meet the founders of Birmingham as they gathered around a long table in an upstairs room, the author writes, "How often have I wished that a painting such as Leonardo de Vinci's LAST SUPPER might have been done." And meet the author, at age 21, in April 1865, after seeing the destruction of Elyton (now Birmingham) and Montevallo "knelt and dedicated my futher life to the glory of my native state."

MYRICK FAMILY HISTORY. By Victor R. MYRICK, [redacted] 1980. 116 pp. Hardcover. Price unknown. Copy donated to the Central Georgia Genealogical Society Library by the author.

The author begins this family history with some early facts about the Myrick family in Wales, ca. 550-575 A.D., starting with Francis Myrick I and brings the descendants down to the present day. Mr. Myrick spent ten years compiling this well written and well documented history. The book contains a table of contents, photographs, and a preface by the author. Some of the allied families are: Thompson, Vinson, Wood, Brooks, Griffin, Stapleton, Fountain, Aycock, Sanders, and Gibbs. I expecially enjoyed the newspaper account from the Cochran Journal in 1939 about Mary Vinson Myrick.

CENSUS RECORDS 1830 through 1860, PULASKI and BLECKLEY COUNTIES, State of Georgia. Compiled by Victor R. MYRICK. 1976. A Bicentennial Project through Bleckley Primary School, Cochran, Georgia. 110 pp. Softcover. Price unknown. Copy donated to the Central Georgia Genealogical Society Library by the author-compiler.

The 1830 and 1840 census records are not indexed. The 1850 and 1860 census records are indexed separately by surname, age and birthplace are given. Also, any member of a household with a different surname will be found in that household, as well as in the alphabetical index. Pulaski County was organized in 1808 from Laurens County, which had been formed in 1807 from Wilkinson County. At that time, Pulaski County contained all of present Pulaski and Bleckley Counties and some territory now in Dodge and Wilcox Counties. For anyone who has spent hours reading census records on microfilm, this book will be greatly appreciated.

BOOK REVIEWS AND PUBLICATIONS NOTED (cont'd.)

WOE AND GIDDIUP. By Rebecca DOBSON, [redacted]. 192 pp. Paperback. $15.00 plus postage from the author. Copy in private library of the reviewer and may be borrowed by members of the Central Georgia Genealogical Society.

This is a story of the Peerless Powells of Possum Trot, Alabama. The families of POWELL, AVENT, GOOCH, HOLLEY, MASSIE, COX, COST, CAIN, FLEMING, THAMES and others are the ancestors of Mrs. Rebecca Dobson and she introduces the reader to them through the hardships that our early settlers all experienced.

Mrs. Dobson portrays the trials of the southern wife and mother during the Revolutionary and Civil Wars. These women became "the head of households" for many months in the absence of their husbands. They had to learn how to hunt for food; to butcher and preserve meat; plow and harvest the fields. They often had to protect themselves, their homes and their children from wild animals and men too.

The South had lots of problems after the Civil War. Our soldiers came home to find homes destroyed, the land unplowed and unready for spring crops. The men turned to fighting and drinking and killing and even desertion. But it was the southern woman who kept her head and "kept the home fires burning" to become the strength and dependable source of her children.

OLD BIBLE RECORD

Contributed by: Mrs. Addie P. HOWELL, [redacted]

This Bible record appears to be a record of the Mitchel/Matchett family. The earliest entry (by date) is the record of Jane Matchett, born 25 Dec.1792, but you will note that this is not the first entry. Why? Note also the difference in handwriting — this tells us that the entries were not made by the same person. Old Bible records are always interesting and often a source, if not the only source, of valuable information. We do not know who might be researching this family line, but the record is presented for your information and to give our readers an idea as to what some old Bible records might look like. These are not the best copies for reproduction, but we hope they come out half way decent. This Bible was bought in an antique store in Pennsylvania by R.C. DeFoore, Giles Road, Route 1, Byron, GA 31008.

GUIDELINES FOR PREPARING FAMILY PEDIGREE CHARTS

A PEDIGREE IS A RECORD OF A DESCENDANT'S BLOODLINES, BOTH PATERNAL AND MATERNAL, TRACED THROUGH ANCESTORS IN THEIR NATURAL ORDER OF PRECEDENCE.

A pedigree usually starts with a living descendant and traces the descendant's bloodlines through as many preceeding generations as possible. This chart may be used to show the pedigree of an individual, or it may be used to show the pedigrees of a husband and wife. For an individual's pedigree show the person's name in the long single-line center box on the chart; for a husband and wife's pedigrees start with the nine-line center box on the left side of the chart, and leave blank the long single-line box. When charting the pedigree of an individual you may show as much information in the single-line box as you desire, or have room for. When starting with an individual always indicate the person's sex as follows: Show "s" in the ( ) for a son, and "d" for a daughter in the ( ) before the person's name. For example:

(s) James Thomas MARTIN, b 18 Jul.1917, Hamilton County, OH

Spacing on the FAMILY PEDIGREE chart is scaled for use of a standard typewriter, or the information may be hand printed. The complete chart is scaled for proportional reduction to sixty-five percent during printing for reproduction on 8½ x 11-inch paper (standard size typewriter paper).

NAMES: Always show a person's complete name: first, middle, and SURNAME. Always show a woman's complete maiden name and not the surname of her present or previous husbands. Do not show nicknames, aliases, titles, etc. Show Jr., Sr., II, III, and so forth after a person's name. Show surnames in all CAPITAL LETTERS.

DATES: Show all dates in the following manner, DA-MO-YEAR. Use the following three-letter abbreviations for months: Jan., Feb., Mar., Apr., May, Jun., Jul., Aug., Sep., Oct., Nov., and Dec. When typing dates do not leave a space between the month and year, e.g., correct, 12 Sep.1856, not 12 Sep. 1856. The chart is not scaled for this extra space. Instead of "ca." use "c." for approximate dates.

PLACES: Whenever there is room you should show the town, county, and state. Foreign countries should be shown in similar detail. Within the United States the county and state are more important than just a town and state — watch out for cities which are in parts of more than one county.
INTERMENT: This is the place of burial, which may or may not be the same as the place of death.

MARRIAGE: If this is other than the husband's first marriage show the number of this marriage in ( ) immediately after "m." and before the date of marriage. After marriage date you may show place of marriage if there is room. County and State are usually sufficient for place of marriage.

The following two-letter abbreviations for states was developed by the U.S. Postal Service

AL - Alabama	HI - Hawaii	MA - Massachusetts	NM - New Mexico	SD - South Dakota
AK - Alaska	ID - Idaho	MI - Michigan	NY - New York	TN - Tennessee
AZ - Arizona	IL - Illinois	MN - Minnesota	NC - North Carolina	TX - Texas
AR - Arkansas	IN - Indiana	MS - Mississippi	ND - North Dakota	UT - Utah
CA - California	IA - Iowa	MO - Missouri	OH - Ohio	VT - Vermont
CO - Colorado	KS - Kansas	MT - Montana	OK - Oklahoma	VA - Virginia
DE - Delaware	KY - Kentucky	NB - Nebraska	OR - Oregon	WA - Washington
DC - Dist. of Col.	LA - Louisiana	NV - Nevada	PA - Pennsylvania	WV - West Virginia
FL - Florida	ME - Maine	NH - New Hampshire	RI - Rhode Island	WI - Wisconsin
GA - Georgia	MD - Maryland	NJ - New Jersey	SC - South Carolina	WY - Wyoming

A chart will accommodate five generations, starting with an individual, or four generations starting with a husband and wife. Continuation charts may be used to extend a pedigree over any number of additional generations. The following numbering system is recommended for the basic chart and continuation charts. It allows you to keep your continuation charts in a similar order as the names appear on your basic chart. The initial chart is assigned a base number and the base number plus a dash number is shown on continuation charts. For example: a base number could be 100 and continuation numbers could be 100-4, 100-9, 100-15, and so on. For any name which is continued show the dash-number after the person's name in the right margin of the chart from which the record is continued. Use odd numbers for persons shown in the upper half of the chart and use even numbers for persons shown in the bottom half.

	CONTINUATION CHARTS				CONTINUATION CHARTS
	1st.	2nd.	3rd.		1st.	2nd.	3rd.
	-1	-17	-33		-2	-18	-34	A basic chart plus
	-3	-19	-35		-4	-20	-36	two continuation
Upper	-5	-21	-37	Lower	-6	-22	-38	charts will provide a half	-7	-23	-39	half	-8	-24	-40	pedigree covering of	-9	-25	-41	of	-10	-26	-42	thirteen generations.
Chart	-11	-27	-43	Chart	-12	-28	-44
	-13	-29	-45		-14	-30	-46
	-15	-31	-47		-16	-32	-48

ALTERNATE METHOD: If you prefer a continuation chart to start with a husband and wife, rather than with an individual, show the continuation chart number in the right margin on line with the marriage date, and repeat the husband and wife information in the nine-line center box on the continuation chart. Leave blank the single-line center box on continuation charts. Your numbering system would be as follows:

	CONTINUATION CHARTS				CONTINUATION CHARTS
	1st.	2nd.	3rd		1st.	2nd.	3rd.
Upper	-1	-9	-17	Lower	-2	-10	-18	Basic chart plus two half	-3	-11	-19	half	-4	-12	-20	continuation charts
of	-5	-13	-21	of	-6	-14	-22	will cover ten
Chart	-7	-15	-23	Chart	-8	-16	-24	generations.

At bottom of the chart show the month and year the chart was prepared and the name and address of the person who prepared the chart.

This chart is printed on "Olde White" 24-lb. Permalife (acid-free) bond paper with a life expectancy of 300 years or longer. It is printed with reproducable blue ink and when framed will make a nice wall decoration. Reproduced on 8½ x 11-inch paper it makes a valuable enclosure when soliciting information by mail.

Did you know...?

Bonnie WALDEN, a charter member of CGGS and a long time Genealogist, has gone into the publishing business? That's right! She is publishing not one, but two family newsletters: One newsletter, the KERR/CARR COLLECTOR, is devoted to the KERR/CARR family lines and the other, known as BLACKBURN RESEARCHER, is devoted to the BLACKBURN family lines. This is a good way for persons related to a particular family line to exchange information and gain a lot of information at minimum expense. Bonnie says her newsletters are getting bigger with each issue. For more information write to Bonnie at [redacted] and enclose a business size SASE.

Not to be outdone, Addie HOWELL, our Corresponding Secretary and a Charter Member of CGGS, is also into what you might say is her second stage as a publisher. Last year, after about five years of research, she published CEMETERIES AND OBITUARIES of HOUSTON COUNTY, GEORGIA. Now she is publishing two family newsletters: One on the DAY family line and one on the GATES family line. She too is experiencing a steady increase in the amount of information in her newsletters. For more information write to Addie at [redacted] and enclose a business size SASE.

Lou and Muriel KLAM are leaving our area. They are going to Mukilteo, Washington for a family reunion (Muriel's Ellis line), than they are coming back to Missionary Cenacle Volunteers for Holy Trinity in Alabama, 36859, where, on 16 August 1983, Lou will assume the duties of Director of Education and Muriel will be the bookkeeper. Both Lou and Muriel have volunteered to serve without pay for one year or longer. We do have people who care and we are proud to have known these fine people. Muriel has served CGGS as its Treasurer for the past two and half years and we owe her a debt of gratitude for having served during a very trying period. Thanks Muriel, for a job well done. The community and middle Georgia owes Lou a debt of gratitude for having served as the first Director of the Robins Resident Center a position he held for more than thirteen years. Our best wishes go with you both.

Bill BELFLOWER, our First Vice President and a Charter Member of CGGS, has a very worth while project underway to help individual members and the Society's financial situation. Bill will search James A. Savage's first three generations of early settlers of New England for anyone for a small fee and then he donates the money to our Society. For more information write to Bill at [redacted] and enclose a business size SASE. You may also call Bill at [redacted].

Jim MARTIN, founder and first President of CGGS and currently the Editor, recently finished a 776 page book on HENRY CLAXTON AND DESCENDANTS, 1790-1980, and is getting ready to publish a small "How-To" book on the FAMILY UNIT METHOD for Organizing Research and Publishing Genealogies. A new, simple and easy to use method for anyone researching their family history. For more information write to Jim at [redacted].

This is a new feature for our Quarterly. I have a feeling that there is a lot going on within our membership which would be of interest to our readers and should be publicized. An informal presentation such as this might be the answer. If you have something along this line, or know of someone who has or is doing something which our readers would be interested in, please send it along to me for publication. Difficult or unusual research problems solved by a member, members conducting workshops/seminars, speaking at genealogical or historical functions, those who have recently published or in the process of publishing, new developments or methods for using the computer for genealogy, and other special projects and accomplishments of our members. Let's draw the line: no birth and death announcements, and such items as visits to relatives, etc. One word of caution; if you are writing about another member be certain you have your facts straight! If you like this idea let me hear from you along with any suggestions you may have. Thanks.

Readers are cautioned that items shown under "Publications Noted" have not been reviewed. HENRY CLAXTON AND DESCENDANTS, 1790-1980. By George W. Norris. Hardcover, 8½ x 11-inch, 766 pages, 64 pictures, over 7,600 names, indexed. $37.50 from Claxton Family Historical Committee, Attn. Mrs. Betty G. Parker, [redacted].

This book is one of the best I have had the honor to review. It represents a very large amount of research and effort on the part of its planners, organizers and preparers, with credit for the final organization and compilation of this extensive work going to James T. Martin, Professional Genealogist, Warner Robins, Georgia.

Much data, such as birth and death dates, place of interment, names of parents, grandparents, etc., were not supplied for many family units formed after 1900. It is my opinion that family members or individuals who were remiss in furnishing this important and necessary information will regret these omissions in later years. How do you explain to a child of tomorrow's generation why his great grandparent is not listed in a family group? Regardless of these shortcomings, this is a superb presentation of the Claxton family and a copy should be placed in a very special resting place of honor in the home of every Claxton descendant alive today, and copies should be made available for future members of this distinctive family. It is a fitting tribute to one of America's finer families!

Some of the allied families listed are: Anderson; Beasley; Carter; Davis; Evans; Foster; Giddens; Harrison; Ivey; Johnson; Kersey; Lawson; Love; McCumbers; Martin; New; Overstreet; Parker; Powell; Quesda; Riner; Scarboro; Tucker; Walker; Williams; Young, and Zuba, just to mention a few.

This is a bimonthly publication which began with the July 1981 issue. It covers computing as it is applied to genealogical tasks. The goal of the publisher and editor is to help genealogists to understand and exploit new, affordable computers. If you are interested in using a computer in your genealogical work I think this might be a worthwhile magazine to keep you abreast of the latest developments in computers and software.

Daniel and Bershaba Clifton found in the 1850 Jones County, GA Census. Daniel was born 1773 in North Carolina and Bershaba was born in 1772 in North Carolina. It is possible that Daniel was the son of Rev. Soldier Ezekiel Clifton (d. 1792, Jones County, North Carolina) and Sarah Blackwell Clifton. Ezekiel named his sons in his will as Ezekiel, Nathan, and Daniel

Children of Daniel Clifton:

Wealthy (b. ca.1810, GA., d ca.1853-6, Jones County, GA) married John McDonald 4 Dec.1834 in Jones County, GA.

Bershaba married Mathias Beard, 24 Jan.1827, Jones County, GA.

Sarah married William Hogan, 12 Feb.1824, Jones County, GA.

It is possible that Ezekiel Clifton who married Phebe Steel 4 Feb.1830 in Jones Co. was either Daniel's son (but he was not named in Daniel's 1853-6 estate probate and division) or perhaps his brother. In a Jones County deed, Ezekiel Clifton (wife Phebe) mentions his brother Nathan in Tattnall County, GA.

In 1859, John McDonald sold his Jones County property, and in 1860 he appears in the 1860 Houston County census. His wife Wealthy is not with him and John took her share of Daniel Clifton's estate in 1856 in Jones County. John's youngest child in the 1860 Houston County census is Mary born in 1853.

SCOTLAND, SCOTS, AND SCOTCH

Contributed by Mrs. Claire M. DIXON, [redacted]
Claire belongs to two clans: Morison, and Morrison. The following two items were taken from the THISTLE, May 1983 issue, published by Clan Morison of North America.

Thistle As a Scottish Emblem

In the 13th Century when King Haakon of Norway's galleys landed a formidable army near Largs, the Norse were foiled in a sneak attack by a thistle.

According to legend, a barefoot Norseman stepped on a thistle and cried out in pain. The Scots were alerted and the attack failed. Soon after, Haakon withdrew his army and the Hebrides were ceded to Scotland. So the thistle is to the point!

Scotch

There is nothing Scotch in Scotland but the whiskey.

The people of Scotland, or those of us whose ancestors came from there, are often referred to as "Scotch."

The term preferred for people or things is "Scots," "Scottish" or "Scotsman," etc. Whiskey is properly referred to as "Scotch."

(According to Webster's New World Dictionary, "Scotch-Irish" is correct for a group of people living in Northern Ireland who are descended from Scottish settlers. Ed.)

We are brothers not only to all who live, but to all who have gone before. And so we collect the trifles that once were valuables from other men and by the possession of these trifles are we bounden to them. These things stimulate imagination, stir the sympathy and help us forget the cramping bounds of time and space that so often hedge us close around.

The following article by Mrs. Chaple is an excellent example of the type of human interest which should be interwoven into a well written family history. Ed.

EDWARD FRANKLIN PEARCE FAMILY

By Catherine Mauldin Chaple*

Edward Franklin Pearce, son of John Russell and Martha Smith Pearce, was born on 22 November 1854, in Houston County, Georgia. On 13 December 1874, he married Susan Catherine Williams. Susan, born 9 May 1858, was the daughter of James A. and Mary Catherine (Gilbert) Williams of Houston County.

The childhood of Susan Williams had been an unhappy one. In the midst of the Civil War in 1862 her father died on Christmas Day leaving his wife, the four year old Susan, and her younger sister, Mary Bryant. For the next three years her mother struggled to manage the family plantation alone, but the fears of Reconstruction in Georgia following the cessation of the war led finally to her marriage to the plantation overseer, Oliver P. Churchwell. One year later Susan's mother died leaving the two sisters in the care of Churchwell, who, wishing to remarry, placed the girls in a boarding school in Perry, Georgia from the time of their mother's death until the girls married.

At the age of sixteen, while still in school, Susan met Edward Pearce in April 1874. Their courtship blossomed through Edward's direct and persuasive letters and Susan's chaste, proper and often very frank replies.

"Dear Miss," wrote Edward on 17 April 1874, "I for the first time seat myself to drop you a few lines to inform you that I am deeply smitten with you ... I do not wish to cultivate any pretended love to any lady therefore you need not be any ways backward in replying to this as this has been my intention ever since I became acquainted with you, but I have never had the opportunity of conversing with you privately ...."

Susan replied that she had received his "short epistle" and "persued the contents" with both pleasure and surprise "... and more than surprised when I learned that I had won your affections, Mr. E.F.P." She pointed out, as she was to do repeatedly in the course of their letters, that her youth and uncompleted education gave her grave doubts that needed further consideration. "Yet," she wrote honestly, "you may find someone that you love better than you do me, Mr. E.F.P."

Undaunted, Edward persued a more direct approach. "You may have already been informed of the marked preference I have shown toward you. My affections which have sprung from an appreciation of your amiable temper, and allow me to say it without meaning to flatter you, an admiration of your personal charms." Edward continued to state that he considered himself shortly to be securely settled and "the one with whom I should seek an alliance in a partnership for life would be yourself."

However, Susan's traumatic childhood had left her with a deep fear of being unable to love. "I could not tell my own feeling," she wrote honestly, "ask for love, I never knew what love was." Edward was deeply understanding. His own childhood had been disturbed by the war years when his father left his eight year old child, to be a guard at the Andersonville Prison. At his father's return, the family met him with their own tragedy. Edward's blind three year old younger brother, Marcus Baskin, had died the previous day. Edward gently persuaded his future bride, "I hope that you have learned to love in this time. I know very well that you have learned to love."

By December, Edward had persuaded Susan to be his wife and they were married by John Churchwell at the home of her step-father. Their marriage was listed in the local news of Hawkinsville on 17 December 1874.

Edward and Susan Pearce had nine children born in Pulaski County, Georgia before moving to Wilcox County where they settled in January 1898 in the 12th Land District, lot No. 60. The family were members of the Union Baptist Church, near Pitts, Georgia.

Their married life was not untouched by moments of personal tragedy despite their continued and deep devotion to each other. While in Pulaski County, their second child, four year old Edward Russell, was killed in the family's cotton gin on 7 September 1881. Thirteen years later their seventh child, also four years old, died of typhoid fever on 3 December 1894. The year brought a double tragedy in the death by fire of Susan's sister, Mary Bryant DuPree. The shock of the double loss left Susan in deep mourning: she continued to wear black until her death. Such was their devotion to their children that when their youngest daughter Aline Ellen, suffered a traumatic divorce from Clifton Mauldin in 1921, she and her three daughters, Olga Ruth, Kate Jeanette and Evelyn Maxine found a home with Edward and Susan.

WHO IS WHAT? TITLES, TITLES, TITLES ...

Reprinted by permission from THE HOUSE OF MAXWELL, Spring Issue 1983, published by The Clan Maxwell Society of the U.S.A.

Many Americans who read history or ethnic news are not familiar with the British titles of nobility that we so often come across in our reading. Just what is an Earl? Is that higher or lower than a Duke? Why is an Earl's wife called a Countess? And what is a Lord? Or a Laird?

Kings, Queens, Princes, and Princesses we understand — these are the monarch and first generation offspring. Other hereditary titles often seen are — in descending order of importance — Duke, Marquess or Marquis, Earl, Viscount, Lord, and Baron. Non-hereditary titles include Baronet and the "Sir" of knighthood.

Dukes used to be semi-autonomous rulers of kingdoms or sub-kingdoms. They did not used to be, but now are often related to the monarch — examples are the Duke of Cumberland, the Duke of Argyll.

Marquess (Marchioness) are not as common in Scotland as either Dukes or Earls, but rank between the two. It's an imported French title. The Stuarts are the Marquis of Bute, the Kennedys the Marquis of Ailsa.

Earls are called "Counts" on the European continent — which is why their wives are Countesses. Earl comes from the Scandinavian title "Jarl". Earls used to rule Counties — and in the days of loose central control they were almost independent little kings — examples include the Earl of Glascow (Boyle) and the Earl of Wigtown (Fleming).

Viscounts are what it says: vice-counts, below an Earl. Lords are a little lower and originally held oversight over a considerable expanse of land which could be expected to furnish a considerable party of armed men in case of war. In Scotland they often head families with several cadet families — the Lord of the Isles with several MacDonald Clans; the Lord Strathspey with sub-families of Grants at Rothiemurchus, Tallochgrom, Glenmoriston, etc.

Barons usually headed a fortified house and enough land to provide a small party of warriors. The title was hereditary as long as they kept up their obligations to the overlord — which is why one reads of rebellious lords forfeiting their titles and estates. Clan Chieftanships are hereditary — but Chiefs may or may not also have a title of nobility. Most do, many do not.

Baronetcies and Knighthoods are "earned" titles granted for service rendered — the son of a knight must "earn his own spurs". A Laird is a major property owner — here cash could bring a Lairdship.

Titles no longer carry their true territorial significance — the Duke of Montrose may live in Africa; Ailsa is a very small island indeed; the title Viscount of El Alamein is purely commemorative. So there you have them, Dukes to Barons — and to confuse the situation again remember that one person can be moved up to a "higher" title — or hold several titles at one time. Finally, remember that nobles are known by their titles rather than their names — and don't forget that the word "the" is part and parcel of the title: The Earl of Seaforth, The Lady Strathspey.

BOOK REVIEWS and PUBLICATIONS NOTED

POLICY: Book reviews of publications pertaining to genealogy and related subjects are published in our Quarterly as a service to our readers. Authors and publishers are welcome to contribute books and other publications for review. Books contributed for review become property of the Central Georgia Genealogical Society, Inc., and are placed in the Society's library after the review has been published. Contributors are mailed a copy of the Quarterly containing the review. CGGS members only may loan books and other publications for review, after which the items are returned to the member if requested. Flyers announcing the publication and sale of books and other publications, except those sponsored by the Society, will not be reprinted or enclosed in the Quarterly. A "bare bones" description may be shown under "Publications Noted" when the actual item has not been received for review. Readers are cautioned that items shown under "Publications Noted" have not been reviewed. INDEX TO PROBATE RECORDS OF COLONIAL GEORGIA 1733-1778

Softcover, 8½ x 11 inches, pp. v, 106, indexed, $14.00 plus $1.00 postage and handling. Published by R. J. Taylor, Jr., Foundation, [redacted]

This book is an invaluable tool for anyone researching colonial Georgia. It is an index to names appearing on probate records (wills, bonds, bills of sale, deeds of gift, letters of administration, miscellaneous legal documents, guardianship bonds, inventories, Chatham County records, Richmond County records, and Wilkes County records), at the Georgia Department of Archives and History, and holdings at the University of Georgia which includes the Keith Read Collection, the E. Merton Coulter Collection, and the Telamon Cuyler Collection.

To use this index you would first look for your ancestor in the alphabetical index and this would refer you to the document, or documents, where your ancestor's name appears. (For example: after the name James MARSHALL we find "o, F:153-7; LA:153, w, A:204-8; LW:137." On page 4, in a key to symbols, we find that "o" is the code for "other" (e.g., debtor, creditor, slave, neighbor, etc.), and "F:153-7" is the code for (Colonial) Inventories, Book F. Therefore, when we look for entry number 153-7 in Book F (p.15), we find "Matthew HATCH, d(1765)." This tells us that James MARSHALL'S name appears on the inventory of the estate of Matthew HATCH who died in 1765. This also provides proof that your ancestor, James MARSHALL, was in colonial Georgia in 1765.

If you should desire to obtain a photocopy of a document this index will give you specific identification so that you can order a copy by mail. For holdings in the Archives the address is: Georgia Department of Archives and History, 330 Capitol Avenue, S.E., Atlanta, GA 30334. For holdings at the University of Georgia the address is: Special Collections Department, University of Georgia Libraries, Athens, GA 30602. The original documents may be examined at the University, but no mail or telephone research requests can be filled. For documents retained by the county copies may be requested from the courthouse of the county.

At the time a chart is submitted for publication the contributor may order extra copies for 5¢ per copy, minimum of 20 copies per chart.

Pedigree charts are published to provide information for our readers and to serve as a query from the contributor. If you can help fill in the blanks on any pedigree chart please write to the person whose name and address are shown at the bottom of the chart.

WARNER ROBINS — "The First Hundred and Ten Years of Houston County, Georgia," earlier produced but not published, will soon be available through the Central Georgia Genealogical Society Inc.

The society, whose purpose is to collect, preserve and disseminate knowledge and information with reference to genealogical and related historical, biographical and heraldic data, has teamed up with First Federal Savings and Loan Association to make this book available to the public.

"A few copies were produced in 1934, but never published," said Ed Lusk, society treasurer.

Beulah Cruthirds, past president of the society, explained that a few copies were mimeographed for Houston County schools and libraries and a few for citizens. With the help of First Federal Savings, the society is going to publish it for purchase by the public, she said.

In addition to the original material, the society will have indexed the volumne and included pictures and information on the schools of 1915.

The original Houston County, formed in 1821, was a very large county in Central Georgia, according to a brochure the society is distributing to inform the public of the book. The hardcover, 8-1/2 by 11 inches, acid-free paper, fully indexed and approximately 452 pages book, tells of the history of the county from 1822 to 1932.

The following present-day counties were a part of the original Houston County: Bibb, Crawford, Macon, Peach, Pulaski and Upson. the brochure states. "If your ancestors came from Houston County or stopped here on their way west, this book will make a valuable addition to your genealogical/historical library," it says.

This history covers such subjects as organization of the county, early marriages, church histories, schools and the 1827 land lottery, said Addie Howell, the society's corresponding secretary. It includes a roster of Confederate soldiers, a list of men who fought in the Spanish American War and World War I, plus facts on the communities and pioneer familes who lived here, Mrs. Howell said.

Orders for the book can be made through the Central Georgia Genealogical Society Inc., P.O. Box 2024, Warner Robins, Ga. 31099. The cost of the book is $22.95. Orders must be made before Nov. 15. For more information call Bill Belflower, first vice president in-charge-of-publicity at 923-1549 or Mrs. Howell at 953-3114.

The Central Georgia Society, which boasts of more than 125 members, from which more than 60 percent are from Houston County, was founded in October in 1978 and chartered in February 1981. "We are always looking for new members," added Mrs. Howell.

Society

The publication of Houston County's history is one of many projects the society has worked on over the past few years. They are the group responsible for microfilming the county's oldest newspaper, The Houston Home Journal, and placing it in the Nola Brantley Memorial Library.

This weekend the group also hosted a Genealogical Workshop at Flint Electric Membership Corporation.

"The workshop featured one of the best known genealogists in Georgia, Mary Warren from Danielsville," said Victor Myrick, society president. It also focused on researching colonial period records, the post revolutionary period, the post Civil War period and a celebration of Georgia's 250th birthday this year," he said.

Several of the society members have researched, written and published histories of their families and other accounts of Central Georgia history.

"History in its purest form is the people who made the events happen," said Lusk.

Myrick has published two volumnes of history, "The Myrick Family History 1660-1982" and "Census Records of Pulaski and Bleckley Counties 1830-1860."

Another member, Mabert Read, the book committee chairperson, said "geneology is like putting together a jigsaw puzzle. You look for the missing pieces."

She has written "The Bourlands in America — 1978" and "The Lovan Family in America — 1981."

Seeking data on all variant spellings of McVay/McVey/McVeigh/McVea/McVee/McVeagh, etc. Periodical published. Would appreciate material from family Bibles, etc. I also keep a file on the MORIARTY family line everywhere. Send me your pedigree chart and I will put you in touch with others working your lines. Include SASE with your chart so that I might notify you. Also the same with the PAULK family branches.

HUGHES

Would appreciate any member of CGGS checking back issues from vol. 1 - 4 for date on PAULK, BEASLEY, SHUFFIELD, and HUGHES surnames. I would like to obtain the information as it would be too much for me at this time to purchase all the back issues. Or would a member be interested in letting me borrow their issues? if I were to pay for the postage both ways.

PAULK
SHUFFIELD

I am seeking data on all PAULK and SHUFFIELD variant spellings in this area before 1850. Alfred H. PAULK, b 24 Jun.1825 in Boxankle Township, Monroe County, GA, feel that his parents were related to the Jones and Wilkerson County PAULKS. Located in Dale County, AL in 1850, but no proof of his parents. He had a brother Wm born in 1828. Thomas SHUFFIELD and wife Nancy (Beasley) both b in NC (Duplin County?) were parents of the following children: Dortha, James, Joseph, Amos A., Lewis, Preston, Margaret, Sarah, John and two older girls not named. Seeking wherabouts and parents of Thomas and Nancy before 1850 on census, AL, GA, NC? Would like to contact anyone searching the surname PAULK, would like to know when this surname came into being, my thoughts, for reasons of their own, a Paulk family member changed his name to F (Faulk in place of Paulk), am I wrong in assuming this? I have seen some real early records of FAULK. Also early records the F and P were written so fancy, perhaps this was confused and copied wrong on early records?

FAMILY

An Address to The 3rd Annual

Dedicated to the memory of my father,

Several years ago Alex Haley gave a new meaning to a word that most people had associated with plants. His book and TV movie "Roots" sparked a new interest in the field of genealogy and people who had never given a thought to their origins found themselves caught up in the search for their own roots — their own family histories. I remember when my father first started tracing the origins of the Reads — he made the typical mistake of the novice and picked out a member of the British Peerage who spelled his name the same way we do and tried to establish a link with that family. He quickly learned that it doesn't work that way and started the laborious tracing from this generation back. He did get as far back as 1800, but there the trail petered out and we're still in doubt as to when our branch of Reads first came to America.

This search for our origins is probably an expression of our natural curiosity about life in general. We need a knowledge of our heritage to give us a sense of being a true part of a greater scheme of things. As we become aware of our extended family — that is, all our ancestors and various branches — we begin to see that we are truly part of an even greater extended family; the family of Mankind specifically, and the family of God in general. We can realize, then, that we are never really alone in this world — we have relatives all around us. This sense of belonging is important because it gives perspective to history and assurance for the future.

Do you remember how dry history lessons used to be? ". . . and the population centers began to move westward, etc., etc." How much more exciting to read excerpts from a pioneer's diary such as "Crossed river today. Lost 2 ox and 1 goat. Had hoecake for supper. Josh found tracks that he thot might be Indians but no sign of where they had gone." Or "Buried Emma today. Died of snakebite in the canyon." Now, these were REAL, living people; not just statistics on population shifts! Can you imagine the trials, hardships, and emotion that were behind these diary entries?

As to assurance for the future — these same pioneers live on through their journals and through their descendants, just as part of us will live on through our children and their children — a continuing flow of humanity, uninterrupted since the beginning of time!

But what does FAMILY mean? Well, when we get right down to the narrowest view, to me it means me, my wife, and my three sons. (And my father-in-law who lives with us.) But more than that, it has a meaning all its own — it means warmth, happiness, shared joy and sorrow, common obstacles overcome, and love. I can take it even further: it means looking for my favorite hammer, only to find it in a puddle of oil under my 17 year old's car; it means baseball games on Tuesday and Thursday for my 12 year old and soccer practice on Wednesday and Friday for my 6 year old (or is it the other way around?) — well, you get the idea. It means fixing flat tires on bikes and using an old math brain to try to help with new math homework; it means getting conned into working at my wife's women's club bazaar when she knows I'd rather be doing ANYTHING else, and it means letting the yardwork go for an extra day because it's more fun to read about dinosaurs with my 6 year old than to worry about how tall the grass is getting. I guess what I'm saying is that it means involvement and sharing. Sharing and love. Yes, that must be it — both in the narrow sense of family and in the larger sense because FAMILY is more than just the people who fill my home, and it's more than being related by blood or marriage — FAMILY is a state of mind

Whoever we share the warm bond of concern and love with becomes FAMILY. For example — I have an "adopted" daughter. Her parents are dead and she has been shunted from relative to relative as she grew up. When I met her, she was about to throw away the possibility of achieving her high school diploma because she lacked half a credit and was resigned to working in a gas station as a cashier on the night shift and living with five other girls in a real dump. Through our encouragement (mainly my wife's, I must admit), Kathy finished her half credit in night school and got her diploma; found a better job and better living arrangements. While all this was taking place, she lived with us for several weeks and during that time, she asked what she should call me. Without really thinking, I answered "Oh, call me Ron, or Mr. Read, or whatever feels comfortable; just don't call me late for dinner." She replied "Okay . . Dad." and she's called us "Mom" and "Dad" ever since. There's no blood relationship — only a shared, concerned relationship. She has become family because we treat her like family!

It used to be that families grew up, married, raised their own families, and died all within a few miles of where they were born. Cousins grew up together and children really knew their grandparents — not just as someone who whizzed in at Christmastime for a visit, or to whose house they were "zipped off to" for Thanksgiving. Aunts and uncles were seen regularly — they weren't just names that children had trouble putting a face to. Our modern "diversified" family unit has changed all that. Military service, job moves, or just the desire to see the other side of the mountain makes us a mobile society. We moved around so much through Dad's military service that by the time I was 16, I'd lived half my life in Europe. If it hadn't been for their involvement with genealogy, Mom and Dad wouldn't have had nearly as many friends after they retired since they hadn't had a chance to put down roots. And Mom wouldn't have had so many people giving such love and support to her when Dad passed away last year. We always hope that even with a diversified family that the LOVE is still there, but we often feel that something is missing.

That "something" is a sense of heritage. As we lose track of our common roots, we lose sight of the larger sense of family. I see this frequently in Florida, where we have a large elderly population. Many of these folks can no longer make the journies home to the north either due to age, climate differences, health or economic status. Their youngsters, perhaps too involved in the "family" things I mentioned earlier, cannot make the trip south. So we have these people of a "forgotten" generation separated from their roots, sitting in their mobile homes, listening to TV instead of the giggles and laughter of their grandchildren. And this is our collective sorrow.

Tonight I see in front of me many faces that until yesterday were only names I'd heard. I see cousins several times removed that I'd never have met if it weren't for reunions such as this.

Now, we've discovered our "roots" and we need these gatherings to keep us in touch with each other; to give us an appreciation of the rich heritage we share. The more opportunities we have to risk together, solve together, learn together, work together, play and laugh together, cry and pray together, the more joy and love we will share together —

And we can truly say that whether by blood, marriage, or love — all of us here are BOURLANDS and we share the hopes, dreams, and expectations of generations past, present, and future!

The following is the introduction to a family history written by Mrs. Park. We appreciate our members sharing their work with us and it is by seeing what others have and are doing that we learn from each other. Ed.

"REMEMBER WHO YOU ARE"

While we three girls were growing up, with Granny, Poppy and Aunt Martha, and would leave the house, Aunt Martha would say, "Now, remember who you are." That admonition was meant for us to behave, to be lady-like, and to mind the rules. Not because she said so, but because we had been taught that we were special people. We were special people because God had blessed us with good minds and strong bodies and stout hearts.

Now, in these days, many years later, I wonder who I am.

First of all, I am a child of God. He made me and gave me the world to live in. He gave me an enlightened insight into His plan of redemption for His children.

I am the daughter of a mother and father who, for reasons I will never know, seemed unable to cope with illness and hard times and three children.

We were reared by our paternal grandparents and aunt, who firmly taught us how to live Christian lives.

We were separated from our younger sister, Joan, who was born after we three were brought to Georgia, from Missouri. We lived knowing our mother only through letters, a few visits, and nominal gifts on our birthdays and at Christmas. We lived knowing we had a baby sister whom we saw only on a few occasions, as children.

I am my husband's wife and love him dearly. He is truly a gentle man. We have had forty-four years together now.

I am the mother of my children, and a good mother I have tried to be.

I am my grandchildren's grandmother. Sometimes they need me and I try to answer those needs.

According to Emily Post, I am Mrs. Lawton Park. According to law, I am Helen DuPree Park. According to Women's Libbers, I am Ms. Helen Park. According to my mother, I am just Helen. No middle name, no nickname.

If a name means anything, I am Beauty of the Prairie. But then Granny said, "Beauty is as Beauty does."

I thirst after knowledge!

After living a married life-time among my husband's people, happy though I have been, suddenly a few years ago the wonder of who I am overwhelmed me. Everyone around knew the Park family, but none of them really knew anything about my family and the thirst gained a hold on me.

Joan began writing me of sorting family pictures, and I copied her by sorting ours. We had boxes of them, unnamed and undated.

Quite by accident I got down the two flat metal trunks from the attic, containing family treasures, kept for years by Granny and Aunt Martha. Days and weeks were spent reading old letters with poignant information and significant news. Pictures unfolded on the rough times family members had, and at the same time, long forgotten joys developed within me.

REMEMBER WHO YOU ARE (cont'd.)

I began to know who I am!

Joan had always been interested in her genealogy. In high school and again after her marriage she made up a family chart, somewhat vacant in spots, but with sufficient information for us to start a genealogical trek. She began and I became very fascinated with the idea and offered my help.

Being in the middle of our ancestors and our descendants is an exciting place to be, and it is hard to know which direction to follow first.

But here we go, playing with Leviathan. (See Job: 41.)

GENEALOGY-POX

Contributed by: Mrs. Gervaise W. PERDUE, [redacted]

GENEALOGY-POX: Very contagious to adults, some young people, but not as frequent as in adults.

SYMPTONS: Continual complaint as to need for names, dates, kinships, and places; patient has blank expression, sometimes to spouse and children; has no taste for work of any kind except feverishly looking through records at libraries and courthouses; has compulsion to write letters; swears at mailman when he doesn't leave mail; frequents strange places such as cemeteries, ruins, desolate country areas; makes secret night (telephone) calls; hides phone bills from spouse; mumbles to self; has strange faraway look in eye.

TREATMENT: Medication useless; disease not fatal, but gets progressively worse. Patient should attend genealogy workshops, subscribe to genealogy magazines and be given a quiet corner in the house where no disturbances occur. NO KNOWN CURE!

CONCLUSION: The usual nature of this disease is that the sicker the patient gets, the more enjoyment comes about, and confusion is usually with spouses or those persons not under the influence of this virus.

GENEALOGY

Researcher's ultimate goal is to publish family history

By Kenneth Thomas
Special to The Journal-Constitution

The ambition of many genealogists is to publish their research in a family history book. One of the best ways to decide on a style is to look at other published family histories at a library or the Georgia Archives.

Carl Boyer III published recently "How to Publish and Market Your Family History," which is a good guide. This column has available a one-page "Guidelines/Checklist for Publishing a Book," which gives some pointers. The book "North Carolina Research" includes a section showing three numbering systems for family histories. All of the above as well as those books mentioned below are at the Georgia Archives.

The following family histories have been received by this column. Due to lack of space we will give only brief details about them.

Louise Moor and Sueanne Field, "Ancestors and Descendants of John Berry Benson, 1795-1887" (in Virginia, South Carolina and Georgia); The Butler Family Association, "The Butler Family" (descendants of Noble Butler); George W. Norris, "Henry Claxton and Descendants, 1790-1980" compiled by James T. Martin (descendants settled in the Johnson-Laurens County area in Georgia); William E. Daughtry, "Daughtry and Some Connected Families of the South, Volume I" (includes all spellings and also Exum family); Samuel G. and Zell DeLay, "The DeLay Family History" (from France, Virginia, North Carolina and Georgia); Lloyd L. Evans, "Evans Family of Screven County, Ga." (also Burke County, Ga.).

Ben F. Ormand, Jr., "Ormand History and Descendants of James Ormand Sr. 1669-1766" (traces five branches including those of Ormond Beach, Fla., North Carolina and Alabama); Claudia C. Weller, "Of One Dozen Sassers" (in Georgia in Screven and Decatur counties with a reunion at Cairo, includes 900 pages); V.L. Fulmer, "Genealogical Sketches of the Shealy Family" (reprint of 1941 edition about a German immigrant family to South Carolina, connected to many other German lines); Dorothy Sturgis Pruett, "The Rev. Daniel Sturges Story" (of Columbia County, Ga., whose son was surveyor general); Winnie Tallant and Nancy Heard, "The Heritage and Descendants of David Tallant, 1784-1856, of Georgia" (in Forsyth and Hall counties, Ga.).

Mrs. Frank Ross Stewart, "The Thompson Family" (includes data from Thompson Family Association, Thompsons of Madison County, Ga.); Emanuel Danese, "The Tracy Heritage from A.D. 250" (contains valuable set of antebellum letters from Tracys in Georgia to northern relatives, and later from Florida where E.D. Tracy was a major figure before his death in 1874); Ruby Priest and Hazel Weeks, "Weeks Background and Beginnings" (Weeks family from Carolinas to Colquitt County, Georgia area); Elbert W. Woods, "A Woods Family History" (includes families in Madison, Pike and Fulton counties, Ga.); Genevieve Broome Jones, "Children, Meet Your Ancestors" (written in 1976 for her grandchildren, it includes a little about all of the author's ancestors, including Deveron, Summers, Blakeneys, Exums and Broomes).

All the above vary in size, content and quality. All include many different families than just the main one. Anyone contemplating publishing his family history should note the variations in title and choose one that is clear and meaningful.

Evelyn Davis Fincher, "Fincher in the USA, 1683-1900" (Georgia Finchers appear to be from Jasper, Newton, Pike, Forsyth, Gwinnett, Fayette, Butts, and Whitfield counties); William A. Forbes, "Forbes: An Ancestry Notebook" (Georgia's are in LaGrange and Columbus); Bett Williams and Kathy Best, "Oliver Perry Ford, 1837-1908" (of Gwinnett County, Ga., and his descendants); Percy L. Geiger, "The Geigers of South Carolina" (reprint of 1945 addition); Daniel H. Redfern, "Alexander McDonald of New Inverness, Ga., and his Descendants" (includes those in Thomas County, Ga.); Paul B. Murff, "The Genealogy of Randolph S. Murff, 1784-1855", (reprint and update of 1955 edition, family came out of South Carolina).

RESEARCHING MILITARY AND PENSION RECORDS

Contributed by: James T. MARTIN, [redacted]

For those genealogists who have used military and pension records this will be "old hat." For those who have not used these records I hope this article will be of some help. The example I have chosen to use for this article is, I think, typical of what the researcher can expect to find — it doesn't give a complete and unquestionable record.

Since colonial days in America the military believed in keeping records — they still do. Most of these records were handwritten, even into the late 1930s. When you write to the National Archives for a copy of your ancestor's military service you will usually receive photocopies of the Company Muster Rolls which covers his service. If your first request does not provide you with a complete record you should submit a second request. I have had this experience, but upon submitting a second request I have received a much more complete record which filled most of the gaps in the first records I received. Why? Who knows?

Another valuable set of records which the researcher can make good use of is the applications for pensions, either by the veteran, his widow, and in some cases by the veteran's dependant mother. To obtain copies of military service or pension records you will need to obtain form NATF 26 from National Archives Trust Fund (NNMS), 8th & Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, DC 20408 The current charge is $5.00 for each record ordered.

I thought it would be interesting to take an actual case and publish the information found in a soldier's military records and the application for a pension by his dependant widowed mother. The case in point is that of Private Samuel R. WALDEN and Caroline WALDEN, his dependant widowed mother. (It just happens that Lucinda WALDEN was my paternal grandmother, however the above Samuel R. WALDEN is not of my direct line.)

Muster roll for Sept Oct

Buried in Tenn.
W. A. Gibbs,
Clerk.

The above military records consist of: 4 Company Muster Roll Sheets.
1 Company Muster-out Roll.
1 Casualty Sheet.

When you receive records such as these from the National Archives it is a good idea to arrange them in chronological sequence and look at the entire record before you start to record the facts concerning your ancestor's military service. In the case of Samuel R. WALDEN we can see that some of his records are missing; the Company Muster-in Roll and the Company Muster Rolls for September, October, November, and December 1862. You will also note that the Casualty Sheet shows two different dates of death; on the right hand side his date of death is indicated as 22 May 1862 while on the left hand side the date of death is shown as 27 Jan. 1863. Also, the Company Muster-out Roll shows his date of death as 27 Jan.1863. Both the Casualty Sheet and the Company Muster-out Roll shows his place of death as Murfreesboro, Tennessee. Are the missing items not in Walden's file at the National Archives or did the searcher overlook them? We don't know? But, it is worth a try to send another request and see if you can get the missing parts. I have had this happen and on the second request I have received the missing items.
Just in case the Archives do not have the missing items I would send a request to the Kentucky Historical Society and see if they have a copy of the 9th Regiment's service. This, I hope, would tell me when the Regiment was formed and give me a date when Company H was formed.

From the above records we do know that Samuel R. WALDEN was a Private in Company H, 9th Regiment Kentucky Infantry, that he enrolled at Columbia, Kentucky for a period of three years, that he served through October 1862, and that he died at Murfreesboro, Tennessee of an unknown disease. We also know that he was mustered out on 15 Dec. 1864 at Louisville, Kentucky.

From these records we could have ASSUMED quite a lot, but they are incomplete and by not having the complete record we could get into a lot of trouble by assuming too much. This is one of the reasons they were chosen, to alert you to the possibility of jumping to conclusions when you do not have enough facts to go on.

Starting on the following page we will look at the application for a widowed mother's pension.

Sir:

I have the honor to return herewith application for Pension, No. 120.001 with such information as is furnished by the records of this Office. Private, D. R. Walden, Co. "H" 9th Regiment Ky. Vol. is reported to this Office by Surgeon S. R. H. Jeffrays as having died Janry 21st 1858 at Ky Ib Hospl. of Febris Typhoides.

Surgeon, U. S. Army.

The Commissioner of Pensions,

The Surgeon General's Office furnishes information as to the date of death, place, and cause.

(The cause of death "Febris Typhoides" is commonly known as Typhoid Fever.)

Mr. Tyre J. Meadors and Anderson Meadors citizens of Macon County, State of Tennessee on oath say we are and have been for 25 years well acquainted with Caroline Walden the applicant, and her son Samuel R. Walden since his birth, who was a Private in Company "H" of the Ninth Regiment of Kentucky Infantry Volunteers. We know the applicant Caroline to be the mother of the said Samuel R., that he died and left no wife, child or children surviving him, he never having been married. We know that B---- Walden, the father of this said Samuel R., died on or about the 15th day of June 1858. We further state that at the time said Samuel R. enlisted into the army of the United States he was the only son living with his mother and she was dependant upon his work and labor upon the farm for a support to herself and daughters.

B---- Walden, the father of the said Samuel R., at his death owned about 100 acres of poor land, 25 acres of which was in cultivation. The land with its improvements was worth about $350, one third of which belonged to the widow, the said Caroline, the remainder belongs to the heirs generally of said B----. The afforsaid Tyre J. Meadors states that he was a member of the same company with said Samuel R. and knows that he sent to his mother the largest portion of his pay after each pay day and up to the time of his death. The amount sent he cannot state but he knows it was a very large portion. Anderson Meadors states that up to the time of her son Samuel's death the said Caroline received and expended money in the support of herself and daughters, which she said she received from her son Samuel R. who was in the service and which I do not believe she could have received otherwise. We further state that we have no interest whatsoever in the prosecution of this claim.

Caroline WALDEN'S application for a pension and the various records pertaining thereto provides considerable information for the Genealogist. However, what they do not provide is also very valuable to the researcher. We know that Caroline's husband owned about 100 acres of land in Allen County, Kentucky and one of our next steps would be to get a copy of the land records showing when he bought the land and when Caroline sold the land and to whom. We would also go looking for newspapers published at the time of her husband's death — it just might give us some clues as to the names of his parents and grandparents, and other relatives who attended the funeral. The above records also indicate that Caroline moved from Scottsville, Kentucky to Macon County, Tennessee — and there is a good chance that we will find her around Lafayette. Where is she buried? What was the names of her daughters? What was her husband's name? I could not tell from these records.

As you can see, Military Service records and Pension records are of considerable help and they give us a lead as to where we might find additional information. If one of the ancestors you are researching served in one of the wars it will be well worth the $5.00 it costs to get a copy of his Military Service record and any pension records which may be available. Savannah Area Genealogical Association, Ltd.

P.O. BOX 15385 SAVANNAH, GEORGIA 31416

10 February 1984

NEWS RELEASE

The Savannah Area Genealogical Association, Inc., SAGA, was recently formed in Savannah, Georgia. Its purpose is to encourage an interest in family genealogy, to preserve genealogical records of the area, to aid others with research in all geographic areas and to interest the community in its heritage.

SAGA becomes the newest of 10 genealogical societies in Georgia. Since its founding, genealogical interest and research has been stimulated considerably by the recent observance, in 1983, of the 250th anniversary of the Georgia colony - Savannah being the first planned city in America - 1733. Its rich heritage evolves from the people of many nations who came here in its early beginnings from England, Italy, Portugal, Germany-Austria, Scotland, Ireland, France, Greece and Poland, among others.

Meetings are held the third Tuesday of each month at 7 PM at the Mall Branch Library. A newsletter, "The Saga" is published monthly. Plans are proceeding to publish a quarterly in the near future. Charter membership is available thru August 31, 1984. Queries are free to members. For information or membership in this society write: SAGA, P. O. Box 15385, Savannah, Georgia, 31416.

SUGGESTION: When using the above list it is advisable to look for a second marriage of a person. It would appear that James R. ROBERTS was married in 1825 and again in 1829. It also appears that he married sisters. If this be the case, we may find that his first wife died after 1825 and before 1829. You should also look for brides who appear to have married more than once. Ed.

NOTICE FROM THE NATIONAL ARCHIVES:

Each week we receive from 1500 to 2000 mail orders for copies of veterans records. Because of this continuing high volume of requests, we ask that you allow eight to ten weeks for the processing of your order for copies of veterans records.

Thank you for your cooperation.

RESEARCH BY MAIL

Contributed by: Mr. James T. MARTIN, [redacted]

Obtaining genealogical information by mail from out-of-state sources is one of the many ways the researcher has for doing his research. However, when attempting to obtain information from a state's vital records the process can become a little frustrating. One does not know whether to write for the information, enclosing a check for the correct amount if known, or whether to first write for the necessary blank forms to obtain the information one desires. I thought my recent experience with the state of New Hampshire might be enlightening. My first approach was to write a letter setting forth all the information I had, date of birth, death, etc.; asking for a marriage date, enclosing my check for the proper amount, and also enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope. What I received was two blank forms(one for marriage records and one for birth records), and a form letter, with my check enclosed. The form letter, printed front and back, is shown below together with the two blank forms for requesting information. If you have not encountered a similar situation you have been lucky — but don't become overconfident!

"This will acknowledge your recent letter in which you requested a copy/copies of certain vital record(s). We are unable to handle your request for one or more of the following reasons, as checked. In replying, enclose all materials returned along with adequate fee and information for search as described below.

1. ( ) NO FEE ENCLOSED. In accordance with the law, it will be necessary that we receive in advance a fee of three dollars ($3.00) before a search of our records may be made for any one record. The fee of $3.00 will include the payment for the issuance of a certified copy of verification. Please submit fee by check or money order, made payable to: STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

2. ( ) Check or money order is being returned herewith. See above relative to proper amount of payment.

3. ( ) You have failed to furnish adequate information. Please furnish the facts on the enclosed application(s).

4. ( ) Based on the information contained in your letter, under recent confidentiality legislation (RSA 126:14), you do not qualify for access to the record(s). Your relationship to registrant is not stated or your "direct and tangible interest" in the record has not been shown. We require further information. Please see reverse side for policy statement.

5. ( ) More specific information concerning dates involved is requested before a search can be initiated. Please indicate time frame involved: Check dates -

☐ prior to 1901 _____ approx. ☐ 1901-1937 _____ approx.

☐ 1938-1947 _____ approx. ☐ 1948 to present _____ approx.

6. ( ) The requested record is not on file at the present time. It has not been received from the local clerk. It takes approximately two months from the date of occurrence to process the record. You can either check directly with the clerk where the event took place or with this Bureau at a later date.

7. ( ) The record(s) you requested as a genealogist is/are not available to the public for this purpose as a result of recent confidentiality legislation (RSA 126:14). Please see the enclosed policy statement.

8. ( ) Genealogical work of this nature is not handled. We regret that it is impossible for us to do routine research work such as that outlined in your request. If you are interested, you may pursue this with a local genealogist as listed.

Policy Statement on Access to Vital Records

Applicants for any vital record should be aware of certain restrictions that now govern access to these documents as a result of recent legislation. The following guidelines summarize the policies now in effect.

Excerpt from a policy statement of the Bureau of Vital Records concerning Chapter 537, 1977 Laws of New Hampshire General Court:

> The applicant must have a 'direct and tangible interest' in the requested record. The registrant, a member of his immediate family, his guardian or their respective legal representative shall be considered to have a 'direct and tangible interest' in the record. 'Legal representative' shall include an attorney, physician, funeral director or other authorized representative acting in behalf of the registrant or his family. 'Immediate family' shall include mother, father, son, daughter, brother, sister, husband, wife, grandfather, grandmother, grandson, granddaughter, great-grandmother, great-grandfather, great-grandchildren, guardian, step-parents, step-children, aunt, uncle, nephew, niece of the registrant. It does not include cousins. A person covered by any one of the above categories qualifies for access to the records.

Excerpt from a policy statement of the Bureau of Vital Records concerning Chapter 529, 1977 Laws of New Hampshire General Court:

> A person shall be guilty of a Class B felony if he willfully and knowlingly makes any false statement in an application for a certified copy of a vital record or who uses such a certificate with intent to deceive.

NOTE: Many states have recently changed the laws that govern access to vital records, thereby serving a dual purpose:

- Reducing the use of such records for fraudulent purposes.
- Increasing the individuals right to privacy.

ANNOUNCEMENT

CHANGES IN PROCESSING REQUESTS FOR COPIES OF VETERANS' RECORDS AND PASSENGER ARRIVAL RECORDS

Effective May 1, 1984, all requests for copies of military service records or passenger arrival records must be submitted on NATF Forms 80 and 81, respectively. After May 1 prior versions of these forms (NATF Form 26 and NATF Form 40) will not be accepted for processing. All forms other than the NATF Form 80 or NATF Form 81 that are received after May 1 will be returned.

A change in payment policies will also take effect May 1, 1984. NARS has in the past required that payment accompany requests for copies of veterans records and passenger arrival records. After May 1, 1984 payment should not be sent with the NATF forms 80 and 81. NARS will research the request, prepare copies of any records located, and HOLD THE COPIES FOR 30 days or until payment is received, whichever is sooner. As soon as records are located and copied, researchers will receive a bill and instructions on returning their remittances.

Researchers should also submit a separate NATF-Form 80 for each file (pension or bounty-land or compiled military service) desired. Previously researchers could ask for multiple files on one form. This change is designed to facilitate processing by the National Archives. Any one interested in obtaining copies of the NATF-Forms 80 or 81 may do so after April 1 by writing to the following office:

Reference Services Branch (NNIR)
National Archives and Records Service
8th and Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W.

WHAT IS GENEALOGY?

PEDIGREE CHARTS

We would appreciate the opportunity to publish your pedigree charts in our Quarterly.

This service is offered without charge to members and nonmembers, and you may submit as many charts as you wish at your convenience. Charts will be published in the next issue of our Quarterly — if received in time and there is space available.

A published pedigree chart is another form of a query — it lets others see what you have and what data you are missing on a particular family line. We hope that you will help others by supplying any information you may have, or correcting information shown on a published chart, and that others will in turn help you by supplying information which you are missing.

The chart you submit for publication may be typewritten or hand printed. If typewritten we prefer that you use Elite size type and 12-pitch. If hand printed we prefer that you use all BLOCK LETTERS.

When you submit your chart for publication you may place an order for extra copies of the 8½ x 11-inch size chart. The current prepublication cost is as follows:

Minimum order of 20 charts	$2.00
30 charts	$2.80
40 charts	$3.60
50 charts	$4.30
60 charts	$5.00
70 charts	$5.70
80 charts	$6.40
90 charts	$7.10
100 charts	$7.70

After publication copies may be ordered at 15¢ each with a minimum of ten copies. They need not be all of the same chart.

The basic Family Pedigree chart will accommodate five generations. Additional charts may be used to extend a pedigree for any number of generations. It is not necessary that you have all five generations complete before submitting your chart for publication, but you should have at least four generations pretty well covered. A continuation chart should show at least two additional generations beyond the five shown on the basic chart.

We reserve the right to return any charts which we consider to be inadequate for publishing in our Quarterly.

In our Research Directory we have shown only one spelling of a name, for some names there are several variations.

We have tried to arrange the names in alphabetical order, but you will note that not all names are in strict alphabetical order. If you don't find a name where it should be look a little further and you may find it out of place.

Please let the Corresponding Secretary know of any errors, omissions, etc.

We are getting ready to put our Directory on the computer and we would like to work out as many bugs as possible.

SECTION II follows.

Christ Church

Macon, Georgia

FOREWORD: Church bulletins can be a source of genealogical information and they should not be overlooked, especially commemorative issues. The picture to the left was on the front of the church bulletin and the article was printed on back of the bulletin. You may find a name of an ancestor which you are looking for, and you may not. But it pays to check. Something else we can get from this article: Somewhere someone has some good records on the history of this church, and these records may provide the information we are looking for. Ed.

CHRIST CHURCH IS RICH IN HISTORIC INTEREST

The town of Macon was created by an act of the Georgia Legislature in December, 1822, and the first building lots were sold in March 1823. That same year the first Convention of the Diocese of Georgia established the Protestant Episcopal Society for the General Advancement of Christianity in the State of Georgia. From this Society two years later (1825) the Rev. Lott Jones came on a missionary tour to the new town, and at an informal meeting held in the Masonic Lodge Room on Cotton Avenue helped establish Christ Church. A corner stone commemorating this event can be seen in the base of the Parish House.

Services of the church were held at various places until a building could be erected, and citizens of other denominations worshipped with Christ Church until their own churches were established.

The first building was begun in 1838 on the present site. Contributions toward the work came in from all parts of Georgia and from South Carolina. The architecture followed the form of a Roman Cross, with a dome on top. All pews were rented with the exception of four reserved for "strangers". A diagram of the seating arrangement with the names of pew holders is in the Church Archives. Among pew holders and contributors are listed well-known names in the early history of Macon, such as Elam Alexander, who built many of the early Greek Revival houses; Isaac Scott, whose wife is said to have been the first white child born in Ft. Hawkins. At a later date, Sidney Lanier, the poet, and his wife, Mary Day, were married in the present church building.

The first Communion Cup and Bowl in the church belonged to Dr. Ambrose Baber, one of the founders, who was an American Foreign Ambassador. A ship containing Dr. Baber's personal effects had been wrecked in the Mediterranean, and divers were sent down to salvage valuables from the cargo. This cup and bowl were among the treasures retrieved. They can be seen under glass in a tablet on the wall of the Nave.

In 1842 the first organ ever brought to Macon was installed in Christ Church.

CHRIST CHURCH (Cont'd.)

In 1851 the first building was replaced with the present one. Every available part of the old was incorporated in the new. With their own hands parishioners dug about in the rubble of demolished walls to find usable bricks that might have been overlooked.

The church established Missions in different parts of the township: St. Barnabas, St. Paul, St. John, St. James. At one of the Missions a sewing class made clothing for the Confederate Army. As the war progressed and ammunition became scarce, the cherished bell in the church tower was tendered to the Confederacy to melt down for rifle bullets. After the War was over, the bell was replaced by a gift from Mr. A. A. Roff. It bears the inscription "Peace On Earth Good Will To Men". The window over the Chancel is a memorial to Mr. Roff.

The brass Alter Rail is a memorial to Bishop John W. Beckwith, the second Bishop of Georgia. The handmade needlepoint rug on the Alter Steps was designed to carry out the grape vine motif in the Alter Rail. The petit point kneeling cushions also were especially designed for the church, in symbolic liturgical figures and colors.

In the garden behind the Church is the Jones Memorial Chapel which was given to the church by Mrs. Julia Parkman Jones, in memory of her husband, and was designated for use as a Sunday School. At Mrs. Jones death, the bulk of her estate was left to the church for the building and operating a home for indigents. A large amount of social service work continues to be done through the Jones Home Fund. One of the memorial windows in the church is in memory of Mrs. Jones.

From the list of communicants and Rectors of Christ Church have come six Bishops: The Right Rev. C. T. Quintard, Bishop of Tennessee; The Right Rev. Frederick F. Reese, Bishop of Georgia; The Right Rev. James R. Winchester, Bishop of Arkansas; The Right Rev. Oliver J. Hart, Bishop of Pennsylvania; The Right Rev. Frank A. Juhan, Bishop of North Florida; The Right Rev. John Moore Walker, Bishop of Atlanta.

In the old City Cemetery, now being restored, the earliest marked grave is that of Charles Wentworth Barker, son of Nathaniel Barker, Secretary of the original Board of Christ Church.

NOTE: Names underscored for ease in citing — not underscored in the church bulletin.

UNUSUAL FIND!

While researching in the marriage book of Pulaski County, Georgia, Mrs. Thompson came across the following entry:

> Marriage License - North Carolina, Chatham County.
> Whereas Anna Posa hath this day applied to me for a Certificate of Marriage between Anna Posey and Nehemiah Posey of the same county of said state on the 7th day of June in the year of our Lord 17 7 (impossible to determine if this date is 1767 or 1777), I do hereby certify that on the day and date above mentioned Nehemiah Posey and Anna Trawartham (best guess at spelling of Anna's maiden name) was lawfully bound together in the Holy Estate of Matrimiony.
> Certified before me this 15th of Dec.1777, Entered 25 Sep. 1817.
> R. Moreland, CCO
> John Brandly, JP

Why would a marriage consumated in North Carolina be recorded in Pulaski County, Georgia forty years after the marriage, assuming the marriage date was 1777?

Does anyone have an answer?

Send us your answer for publication in our next Quarterly.

OUR FRENCH-CANADIAN ANCESTORS. 1983. By Thomas J. Laforest.
Published by LISI Press, [redacted]
Softcover, 6 x 9-inch, xiv, 199 pages plus seven appendices and index. $10.50 plus $1.50 for postage and handling.
Copy donated to CGGS library by publisher.

The genealogist of French ancestry, fortunate in being a descendant of one of the fine families described in this book, is indeed blessed with a treasure of information about his/her foreparents.

The author has included many small bits, pieces, and jewels of information about his subjects to the extent that they almost come to life and smile as you read about them. Being of French ancestry, I was a bit chagrined at not finding the VERRETS, my ancestors, living among them because they had left New France for Louisiana.

As a sequel to Our French-Canadian Ancestors, it is hoped the author will complete his work and tie-together those families presently living in Canada with descendants in the United States, or vice versa. Many genealogists would welcome this great addition to this very fine book.

The contents of this book are well organized and it is an easy book to read. Some of the principal biographies are: AUDET - BERUBE - BLAIS - BLANCHET - COUTURE - DEBLOIS - DIONNE - FORTIN - GAGNON - LACASSE - LAVERGNE - LEROY - LESSARD - LEVESQUE - PAQUIN - PARADIS - PILOTE - POTHIER - RHEAUME - RONDEAU - SAVARD - TRUDEAU - VACHON - VEILLEUX. There are also many interesting illustrations throughout the book.

This is a very good book for the genealogist who wishes to develop a "family history" for the family units covered in a genealogy. It tells what to look for, where to look, and how to develop an interesting family history.

CENTRAL GEORGIA GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY, INC.

QUARTERLY

Volume 6 SEPTEMBER 1984 Number 3

CENTRAL GEORGIA GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY, INC.

ORGANIZATION: The CENTRAL GEORGIA GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY was founded in October 1978, by James T. Martin of Warner Robins, Georgia and incorporated in February 1981 as a tax-exempt, non-profit corporation of Georgia under Section 501(c), U.S. Internal Revenue Code of 1954. The Society is governed by a six-member Board of Directors with the members elected for two-year terms.

PURPOSE: The purposes for which the corporation was organized are:

To collect, preserve and disseminate knowledge and information with reference to genealogical and related historical, biographical, and heraldic data;

To inculcate and promote interest in research in these fields;

To stimulate and provide instruction in the use of efficient methods and the adherence to principles of accuracy and thoroughness in research;

To champion ethical standards and to discourage and oppose incompetent and disreputable practices or researchers;

To foster careful documentation and otherwise promote scholarly writing;

To issue publications, and

To promote the collection and the preservation of local records which are of genealogical or historical value.

GEOGRAPHICAL AREA: The Society's area of primary interest consists of twenty-seven contiguous counties located in central Georgia. They are: Baldwin, Bibb, Bleckley, Crawford, Crisp, Dodge, Dooly, Houston, Johnson, Jones, Lamar, Laurens, Macon, Monroe, Montgomery, Peach, Pike, Pulaski, Taylor, Telfair, Treutlen, Twiggs, Upson, Washington, Wheeler, Wilcox, and Wilkinson.

MEMBERSHIP: Membership in the Society is open to any person interested in promoting the objectives stated above. Annual dues are: $15.00 for individual membership; $20.00 for family membership (husband and wife or two related members in same household), and $30.00 for sustaining membership (minimum - no maximum).

PUBLICATIONS: The Society published a newsletter (monthly) and a quarterly which are mailed to all members in good standing. Queries, from members only, are published in the Quarterly free of charge. There is no limit as to the number of queries which a member may submit for publication. Family Pedigree Charts, from members and non-members, are published in the Quarterly free of charge. Anyone submitting their pedigree for publication may order copies, prior to publication, for a nominal charge. These copies are printed on 8½ x 11-inch paper and there is no limit as to the number of copies which a person may order. Book reviews are published when a copy of the book has been received by the Society. These books then become a part of the Society' permanent library. Members are encouraged to submit articles for publication in the Quarterly, and extra long articles may be seralized. The Society exchanges quarterlies with genealogical societies and furnishes free copies to selected libraries. Current and back issues of the Quarterly, when available, may be purchased at a nominal cost from the Society.

TRAINING: Twice each year the Society conducts classes for beginning genealogists. These classes are free and available to members only.

WORKSHOPS: Once each year the Society conducts an all-day workshop, complete with exhibitors, for anyone desiring to attend. The registration fee is set to cover the Society's cost and will vary from year to year depending upon current prices charged for food, meeting rooms, speaker fees, etc.

SPECIAL PROJECTS: From time to time the Society undertakes projects for preservation of genealogical and historical information. In 1982 the Society sponsored a project to have the Houston Home Journal microfilmed from 1870 to 1920. In 1983 the Society sponsored a project to have the History of Houston County reprinted and published.

MEETINGS: The Society holds regular monthly meetings with planned programs. In addition to the program, time permitting, a discussion and answer period is usually conducted for the benefit of members who have a problem. Visitors and guests are always welcome to attend any regular meeting of the Society. Current membership covers many states and we invite you to join our Society.

PEDIGREE CHART INDEX

Contributed by: Mr. Thomas R. BETHUNE, 225 Valencia Circle, Centerville, GA 31028

This is a complete index of all names appearing on all Family Pedigree charts which we have published in our Quarterlies from September 1980 through June 1984 — a total of 1,326 names. This is a storehouse of information which we hope you will find useful in helping with your research.

Some of the early charts, September 1980 through June 1982, do not show as much information as later charts because of a change in chart format. You may order copies of any charts which we have published for 15¢ per copy, minimum order of 10 copies, from the Corresponding Secretary. Copies need not be all of the same chart.

To use this index find the name in the alphabetical section which you are interested in and note the chart number shown after the name. Find the chart number in the index of Quarterlies where you will find the chart published. If you have that issue of the Quarterly you can see the pedigree in which the name is a part of.

TEXAS SESQUICENTINAL

The following letter dated 13 Aug.1984, was received from Mrs. Grace W. LYNCH, [redacted]. Mrs. Lynch is a member of CGGS and is working on this project under the sponsorship of the Greater Metroplex Council for Genealogical Research, Arlington, Texas. Any help we can give her will be greatly appreciated. Ed.

Dear Friends:

I would like to share our society's project for the 1986 Texas Sesquicentinal. The book will include some documents which have not been previously published. We are very excited!

Perhaps Georgia has some "transplanted Texans" or people who are descendants of members of Texas' original colony. We would like to hear from you.

Also, I would like to have a query published: I would like to correspond with anyone working on the WARNICK family in Georgia during the early to middle 1800s.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
/s/ Grace W. Lynch

SAN FRANCISCO EARTHQUAKE

On April 18, 1906, an earthquake measuring 8.25 on the Richter Scale rocked San Francisco. The quake, lasting 48 seconds, and the subsequent fire, lasting three days and nights, caused tremendous property damage. The number of casualties, never completely tabulated, was in the hundreds.

To arrive at an accurate total for the number of dead, Mrs. Gladys Hansen, San Francisco City Archivist, has made a thorough search of all available records. Her total of 826 known dead far exceeds the official figure of 478 given by the 1907 Board of Supervisors. Yet even with her careful calculations, Mrs. Hansen believes the revised figure too low. She appeals to anyone having knowledge of any person killed in the 1906 disaster to write to her with whatever information they have. The names of the dead will be entered in the official roster in the Public Library, available to researchers of history and genealogy.

We encourage anyone seeking information on people killed in the 1906 Earthquake and Fire to write to:

UNEXPECTED RETURNS FROM ANSWERING A QUERY

Recently one of our members, James W. Turnipseed, Jr., answered a query of Mrs. Jeanne SHOOK, [redacted]. A portion of Mrs. Shook's thank you is quoted:

> "I was very interested in the postmark of Macon, GA. Do you live near there? My beloved stepfather spent his childhood in Macon although he was born in Chattanooga. His name was George Hazelhurst STONE. His grandfather was one of the founders of the L & N Railroad years and years ago. My stepfather bore the family name... HAZELHURST/HAZLEHURST. Are you familiar with this name? He was also connected with the name WINGFIELD which was a prominent Georgian name. His grandparents owned a plantation that was burned during the Civil War. Also he had relatives in Savannah who had a plantation. I think their name was PLANTE, but I'm not sure. His cousin was William McADOO who married Woodroe WILSON's daughter during the 20's or early 30's. He was always quite proud of his cousin. I guess he was a very fine man. Are any of these names familiar? I know that when he took my mother and me to Florida during WWII on a vacation, we went through Macon and he showed me the places where he had once lived. Wealso visited the lovely old cenetery where his relatives (including his mother and grandparents) are buried. I have pictures of the tombstones. If you know anything about these families, I would appreciate knowing about them."

If you happen to be working on any of the families mentioned by Mrs. Shook she would be glad to hear from you. She may be able to provide some other intersting details.

FAMILY UNIT METHOD FOR ORGANIZING RESEARCH AND PUBLISHING GENEALOGIES, 1983.
By James T. Martin. (Warner Robins, Georgia: Martin Genealogical Services, 1983. Pp. ix, 74, Index. $8.75.) Order from: Martin Genealogical Services, [redacted]. Postpaid within U.S. Georgia residents add 4% sales tax.

James T. Martin of Warner Robins has recently published a guide entitled "Family Unit Method for Organizing Research and Publishing Genealogies". This concise, 74 page work is a culmination of Martin's work not only as a genealogical researcher but as a publisher as well.

The book's first section contains 18 pages on research methodology. Everyone should read this before contemplating genealogical research, or any other type of research for that matter. Some major points he makes are: to use forms to not lose data and to understand what you have found or will be looking for; keeping your records legible even to changing your handwriting; abbreviations and how to set standard ones to use in your own records; and especially reference/footnotes and other forms of documentation. One additional comment should be added about how all of this will fit into the onrush of computers in genealogy where standardization will be most needed. While Martin's words have been said before and in other ways by others, he is saying it in a clear manner that everyone should understand.

The second part of the book is devoted to Publishing and the third part to Bookmaking. I once wrote a set of Guidlines covering some minor, but important points, that people tend to forget in doing genealogies. I am glad to see that Martin has broadened his notes into a book. His cost of publishing chart whould help people realize that it is not impossible to publish and that your work is not very useful unless you make it available to others. By pointing out the rudiments of typing on a page within margins (which is handled very easily by a computer) he hopes to educate people into making quality products rather than the often inexcusably sloppy genealogical works we often see. Especially important are his comments on pages 40-41 on an outline for a personal sketch of a family member. No one should just summarize someone's life down to just the "begats". Everyone in a family history deserves something about their life or a comment "not researched". No one's life should be summarized by just born and died and never married unless they died as an infant. Most Georgians are at the minimum a Baptist, Democrat and a farmer.!

Throughout he gives examples he has produced along the same guides he is setting. Of special interest is his numbering system. These always seem to differ in every publication I see. Martin is giving his reasoning for following the system he feels is best. His Index guide is another must for everybody. No book should be reviewed or allowed to exist anymore without an index if one is required.

All in all, Martin is to be commended for thinking of his fellow genealogists by putting this guide together. It should help plenty of people get going in the right direction. He could have included more data on publishers and the types of funding available since so many people think someone else is going to pay for the publication of their family book. Also, more could be said about the use of computers with even some examples of them. A computer can do as little as a typewriter or a lot more (like checking spelling or indexing automatically), depending on the user. It should also be pointed out that all indexes need instructions to tell the reader just what they do or do not cover. I think the Bookmaking section could be elaborated upon, perhaps including information from my own "Guidelines".

THE SOURCE, A GUIDEBOOK OF AMERICAN GENEALOGY, 1984.
Edited by Arlene Eakle and Johni Cerny. (Ancestry Publishing Co., Salt Lake City, UT 84110, Hardcover, 8½ x 11, Pp. xii, 786, Illustrated, $39.95.) Order from: Ancestry Publishing, [redacted]

Sixteen authors, each an expert in a particular field of genealogy, have combined their knowledge in this volume. It is probably the most complete reference work on the subject available to researchers today.

It identifies, locates and interprets all the basic record groups available for research. Each group is examined by source, type, scope, and quality of material contained in it.

In content and organization it is an easy to use book that will start the beginner on the right track, sharpen the skills of the experienced researcher and open new sources for investigation by the professional.

The three major sections of the book are: Major Record Sources, Published Genealogical Sources and Special Resources. Each section is divided into several chapters, each beginning with an overview-summary chart showing the type of records covered, the time period they cover and suggestions for their use. Each Chapter is well illustrated with copies of documents discussed therein.

Using this book will help any genealogist plan research tasks more efficiently, evaluate findings more carefully and compile records more accurately.

The Law family is fortunate that the author cared enough about his family history to devote much effort over several years to gather the information and make it available for their use.

The book gives some of the family background and then traces the descendants of the ten children of Rev. Law down to the present. Interesting notes about most of the family members are given and many priceless photographs of the family are included.

ABSTRACTS FROM NEWSPAPERS OF WILIMINGTON, NC, 1765-1775 AND 1788-1794, VOL. I, 1984.
By Raymond Parker Fouts. (Gen Rec Books, [redacted]. Pp. ii, 112, Softcover, 8½ x 11, indexed, no price.)

JAMES A. PERDUE AND DESCENDANTS, 1822-1984. By Gervaise Wynn-Perdue, 1984. (W.H. Wolfe Associates, [redacted], Hardcover, 6 x 9, Pp. xv, 540, Indexed, 179 pictures, $35.00 + $2.00 ph.) Copies may be ordered from the author at [redacted]. GA residents add $1.40 for State Sales Tax.

Mrs. Perdue has compiled an outstanding genealogical-historical record of James A. Perdue and descendants. The record starts in Houston County, Georgia and follows his descendants into Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, and other states. The book is fully indexed. There are over 1250 descendants and 500 allied families in 27 Georgia counties and 33 states. Some of the allied family names are: ARNOLD, BARKER, BARNES, BOWMAN, BRADDY, BROWN, CANTRELL, CHAMPION, COMBES, COOK, CRAPPS, DIXON, EDWARDS, ENGLISH, ERTZBERGER, HARRELL, HARDY, HOLLAND, HOPE, HORTMAN, HORTON, JAMES, KELLY/KELLEY, KING, MOORE, PARKER, PITTMAN, RENFROE, STEFFEY, STEPHENSON, TIPTON, TRIPP, TSCHANTZ, WARREN, WATKINS, WATSON, WILCOX, WILLIAMS.

Mrs. Perdue has arranged the contents of her book so that each of the original descendants of James A. Perdue forms one of seven chapters in the book. This makes for easy reading and provides the reader interested in a particular line with continuity of information pertaining to that line of descent. She has devised a simple and easy-to-use system for identifying individuals and their relationship to others in the same line of descent. Another big "plus" for this book is the use of photographs. In every line of descent she has included many photographs, almost all of them good reproductions, which adds immensely to the interest and value of the record. Another plus, which I personally prefer, is the placement of documentation in the text rather than at the end of chapters.

In addition to the above, Mrs. Perdue has included the following:

APPENDIX A - King and Renfroe families.
APPENDIX B - Early Perdue marriages in Georgia.
APPENDIX C - Perdue Confederate soldiers from Georgia.
APPENDIX D - Perdues of Jefferson County, Georgia.
APPENDIX E - Perdues in Georgia census records (1820, 1830, 1840, 1850, 1880, 1900).

This book is a record which any Perdue descendant would be proud to own and pass on to their children; a record of great value to any library and researchers interested in the Perdues and the history of central Georgia.

KEITH KINFOLKS, 1979. By Larry King. Published by Larry King, [redacted], Hardcover, 7 x 10, Pp. xvi, 363, Bibliography, Index, $25.00 from the author.

The author gives a brief genesis of the Chatti Tribe (Keith) from their origin in Germany. He tells of their defeat by Augustus Caesar, their migration to Batavia, and hence to Scotland (50 AD). He covers their long rise to power and Royal titles, and eventually their downfall in Jacobite Rebellion of 1715.

The Book, then begins with James KEITH, Sr., b c 1720 in North England and brought to Virginia as an infant. It follows with 2,715 KEITH family descendant biographical sketches thru the eleventh generation to 1979. There are 182 photographs (showing 685 individuals), a 16,500 name index, and a bibliography of 35 published and copyrighted works from which much KEITH information was taken.

Some related families are: ALDERMAN, BISHOP, BOLT, BROWN, BRUCE, BUCKNER, CHAPMAN, COLE, DAILY, DORSEY, DUNCAN, EANES, FITZWATER, GEARHART, GRAYSON, HARMAN, HARRIS, HOLCOMB, HOWELL, HYLTON, JARVIS, JEFFERS, KINCAID, KING, KIRBY, KNOWLES, LEGG, LOGAN, LOVING, LUNSFORD, MOLES, MOODY, MORRIS, MOSELEY, MOTLEY, McGAUGHEY, NEAL, PATTERSON, PHILLIPS, POFF, PRATT, OSBORNE, OWENS, QUARLES, RAMSEY, REED, ROLLINS, ROUNTREE, RUCKER, SEMONES, SHIPMAN, SLAUGHTER, SLUSHER, SMITH, SOWERS, SPENCE, SPRINKLE, SUTPHIN, TAYLOR, TILSON, TURMAN, WEDDLE, WEEKS, WHALEN, WILLIAMS, WINGATE, WOODRUFF, and WOODS.

Readers may find the print (9 point) a little small for prolonged reading, however, the contents are professionaly organized and documentated using the generation system. How to use the book is well explained. Anyone unfamiliar with genealogy should have no difficulty in tracing an ancestor or descendant.

1860 CENSUS OF GEORGIA: GLYNN CO.
Compiled by W. Tony Coursey & Kenneth H. Thomas, Jr., 1984. Typescript, 8½ x 11 inch, 41 Pages, Abstract, Index and Bibliography. Order from K. H. Thomas, Jr., [redacted], Price $5.00 postpaid.

KEN THOMAS, historian with the Georgia Department of Natural Resources and noted genealogist, and TONY COURSEY, recent graduate (Master of Librarianship) from Emory University, have abstracted and indexed the free population enumerated for Glynn County in 1860.

The ABSTRACT is COMPLETE — not just names of heads of households.

It follows the order of the dwelling numbers, maintaining the integrity of the ORIGINAL census, including pagination.

A STATISTICAL SUMMARY is included.

A unique feature of this work in comparison to other censes abstracts is an ANNOTATED BIBLIOGRAPHY. It lists sources, with regard to the approximate time period of the Census, related to the area, its history and its individual citizens.

This is the FIRST OF A SERIES. Other works on the coastal counties are soon to follow.

This is a very valuable document for a researcher to have at hand. It is well organized and a great time saver. By eliminating one trip to the library you have more than saved the $5.00 which it cost.

A number of HENRY's in 1820 census for Jackson, Gwinnett, Hall and Elbert Counties are believed to be descended from John HENRY, living 1790 in Wilkes County, NC., via John, Samuel, and William, living 1800 in Pendleton District, SC. Various members of these families are said to have removed to Walker County, AL., and some continued on to Mississippi.

The English writing of all names ending with "y" were two loops with a dot above each loop, similiar to "ȣȣ". In Colonial records the dotts were often dropped and "y" became "ee". Thus names like Hardy became Hardie and Hardee. Similiar variations are found in names like Tylden becoming Tilden and Telden in Colonial records.

Do you need early Inferior Court Records on Lee County, GA., whose court house has burned twice. Stewart County, GA Probate Court has copies of these records for 1827 thru 1830 when they were part of Lee (formed 1826) and Randolph (formed 1828). There are four or five of these books and they contain entries which are not referenced in the History of Stewart County.

New toomstones that replace old toomstones can be a source of recorded error. We recently saw three new stones in a family plot in Madison, FL., listing names and dates of birth and death of "Father", "Son" and "Son's Wife". The "Father" listed was actually a great uncle to the "Son". The son's mother died when he was age 4 and his father died when he was age 7 and he was raised by his great uncle.

HISTORY

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

IN

BY GEORGE HOWE, D.D.,
Professor in the Theological Seminary, Columbia, South Carolina.

PREPARED BY ORDER OF THE SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

VOL. I.

COLUMBIA:
DUFFIE & CHAPMAN.
1870.

Contributed by: Mrs. Kay M. DUNAWAY,

For those who are researching for their ancestors in early South Carolina they may find a name, or connection they are looking for. If not they will find this to be an interesting history.

Mrs. Dunaway is the church librarian and has offered to accomodate anyone who would like to research this volume or volume 2, either at the church library or at her home. Unfortunately, the indexes of these early volumes are not as extensive as newer volumes so one does have to scan the entire book — quite a time consuming task.

In this issue we have covered only part of the material which Mrs. Dunaway has sent to us. We will try to continue with this record in future editions of our Quarterly.

James T. Martin, Editor

The Presbyterian Church of Camden. In treating the history of this church we will first speak of "the early settlement of Camden." About the year 1755, three brothers, Joseph, William, and Eli KERSHAW, came out from Great Britain to South Carolina, bringing with them considerable funds or property. They were sons of Joseph KERSHAW, and were born at Sowerby, Yorkshire, England. In the year 1758, Joseph KERSHAW removed to a village then called "Pine Tree," on the east side of Wateree, at the head of navigation.

Here he continued many years, carrying on an extensive country trade. Colonel John CHESNUT was first his apprentice, then his clerk, and finally his partner, in this extensive country store, with branches at Granby and Cheraw.

Duncan McRA and Zack CANTEY were both in the employ of Colonel Joseph KERSHAW, and tradition reports that when speaking of the three gentlemen above named, he said "that he was raising up chickens to pick out his own eyes."

A colony of Quakers from Ireland, among whom were Robert MILLHOUSE and Samuel WILEY, two very sensible and respectable men, had settled in Pine Tree village about 1750; there they also built stores, mills, and meeting-house, and formed a very thriving settlement. The Quaker burying-ground is now the only place of sepulture in Camden.

Some time after Joseph KERSHAW'S settlement in the village, he married Miss Sophia MATHIS, one of the Quaker settlers. He soon became one of the most extensive and influential proprietors. He prevailed on the other settlers to unite in laying out their town in streets and lots, and in changing its homely name to that of Camden, in honor of Lord CAMDEN, the favorite English statesman of the day. Camden was laid out in 1760, and chartered in 1769.

Camden continued to prosper until the year 1780, when after the fall of Charleston the British troops overran the State. During the two years subsequent to the fall of Charleston, Camden became the centre of almost all the military operations of that eventful period; the battle-field for contending hostile armies, fifteen or sixteen actions having been fought in its vicinity. Camden was occupied by the Commander-in-Chief, Lord CORNWALLIS, for nearly two years, whose headquarters were at the fine old mansion of Col. KERSHAW, still standing as a relic of the Revolution. When the British could no longer retain Camden as a military post, they set fire to the court-house and jail, to their barracks, and to their store-houses,containing an immense amount of arms, provisions, baggage, and military stores of every description. In the progress of the flames, many private buildings were destroyed in the general conflagration. The fortifications were left entire by the British, hoping that they might return and occupy them; but these the Americans destroyed, and Camden was left in ruins.

The descendants of Col. Joseph KERSHAW, now living of his grand-children, are Charles and Benjamin PERKINS, Mrs. A. JOHNSON, all of CAMDEN; Mrs. POWERS of Virginia; S. Wilds DUBOSE of Darlington; Mrs. Mary R. YOUNG of Jackson county, Florida, and Joseph Bernard KERSHAW, who acquired honorable distinction in the Mexican war, as first lieutenant of the Kershaw Volunteers in the Palmetto regiment. He is now, 1852, a member of the legislature from Kershaw district.

Of the other early settlers, Samuel MATHIS was the first male child born in Camden. There are several descendants: two of the name of Drs. REYNOLDS, and Rev. S. M. GREEN, grand-children of the said S. MATHIS, and children of Joseph REYNOLDS and H. D. GREEN.

Of the family of Col. John CHESNUT, there are his son, Col. James CHESNUT, and Col. James CHESNUT, Jr., two gentlemen of the highest respectability. The younger James CHESNUT is senator in the State legislature, from Kershaw district.

Of the descendants of the Wiley Family, there are the families of James, William, and Thomas LANG, whose father married Miss Sarah WILEY, and whose name is enrolled as one of the first elders of the church; and his son, Thomas LANG, has long been a member of said church. Another of the Quaker families is that of Abram BELTON, whose descendants are James B. CURETON, James and Joseph DOBY and their sisters, Mrs. DUNLAP, Mrs. ANTHONY and Mrs. Robert KENNEDY, grandchildren of Mr. BELTON.

The only tradition as to the establishment of a Presbyterian church is, that John LOGUE, and aged Presbyterian minister from Ireland, preached statedly a part of his time in Camden for several years after the war.* But as there is no record of any organization, we have nothing to state officially in the matter.

*He preached occasionally at Jackson's Creek, Fairfield, and was a correspondent of Rev. Robert McCLINTOCK in 1787. His name occurs also in the list of Irish clergy preaching in South Carolina, given in a letter addressed to Dr. THORNWELL by Dr. J. R. WITHERSPOON, of Brookland, Alabama, in October 1848. There is a note before us, written by him, and addressed to Robert McCLINTOCK, to the care of William McCLINTOCK, of Rocky Creek, requesting Mr. McCLINTOCK to assist him at a communion season and at the fast-day on Thursday before. The note is dated February 17th, 1789, but the residence of Mr. LOGUE is not indicated.

The other is that found on a tombstone in the Quaker burying-ground, that a lady, a Mrs. SMITH, had made a donation of one thousand dollars toward the erection of a Presbyterian church, but she died long before a church was built, and no part of the gift was received. —(MS. History by I. K. DOUGLAS, Esq., written in 1852.) Yet it is mentioned in Allen's Biographical Dictionary, that Thomas ADAMS, son of Rev. Amos ADAMS, of Roxbury, Massachusetts, was ordained in Boston as minister for Camden, South Carolina, where, after a residence of eight years, he died August 16th, 1797. If this was the case, his ministry in this place must have begun in the last year of this decade, in 1780. He graduated at Harvard University, in the year 1788. "Mr. ADAMS, a young gentleman of the Congregational church, from Massachusets," says Dr. Furman, "preached there, and also had charge of the Orphan Society's academy." — (Appendix to Ramsay's Hist.)

The History We Made and the History We Have

[Reunion of 456th AAA Bn, Chattanooga, TN, June 2, 1984]

This is the latter part of a speech by Dr. Marshall in which he gives some very good advice and information on where we can find military records pertaining to World War II, and some timely thoughts on preserving "our" history. ed.

And now here we are, 40 years later. And we are enjoying getting re-acquainted and once again telling the old stories about our experiences together. My roll call of places is just a reminder of how varied our experiences were. This gets us to the second part of my subject — the history we have. First I am going to tell you what records now exist, both official and personal, and then I am going to suggest what you can do to preserve the memory of our Battalion.

The official records of the 456th are in the Modern Military Field Branch of the National Archives in Suitland, Maryland, a suburb of Washington. This facility is right next to the Washington National Cemetery — an appropriate location for us, since our first night in France was spent next to an Army cemetery. It takes some reconnaissance to locate the building, because there are no signs. The staff is courteous and helpful enough after you arrive, but they certainly aren't advertising what they have. If you are interested in going there, there is no use in corresponding or telephoning — just show up and 30 minutes later an attendant will bring you two boxes of records. That's all there is; they got us all in two boxes.

The basic document is the unit history, which records such information as organization, locations, movements, missions, and casualty lists. This history extends from the activation of the Battalion in 1942 to May 18, 1945, ten days after V-E Day, at which time they presumably declared us legally dead. Some of us have copies of this history (through 1944). We don't have the 1945 part. Vernon King had them for us when we got to Hattiesburg.

The other important document at Suitland is entitled "Combat Activities of an Antiaircraft Automatic Weapons Battalion in the Battle of France." It is dated December 4, 1944. This is a report that our officers wrote in order to share with other units still in training what we had learned from experience. I found this report very interesting. In reading it I learned that the officers had some problems that I didn't know anything about.

And there are a few other things, too, such as Gene Nieland's correspondence concerning the little girl that A Battery adopted in England. And there is a picture of the little girl. My eyes stung when I saw it.

But let's face it. Not many people are going to see the 456th file at Suitland. It is up to us, then, to leave a record of what our experiences were like.

Some of us have already done so. Jim Carroll has written his recollections of his tour of duty commanding the 456th. Bill Larson has a set of slides and a narrative to accompany the slides. Many of us have seen these slides. Pete Glowacki has a map which shows every location of Battalion headquarters on the continent. And there are no doubt others with unique items that I don't know about. I have published the letters that I wrote home. Nearly everybody has some pictures. Many of these are in albums. Even if what you sent home or brought home has already been lost, you can write down the funny stories, or for that matter, the unfunny stories. Or you can use a tape recorder to tell the anecdotes. I have heard many interesting stories during the last two days. I would hate for those stories to vanish when the teller vanishes.

All of these things will be of great interest to historians in the future. For instance, think about all the interest there is now in the personal experiences of soldiers in the Civil War. In just a few years it will be the same for World War II.

I recently received a letter from the University of Georgia Library saying that it is trying to acquire personal items from World War II veterans. The Library is interested in correspondence, diaries, reminiscences, photographs, insignia, shoulder patches — in short, anything. You may not think that you have anything of historical value, but you do.

I interviewed the librarian to learn more about the extent of the Library's interest. I said "How little is too little? How about one letter?" "Fine." "How about one picture?" "Fine." Libraries know that if they don't collect World War II material now, it will soon be too late. Of course, you may not want to give your material to a library now. You may want to will a library what you have. That's all right; librarians have a great deal of patience. My point is this: unless what you have winds up in a library, sooner or later it will be lost. (I'm looking at a lot of potential widows, so I will address this suggestion to the ladies. If your husband dies without making provision for his mementos, then you can see that his things get to a library.)

Some of you may be torn between leaving your materials to a library and giving them to your children or grandchildren. One thing you must bear in mind is that your family will multiply, and one day your materials will be fragmented and scattered — and eventually lost. If you give your materials to a library, they will always be together and they will be available for your grandchildren and great grandchildren to examine and copy. It will be a source of pride for them to know that grandpa was a part of an important event in our country's history and that mementos of his participation are valued and preserved in a public repository.

Maybe your local library is interested in what you have. You can ask, but don't be offended if you are told that it does not want what you have. Some libraries are more interested in such material than others. And some libraries don't have the space or money to maintain collections. The important thing is to find out which library really wants what you have.

If you don't succeed in finding a library in your home state which will welcome your materials, there are other places. For instance, the national repository, which has by far the largest collection of material, is the U.S. Army Military History Institute at Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania. If that seems rather remote from you, remember that the University of Georgia Library is interested in what you have, whether you have any connection with Georgia or not.

The fact that we are here tonight means that we cherish the memory of the 456th. And it also means something else — because after all, we could have thought about things at home. It also means that we value the friendships made during our time together in the Army. I hope that we can preserve the memory of these friendships by leaving a written record of who we were and what we did.

My brother-in-law, Mr. B. H. Shumate and my sister, Margaret Ann, his wife, and their two children, Arthur Shumate, my brother, J. P. Peters eleven years and myself Sarah R. Peters nine years.

We traveled with a family by the name of Tunning, also from West Va. There were six or seven in their family; father, mother, two or three boys and two daughters.

The Tunnings were very good to me. Their mother and father and two daughters rode in a carriage and they would stop and take me in for several miles so I could rest.

We left West Virginia in June, 1868 and landed in St. Joseph, Missouri the second week in September. We were three months and two weeks on the way.

On leaving West Virginia we went to Peterstown to say good-bye to relatives, among them were James Birnside and Aunt Cynthia, his wife, from there I believe we went to Hinton or Charleston, West Virginia.

The first stop I remember was on the Ohio River the fourth day of July and I saw a coal mine up in the mountain sending the coal down a chute into a flat boat. While watching that we heard a steam boat whistle around the bend, it came in sight playing a band and waving the "American Flag", loaded down with Fourth of July celebrators. The ladies were dressed in white dresses with hoop skirts and were dancing on board the boat. My, I felt like I was in a new world.

Next I remember was crossing the Ohio River with our wagons and all on a large flat boat. The next event was a drenching rain one night and we slept on the ground under a small tent, five of us. Mr. Shumate and my brother slept in the wagon.

Our next stop and only lay over was in Ohio at Mr. Shumate's cousin, a John Shumate, son of Kenley Shumate which was also a West Virginia man.

The next event was crossing the Mississippi River on a long wooden bridge which was covered with wooden shingles, I was afraid of going down. We were landing at St. Joseph, Missouri. We crossed the Missouri River that evening and landed on the Kansas side about sunset. It was raining and we made our beds in an old empty house. Cooked our supper and breakfast on an old fireplace.

Next morning, Mr. Shumate and Steve Tunning rode horseback down the river to see Andy Simms at Doniphan, he was a brother of Sam Simms and was also from West Virginia. He had the whole crowd move to Doniphan right on the Missouri River and gave them work in his packing house.

"My Duties on Way West"

First -- Jim and I from what older people in the party said, walked two-thirds of the way here. We had an old gray dog by the name of "Watch", that stayed with us constantly. Many times at crossroads he would lead us the right way. The wagons would get so far ahead of us that we would have lost our way had it not been for our dog, "Watch." His feet were cut and bleeding and we made him shoes out of squirrel hides that we tanned and boot tops and then sewed them up with leather strings. The dog walked all the way through.

We usually camped on the bank of a creek. I would take a bundle of clothes for the two babies, go down the bank out of sight and do their washing, carry it back and hang it on the bushes to dry.

My next duty was to dress brother Jim's arm which was amputated the latter part of the winter and never healed.

Sister Ann had prepared things before leaving home to take care of it, plenty of clean clothes and cakes of mutton tallow. I had a little tin pan, castile soap and a sponge. I washed and dried it, covered a cloth with tallow and tied it around the end of his arm, then a heavier cloth that would do for twenty-four hours.

My Trip from West Virginia (Cont'd.)

One evening after striking camp, sister sent brother and I to a farm house to get some sweet milk and a basket of potatoes, brother and I had never seen a dairy before and they were milking a number of cows, brother being so anxious to know everything asked, "How many cows do you milk?" The man straightened up and said, "Oh, ninety cows and a bobbed tail bull."

My other duties were to care for the baby, wash dishes and so on.

(Back to the trip west.)

We arrived at Doniphan, Kansas the second week in September, 1868. Spent the fall and winter. We lived in a two room brick house with a log fire place in both rooms, there we bought our first cook stove.

Lived there until the Spring, 1869, then we rented a farm five miles west, on Rock Creek in Doniphan County. Mr. Shumate and his brother, Allie, traded one of the horses they drove from West Virginia for a yoke of oxen, that left one horse for a saddle horse and to be used to plant and cultivate the corn and so on. They broke the prairie ground and haled with the oxen.

We had a three room house and fine bottom land in the Rock Creek Bottom, with the virgin grass for miles and miles around. Wild grapes and plums grew in great quantities along the creek and over the vast prairies there grew plenty of wild strawberries.

Two of the Simms brothers lived three miles west of us in the vast prairie. They were Billie and James Simms, brothers of Andy and Sam Simms, they delt in cattle and farmed some.

while on this farm, Jim and I were taught to do farm work, he with but one arm and me a small child. We planted corn, potatoes and cane, cultivated them, drove the oxen, gathered the corn, hauled wood and cane. We gathered the corn hauled in and pitched it out in the barn yard with our bare hands. The two Shumates would bring two old chairs from the house and set there and shucked it.

We had to cross Rock Creek to our field to get the corn, every time we crossed the creek and much to our chagrin, the old oxen we called "Blue", would lay down in the water, so, Jim said he would break him of that and when we came to the water, Jim would jump on his back and club him and I would use the whip. After a few treatments of this kind, he would pick up his ears and wade for his life.

While living on this farm, brother Jim and I walked two and one-half miles across the prairie to school. Numerous times we fought our way to and from school with the prairie wolves. There was a den of them in a rocky hollow and they would come out and chase us and bark. Jim was quite good at throwing and would have me fill my dress skirt with rocks and follow him closely and he would fight them off until we got by.

One outstanding trait of Jim's was to make money. He would trap gophers and muskrats, (I had to go along to help him set the traps). He received a price on the gophers from the county but sold the muskrats to the furrier.

I went out with Bud Shumate to shuck corn from which the ground in the fall had been sewn to wheat and was getting green. Soon after we started there was a flock of wild geese lit on this green wheat to feed, Mr. Shumate sent me to the house to get his rifle and when I brought it, he took aim and felled a fine goose which was as long as myself. He put him on my back, I held his feet on my shoulders and his bill would strike my shoe tops.

The second fall we were on this farm there was quite a company of relations came from West Virginia and landed at our place at dark one evening, there were relatives of the Peters and Shumates. Old Mother Jan Shumate, two daughters, Ann and Alice, and John Shumate, Jim Shumate and family, and Louis, son of Kenley Shumate, Gus Raborn and family, Henery Jones and family, Ed Shumate and his wife, Martha, brother John and sister, Ida Peters, Jim Shumate lost his son, John, the night they arrived there and the next night my sister, Ida Peters, died, she was two years older than Sam Peters.

That winter, I was taken to Cerry City, twelve miles away on the Missouri River to help Mrs. Jones, Bud Shumate's sister, raise her children and go to school. I slept on the floor on a straw tick. She was the stingest woman that ever breathed, she measured your meals with a teaspoon, while sister Ann let us help ourselves.

My people was doing well on this farm and getting ahead but the third spring after getting to Kansas, they sold off all their stock, furniture, and wheat crops that were left and loaded their wagons for Western Kansas to take up free homestead land. They took me to sister Martha and Ed Shumate's and left me there to help her nurse her two babies, Annie and Crow Shumate, at this time I was twelve years old.

Ed Shumate put brother John and I in the fields from early morning till late at night. That fall Ann and Bud came back to Doniphan County and found work, broke again, so I went home again. Next year we moved back into Missouri and lived there until I was married.

Thank the good Lord I didn't have to work in the fields any more. Both my husbands were noble men and they certainly cared for me.

YOUR NAME

by
Edgar A. Guest

You got it from your father. 'Twas the best he had to give
And right gladly he bestowed it. It's yours, the while you live.
You may lose the watch he gave-and another you may claim.
But remember, when you're tempted, to be careful of his name.
It was fair the day you got it, and a worthy name to bear.
When he took it from his father, there was no dishonor there;
Through the years he proudly wore it, to his father he was true.
And that name was clean and spotless when he passed it on to you.
Oh, there's much that he has given that he values not at all.
He has watched you break your playthings in the days when you were small.
You have lost the knife he gave you and you've scattered many a game,
But you'll never hurt your father if you're careful with his name.
It is yours to wear forever, yours to wear the while you live,
Yours perhaps some distant morning to another boy to give.
And you'll smile as did your father-with a smile that all can share,
If a clean name and a good name you are giving him to wear.

Tip - for Cleaning Marble Monument or Tombstone

The following is an excerpt from a letter which originally appeared in the June 4, 1980 issue of the Farmers and Consumers Market Bulletin published by the Georgia Department of Agriculture, Atlanta, Georgia. Miss Frix, the writer, in a subsequent conversation emphasized that the solution has been used and works well. We hope this will provide an answer to an oft-times perplexing problem.

Dear Editor:
The following formula was given to me by a reputable marble company many years ago for cleaning old stained monuments. A historian friend and I have used it on old monuments where the inscriptions were not legible. It does a fantastic job of cleaning old tile, too.

2 Tablespoon clear white vinegar
½ box table soda
½ box Ajax

This formula will not turn marble monuments yellow like bleach. For badly stained marble, add 1½ cups of ammonia to a gallon of water and rinse well.

Use the finest grade of sandpaper first on the monument, then apply the cleaning solution with steel brush or steel wool pads.

Do You Value Your Family Research Data?

By

Thomas H. Wood, [redacted].

Contributed by: Mrs. Addie P. HOWELL, [redacted]

Reprinted by permission of the author.

What is or should be the single most important act in genealogy?

1. Ancestry 2. Heritage 3. Tradition 4. Religion 5. Records 6. Trades
7. Immigration Trails 8. History 9. Country of Origin 10. Anecdotes

All of the above are important! If you selected any answer other than No. 5 — Records, perhaps you should re-examine your priorities and thinking. I recently learned that a whole trunkful of religious research and writings, poetry, music, songs and other valuable information that my maternal grandfather had spent over sixty years writing and accumulating had been carted off to the dump. I had believed that they were safe and being well cared-for by an aunt whom I erroneously thought valued her father's papers. How mistaken I was and how sad I now find myself. I have had many other unhappy awakenings recently. How often I have heard others say they wished they had become interested in the ancestry before some of the older members of the family who knew so much of it had passed on to their reward. No doubt each of you who read this have experienced the same feelings of despair and frustration.

What is going to happen to the data you have spent so much time, effort and money collecting? Who cares what you have done? Haven't you heard people say, "What do you care about all of those old dead people for?" Are any of your children or other members of the generations after yours in your family interested in your information? I know I wasn't interested in my own mother's forty-odd years of research into the family history until just recently and neither were my two brothers. Come to think of it, I can't name a single person in our immediate family who is interested and to whom I would entrust my mother's data and certainly not mine. Not my children, grandchildren, my brothers or theirs or any cousin or descendant of theirs.

What will I do with all of the piles of information I've gathered that probably only I understand at this time? Well, I, probably like a lot of you, have intentions of getting it in proper shape and writing a book, but will I have time, the energy, drive and resources to accomplish it? Perhaps you should ask yourself the same question. If something happened to you, wouldn't you feel guilty beforehand, to know that you had not left your information to one of your children, grandchildren, or other close relative? But, would they take care of it and make it available to future generations who might like to have it? All of the above are difficult questions; but I know that, like myself, you don't want your efforts and information wasted! What do you do then?

There are many organizations that will tell you that they would like to have your data and most probably several members of your family will express an interest in having it; but, will they safeguard it and make it available to other generations who may someday really give anything to have it. Probably not. No one right now may really be interested in your seemingly unselfish efforts; but, rest assured that someday, one of your descendants will appreciate your permanently recording your family history.

How do you do this? What do you do? Who do you leave your material to, to whom could you intrust it? These are also difficult questions, but, if you value your efforts and collection, please consider intrusting your data to a library that wants it and has the history and ability and funds for caring for this type of collection on a permanent, perpetual basis.

Deciding to leave your data to either an offspring or a library can often be a heartrending process; but, it really should not be if you are honest in wanting to preserve the records of your efforts for your children or other descendants. Actually you are trying to find the best way of accomplishing this, and you have no way of predicting what your children or others may do; but, some libraries are permanent repositories of private collections and others are designated as state or federal repositories for published and unpublished data of all sorts of information of historical significance. Your choice, therefore, should be obvious and easy for you to make and your actions in regards to your family record safekeeping more easily understood by your heirs. Provisos could be made for special access for your descendants and still be held in the public domain for other researchers to avail themselves of your valuable contributions. Your decision now made, you must figure out how to affect it. Talk to your attorney, your local library, your local or state genealogical societies, your state university libraries, and your state historical societies and state department of archives and history.

One last piece of advice. Don't delay - do it now! Tomorrow may be too late!

CHRONOLOGY OF LAND OWNERSHIP IN AMERICA (Cont'd.)

1775 Virginia promised land bounties of 100 acres for enlistment in the Continental Army.

1776 First act of Continental Congress pertaining to disposition of public lands. Act of August 14 offered deserters from British Army — both English and Hessians — fifty acres of public lands plus citizenship. Act of September 16 promised land bounties for military and naval services during the Revolutionary War. Land earrents, subsequently issued to veterans, were confined to a "military district" of 2,560,000 acres of public lands in the Northwest Territory.

1777 Continental Congress urged all States to seize and dispose of land owned by Loyalists and adherents to English King. All States had followed this advise by 1782, and were in the real estate business.

1780 New York ceded all western land claims to the new government. Virginia surrendered vast regions north of Ohio River in 1781. Massachusetts ceded all western claims in 1784. Connecticut followed in 1786. South Carolina in 1787, North Carolina in 1790, Georgia in 1802. All of these areas, collectively, constituted the public domain.

1800 Acts of May 10 authorized first Federal system of district land offices for transfer of surveyed public lands in Ohio Territory.

1801 Act of March 3 instituted first of many laws on pre-emption or preference right of pioneers. Pre-emption favored squatters, and discriminated against land speculators and investors.

1802 Cumberland Road authorized for construction between Potomac and Ohio Rivers. Completed in 1818.

1807 Government first recognized and so confirmed to claimants, land titles originally granted or issued under foreign governments of Spain, France, Mexico and other countries.

1812 Act of April 25 established the General Land Office in Washington, D.C. as a bureau of a Treasury Department. Act of May 6 established system of warrants or land bounties for military service during War of 1812 by veterans, or heirs. Military land warrants could be located upon any of the public lands within a military district. Three new military districts, each about two million acres, reserved in Illinois, Arkansas and Missouri. Military warrants and land grants administered by the General Land Office.

1814 After War of 1812 settlers began major migration westward to occupy public lands in the Mississippi Valley.

1842 Military land warrants could be located on any vacant, unreserved public lands subject to sale.

1845 Texas became a State, but retained title to all unoccupied lands. Thus Texas was not a public-land State.

1848 Mexico ceded a vast territory in Southwest, providing United States with additional 338 million acres of public lands to include present States of California, Nevada, Utah, Arizona and portions of New Mexico, Colorado and Wyoming.

1850 Oregon Denation Act granted as much as 320 acres to each single male, or 640 acres to a husband and wife, on condition of settlement for 4 years in undeveloped parts of Oregon. Act later extended to include Washington. Act expired by limitation in 1855.

After living on the land and farming it for six months, he could buy the homestead for $1.25 per acre. Act of July 1 granted lands for railroads and telegraph systems.
Act of July 2, The Morrill or Land Grant Act, authorized granting of public lands to help establish and support State Vocational Schools.

Georgians Needed for Texas!!!

Contributed by: Mr. Robert S. DAVIS, Jr., [redacted]

Texas will celebrate 150 years as independent nation and state in 1986. This commemoration promises to be one of the biggest celebrations ever held in the Western World! Georgians are a major part of that 150 years of history, starting with the Georgia Battalion, which came to Texas' aid during its war for independence and which gave Texas the Lone Star in the Lone Star Flag.

Today most of those Georgians lie in a common grave, beneath an impressive monument at Goliad, Texas. Other Georgians also fought in the Texas War of Independence and thousands and thousands more came to Texas afterwards in various waves of immigration. We all have Texas cousins, in spirit and in blood.

In 1986, let us show that "our favorite colony is not forgotten by its homeland, on its birthday." The addresses to write to for information on the Texas Sesquicentennial are: the race of man is found,

Now green in Youth,
now withering on the ground;
The following spring another race supplies,
They rise seccessive and seccessive fall;
So generations in their course
decay,
So flourish these, when those are passed away.

HISTORICAL MARKERS — A BRIEF HISTORY LESSON

Contributed by: Mr. Thomas L. CARAKER, [redacted]

Almost every state has a program for erecting historical markers at sites of historical importance. A moment of your time to read these markers may provide an important clue which will help you in your research. The following is shown on the marker pictured to the left:

In 1790 several Catholic families of English descent from Maryland settled near Locust Grove. They established the first Roman Catholic Church in Georgia and erected a log church in 1792. A priest, Father John LeMoin, was sent to it from Baltimore. French families, fleeing the French Revolution and later, several Irish families joined the colony. After 1860 a church was erected in Sharon, as the Locust Grove location had become too remote. Locust Grove Academy, the first chartered Roman Catholic Academy in Georgia, was formed about 1818. Many prominent Georgians have come from these early Catholic families.

MONTGOMERY COUNTY (TEXAS) HISTORY, compiled and edited by Montgomery County Genealogical Society, Inc., P.O. Box 751, Conroe, Texas 77305. Hardcover, 9 x 12, 633 pages, indexed. Price $52.00 Copy donated to CGGS library by the society.

Although I have found no ancestors in Texas, yet, I enjoyed this book immensely. After reading about the wild flowers and the birds of Montgomery County and the early history of this southeast county of Texas, I was sorry I didn't have a Texas ancestor. The book is just brimming with excellent photographs of tennis teams and astronauts; a 1920 baseball team; beautiful old homes and, of course, the ancestors of the descendants now living and interested in preserving the history of Montgomery County, TX. I enjoyed reading many of the family histories. Congratulations, Montgomery County Genealogical Society on a very fine contribution to the history of our country.

BARNWELL COUNTY MARRIAGES 1775-1879, IMPLIED IN BARNWELL COUNTY, S.C. PROBATE AND EQUITY RECORDS.

By Barbara R. Langdon and Shirley P. Langdon. Published by the authors, [redacted]. Soft cover, 5½ x 8½, p. 135, $20.00 plus $1.25 for postage and handling. Copy donated to CGGS library.

This book offers the genealogist a lot of valuable information in a concise and easy to use format. If you are looking for South Carolina ancestors this record should be checked, just in case your ancestor stopped in Barnwell County.

As stated in the title and in the introduction, this is not a listing of marriages but a record of probate and estate records where a marriage is implied. The original probate records may be found in the Barnwell County Courthouse. Bundles 1 through 179 are on microfilm at the South Carolina Department of Archives and History in Columbia, South Carolina. Barnwell County Equity Records used in this book are those on microfilm at the SC Archives in Columbia, SC. This suggests that, for a reasonable fee, you may be able to obtain a photocopy of the entire record from the Archives.

RECORD OF MARRIAGES, HENRY CO., TENN. 1881-1890.

By Charles D. ROBBINS and Johnny D. WALKER, 1983. [redacted]: private printing, no date, no price. Softcover, 8½ x 11-inch, 213 pages.
A companion volume covering 1891-1900 has 249 pages.
Both volumes donated to the CGGS library by the authors.

What is to be said about one of these books is equally applicable to the other because the arrangement and format are identical in both volumes.

Henry County is located in western Tennessee and has a common border with Kentucky.

These books contain a record of all the marriages in Henry County for 1881 through 1900 — a total of 2,437 in the first volume and approximately the same number, or a few more, in the second volume. The first section of each volume is arranged alphabetically by the groom's name and the second section is arranged alphabetically by the bride's name. This provides a good cross-reference to any marriage which one may be looking for.

For some marriages the license was not returned to the County Court Clerk, or the participants decided not to get married after a license was issued. These cases are identified by "NR", and the date shown is the date the license was issued. In some cases a marriage was nullified by the court and these are identified by "NE". This is good to know so that a reader will not go looking for a marriage record which does not exist. These codes are explained in the foreword. The use of "(Col)" after a person's name is not explained, but it should be. A hundred years from now this may not be readily recognized as indicating a colored person.

These are excellent reference books and the contents are arranged in a manner which makes them easy to use. They represent a lot of work by the authors. I would suggest that smaller print be used in future volumes to reduce the number of pages and hold down the cost. Also, an address should be shown where one can get a copy of the book.

YATES METHOD for NUMBERING PEDIGREES

Contributed by: Mr. James T. MARTIN, Editor, [redacted]

Our Historian-Archivist, Mrs. Marge A. Thompson, loaned me her copy of SEVENTEEN SEVENTY-SIX, a genealogical quarterly published by Mr. William A. Yates, P. O. Box 237, Ozark, MO 65721, so that I might take a look at his system for recording pedigrees. He has a unique system which I think is well worth your consideration — especially if you are using a computer.

HERE IS HIS SYSTEM:

A number is assigned to each name line entry and a father's number is twice that of a son or daughter. A wife's number is the next number larger than that of her husband. You may start a pedigree for a son or for a daughter, the system will work for either. The number for a husband's father is twice that of the husband, and so on. The following is an example taken from volume III, number two, in the quarterly. This is the pedigree for Kendon Lee CLARK:

1.	Kendon Lee CLARK b 25 Nov 1942 Baytown Tex, m Genie Faye BROOKE 30 July 1972 Mont Belvieu Tex.	This wife is not numbered because she is not part of this pedigree.
2.	Manson Lee CLARK b 28 Nov 1905 Cove Tex, m 21 Jan 1933 Lake Charles La	Father of No.1
3.	Elmyra Ester MALLEY b 17 Oct 1911 Cove Tex	Wife of No.2, Mother of No.1
4.	William Daniel CLARK b 9 July 1864 West Trinity Bay, Chambers Co Tex d 19 Feb 1940 Cove Tex m there 16 Apr 1890	Father of No.2
5.	Florence SMITH b 17 Sept 1872 Double Bayou, Chambers Co Tex d 5 Sept 1935 Cove Tex	Wife of No.4, Mother of No.2
6.	Joseph Freeman MALEY b 6 Sept 1866 Cove Tex d 26 Mar 1943 Cove Tex m 30 Sept 1908 Cove Chambers Co Tex	Father of No.3

And so on. The largest number in this pedigree is 16070 for J. HADDEN. His father would be number 32140.

If you desire to try this system I would recommend some improvements:

1. When the town/city, county, and state are known show all three. But don't show only the town and state, it is better to show the county and the state. Towns have a way of disappearing, counties stay around for awhile longer.

2. Instead of showing where a person died show where they are buried. This is where we can look for a gravestone.

3. Use the three-letter abbreviations for months and the two-letter abbreviations for states.

This issue of SEVENTEEN SEVENTY-SIX contains 54 pages of queries and subscribers can have their queries published free. Annual subscription is $16.00

If any of our members are using this method we would like to hear from you and learn how it is working.

CENTRAL GEORGIA GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY, Inc., P.O. Box 2024, Warner Robins, GA 31099

CENTRAL GEORGIA GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY, INC.

ORGANIZATION: The CENTRAL GEORGIA GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY was founded in October 1978, by James T. Martin of Warner Robins, Georgia and incorporated in February 1981 as a tax-exempt, non-profit corporation of Georgia under Section 501(c), U.S. Internal Revenue Code of 1954. The Society is governed by a six-member Board of Directors with the members elected for two-year terms.

PURPOSE: The purposes for which the corporation was organized are:

To collect, preserve and disseminate knowledge and information with reference to genealogical and related historical, biographical, and heraldic data;

To inculcate and promote interest in research in these fields;

To stimulate and provide instruction in the use of efficient methods and the adherence to principles of accuracy and thoroughness in research;

To champion ethical standards and to discourage and oppose incompetent and disreputable practices or researchers;

To foster careful documentation and otherwise promote scholarly writing;

To issue publications, and

To promote the collection and the preservation of local records which are of genealogical or historical value.

GEOGRAPHICAL AREA: The Society's area of primary interest consists of twenty-seven contiguous counties located in central Georgia. They are: Baldwin, Bibb, Bleckley, Crawford, Crisp, Dodge, Dooly, Houston, Johnson, Jones, Lamar, Laurens, Macon, Monroe, Montgomery, Peach, Pike, Pulaski, Taylor, Telfair, Treutlen, Twiggs, Upson, Washington, Wheeler, Wilcox, and Wilkinson.

MEMBERSHIP: Membership in the Society is open to any person interested in promoting the objectives stated above. Annual dues are: $15.00 for individual membership; $20.00 for family membership (husband and wife or two related members in same household), and $30.00 for sustaining membership (minimum - no maximum).

PUBLICATIONS: The Society published a newsletter (monthly) and a quarterly which are mailed to all members in good standing. Queries, from members only, are published in the Quarterly free of charge. There is no limit as to the number of queries which a member may submit for publication. Family Pedigree Charts, from members and non-members, are published in the Quarterly free of charge. Anyone submitting their pedigree for publication may order copies, prior to publication, for a nominal charge. These copies are printed on 8½ x 11-inch paper and there is no limit as to the number of copies which a person may order. Book reviews are published when a copy of the book has been received by the Society. These books then become a part of the Society' permanent library. Members are encouraged to submit articles for publication in the Quarterly, and extra long articles may be seralized. The Society exchanges quarterlies with genealogical societies and furnishes free copies to selected libraries. Current and back issues of the Quarterly, when available, may be purchased at a nominal cost from the Society.

TRAINING: Twice each year the Society conducts classes for beginning genealogists. These classes are free and available to members only.

WORKSHOPS: Once each year the Society conducts an all-day workshop, complete with exhibitors, for anyone desiring to attend. The registration fee is set to cover the Society's cost and will vary from year to year depending upon current prices charged for food, meeting rooms, speaker fees, etc.

SPECIAL PROJECTS: From time to time the Society undertakes projects for preservation of genealogical and historical information. In 1982 the Society sponsored a project to have the Houston Home Journal microfilmed from 1870 to 1920. In 1983 the Society sponsored a project to have the History of Houston County reprinted and published.

MEETINGS: The Society holds regular monthly meetings with planned programs. In addition to the program, time permitting, a discussion and answer period is usually conducted for the benefit of members who have a problem. Visitors and guests are always welcome to attend any regular meeting of the Society. Current membership covers many states and we invite you to join our Society.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Natchez Trace Genealogical Society
P.O. Box 420
Florence, AL 35631

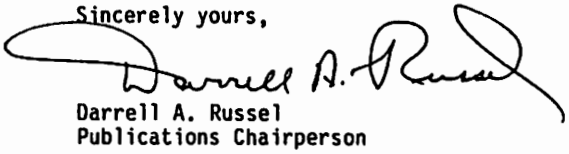
21 February 1985

James T. Martin, Editor
Central Georgia Genealogical Society
P. O. Box 2024
Warner Robins, GA 31099-2024

Dear Mr. Martin:

I was appalled at the recommendations published in the December 1984 issue of the Quarterly (Vol. 6, No. 4, p. 99) for cleaning marble tombstones. The recommendation included using a "steel brush or steel wool pads". In Tennessee this would be a felony offense, in Alabama a misdemeanor; I'm not sure how it would be classified in Georgia but every genealogists needs to know that this absolutely is not the way to clean a tombstone, granite, marble, or otherwise. A few strokes of a steel brush is equivalent to 50 or 100 years of weathering! In both Tennessee and Alabama, such a cleaning procedure could be classified as defacing a monument, although I know of no cases yet where court action has ensued. We already are concerned because the inscriptions are beginning to fade - because of age and slow weathering, because of acid rain, because someone else also used a steel brush, or because the marker was made of soft sandstone. The objectives of almost every genealogical society include the preservation of genealogical information, not the hastened destruction of it. A stiff bristle brush is the harshest brush that should be used. If possible, use no brush or the softest possible scraper, such as styrofoam. Personally, I would object also to the cleansing solution recommended. Marble is calcium carbonate, a form of limestone. It dissolves readily in acids. A mixture of water and vinegar is an acid, albeit a very weak one. The fact that it does a "marvelous job" on tile should tell you that something is happening to the marble that is not necessarily good. As for the reputable marble company providing such information "many years ago", I doubt that the company had a chemist; it seems more likely that this was the recommendation of the salesman.

Sincerely yours,



Darrell A. Russel
Publications Chairperson

Our thanks to Mr. Russel for his letter.

We appreciate his warning of Tennessee and Alabama laws concerning acts which could be classified as defacing a monument. His warning, however, could be an indication that we as genealogists have a bigger and more far-reaching problem than we realize, that is, what is the best methods for cleaning different types of monuments?

In their Technical Leaflet No. 9, Cemetery Transcribing, the American Association for State and Local History, 1400 Eighth Avenue, South, Nashville, TN 37203, states: "While the use of wire brushes on tombstones is sometimes challenged, if used carefully, no damage will result."

On page 68, The Source, we find the following: "It is highly unprofessional to use harsh abrasives or wire brushes to remove the moss since these measures further damage the inscriptions and are of questionable value even to the immediate user." This is followed by advice on cleaning and photographing a stone.

Is there a chemist out there with a good recommendation? What is the law in your state? Let us hear from you.

Surnames were not in general use in England prior to the year 1200; and were not required by law until so ordered by EDWARD I during his reign from 1272 to 1307. Upon said decree, each and every subject of the realm was required to select such surname as he might desire, together with his descendants, to be known. Many selected a name denoting his occupation, some personal characteristic, or some element in his surroundings — in fact, any name which might strike his fancy or imagination. Others selected the name of the place, or town, of his birth.

You might say that tracing your ancestry back beyone the year 1200 becomes a little more difficult.

Medals from West Virginia

Contributed by: Mrs. Marge A. THOMPSON, [redacted]

Thousands of medals that were commissioned by the state of West Virginia in 1866 for veterans of the Civil War are now available to their descendants.

A recent article in "Americana" magazine quotes Fred Armstrong of the state's Archives and History Division as saying the medals are still in their original cardboard boxes and are taking up valuable space in filing cabinets.

The state has about 5,000 medals that come in three classes: for soldiers who were honorably discharged, killed in battle, or died of wounds or diseases.

Descendants claiming a medal must submit genealogical documentation such as military, census, or marriage records and then wait six months for the claim to be verified.

In cases of conflicting claims, the division will award the medal to the person most directly descended from the soldier.

To apply for a medal or make an inquiry, persons may write Archives and History Division, Department of Culture and History, The Cultural Center, Capitol Complex, Charleston, WV 25305.

The Indiana State Library's genealogy division now has a service for all researchers, called INDIANA FAMILY EXCHANGE. Information may be submitted on a 3 x 5 card — printed or typed. State information in this order: Family Name; Indiana location/approximate date; your name; your address; your phone number; and date of submission.

The library cannot assure accuracy of the information or be responsible for any arrangements made between users of the service. Exchange cards should be sent to: Indiana State Library, Genealogy Division, 140 N. Senate Avenue, Indianapolis, IN 46204. Research hours at the library are 8:15 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 8:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. on Saturday.

A Teeds Grove, Iowa, area newspaper recently published a genealogy-oriented cartoon that raises questions about how one might, in the future, trace one's lineage.

The drawing shows a mother(?) seated on a couch with her(?) daughter(?), looking at the Family Album. The conversation is:

"This is the geneticist with your surrogate mother. Here's your sperm donor and your father's clone, and this is me holding you when you were just a frozen embryo."

York County, South Carolina

Contributed by: Mrs. Mabert E. READ, [redacted]

Source: "York County - Yesterday, Today, Tomorrow" printed by the York County Planning and Building Department, York, SC, 1977. Picked up at Welcome Center.

"The first settlers of York County were the Catawba Indians. In what is now York and Lancaster counties, the Catawbas gave up their nomadic ways and became a settled people, depending largely on hunting and fishing for subsistance. In 1720, the Catawba Nation numbered approximately 1,470, but by 1784 it was less than 250. The decline of the Catawba is ironic because the tribe was friendly toward York County's first white settlers and fought on the patriot side during the War of Independence.

Since the initial settlement of the white man in the 1750's, York County has gone through several changes in name. The county was first part of North Carolina. Anson County was its first designation; next Mecklenburg County (1763-1768); then Tryon County, North Carolina (1768-1772). With the resolution of the boundary dispute between the two Carolinas in 1772, the area became part of the New Acquisition of South Carolina and was formally organized as York County, South Carolina, in 1785.

The first white settlers of the area were Scotch-Irish who had previously settled in the Pennsylvania counties of York, Chester and Lancaster: names later bestowed upon their counterparts in South Carolina. Those who settled in York County came primarily from Down, Antrim, Londonderry, and Tyrone counties in Ulster Province, Ireland. The Scotch-Irish were the backbone of York County settlement.

During the Revolutionary War, soldiers from York County took part in many battles, including the Cherokee Campaign (1776), the Georgia-Florida Campaign (1777-1778), and the Defense of Charleston (1779). Such prominent military figures as Colonel Thomas Neel, Colonel William Bratton, Colonel William Hill and Colonel Samuel Watson were York County residents.

Two important Revolutionary battles took place within the boundaries of York County. On July 12, 1780, at Williamson's Plantation, near Brattonsville, Colonel Bratton, with a small band of outnumbered men, defeated the infamous Captain Christian Huck and his Tory force. This victory, acclaimed as "Huck's Defeat", came at a most opportune moment since it occurred soon after the fall of Charleston, the darkest hour of the conflict in South Carolina.

York County's greatest contribution to history was made when her people, led by Hill and others, refused to accept British protection, raised the American Flag, and proclaimed to the world their determination to fight to the death. York County was the only section of South Carolina which did not surrender to the British.

Another great contribution that York County made to the war effort was the Battle of King's Mountain. There on October 7, 1780, backwoodsmen of the Carolinas, Tennessee and Virginia defeated the British forces of Colonel Patrick Ferguson. This victory proved to be the turning point in the War of Independence because it shattered the myth of British invincibility.

Following the Revolution and throughout most of the nineteenth century, York County's economy was primarily agricultural. From the period of the Revolution to the time of the Civil War, farms and plantations dominated the landscape.

The 1860's and 1870's were the tumultuous years of the War Between the States and Reconstruction. Many residents were casualties of the War, though little military action took place in the county. In 1865, there was a skirmish at Nation Ford when Union troops burned the railroad trestle which spanned the Catawba River at that point. York County escaped the path of Sherman's March when flooding in the western part of the State diverted the troops south and east.

During the war years, York County was a place of refuge for many Charleston residents who fled the lowlands. York County homes also sheltered President Jefferson Davis and his cabinet as they fled Richmond near the end of the conflict. President Davis spent the night of April 26, 1865, near Fort Mill at Springfield.

York County of the twentieth century is a product of her heritage. Many historical sites still exist in York County. Every individual would find it an enjoyable experience to visit the many sites York County has to offer."

HENRY OF EARLY GEORGIA 1757-1827

Contributed by: Mr. William R. HENRY, [redacted]

CONNECTING LINES: Mrs. Minnie Marie Henry KUHLMAN, [redacted], writes, "What a great christmas gift you gave me". Mrs. KULMAN, descends from Samuel HENRY, who married 22 Jan.1824 in Newton County and died 1857 in Stewart County. For years she searched Georgia records for his parents and visited Stewart, Newton, Muscogee, Harris, Talbot, Twiggs and Hancock Counties. From the data she gave this contributor, David HENRY, Sr., who died 1815 Twiggs County was the most likely prospect. His widow Dinah HENRY drew LL 37-8 Henry County in 1821 lottery. Henry County was formed in 1821 and later that same year, so was Newton County, taking the upper portion of District 8 from Henry County.

Since Mrs. KUHLMAN had searched Newton County, this contributor visited Henry County court house at McDonough and within a few minutes discovered the deed printed here. This deed dated 25 Feb.1824 shows Dinah HENRY, William R. HENRY, David HENRY (Jr.), Joseph HENRY, Samuel HENRY, Elizabeth HENRY (who m. 3 Feb.1825 Newton County to George MYERS (MIERS)), and Joel STANSELL (who m. 19 Jan. 1823 to Coletta HENRY), all of Newton County, sold 177 acres of 202½ acres in LL 145-3 of Henry County. John HENRY was a witness to this deed. A sheriff sale deed dated 23 Nov.1844, involving the remaining 25½ acres was listed as property of John HENRY of Talbot County.

It is now obvious that the William H. HENRY listed in CGGS Quarterly, Vol. 6, No. 3, Page 84, September 1984, was William R. HENRY, later found in Newton and Campbell Counties (1860). The initial "H" had been obtained from reprints of secondary sources (Legal Notice). David HENRY (Jr.) can be found in Talbot County (1840) and Muscogee County (1850). Joseph HENRY was in Muscogee County (1850). Joel STANSELL was in Newton (1850). Elizabeth (Henry) MIERS was in Newton (1840). A female the age of Dinah HENRY lived with David HENRY in 1830 and with Elizabeth MIERS in 1840.

This Henry family descends from Stephen HENRY of Craven County, NC and is believed to be the same one who died 1803 in Hancock County, GA. They are said (The Glory of Covington, 1973, by Williford) to be Cousins to Patrick HENRY of Virginia.

HISTORY

OF THE

IN

By GEORGE HOWE, D.D.,

Professor in the Theological Seminary, Columbia, South Carolina.

PREPARED BY ORDER OF THE SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

VOL. I.

COLUMBIA:
DUFFIE & CHAPMAN.
1870.

Contributed by: Mrs. Kay M. DUNAWAY,

For those who are researching for their ancestors in early South Carolina they may find a name, or connection they are looking for. If not they will find this to be an interesting history.

Mrs. Dunaway is the church librarian and has offered to accomodate anyone who would like to research this volume or volume 2, either at the church library or at her home. Unfortunately, the indexes of these early volumes are not as extensive as newer volumes so one does have to scan the entire book - quite a time consuming task.

This is the second issue of the materiel which Mrs. Dunaway has sent to us. We will try to continue with this record in future editions of our Quarterly.

James T. Martin, Editor

Lebanon Church, Jackson's Creek, Fairfield. Their second house of worship, was on lands belonging to Joseph CHAPMAN. Rev. Mr. THATCHER, from the North, perhaps previous to this, preached for some time alternately at Jackson's Creek and in the Wolf Pit (or Wolf Pen) meeting house on the Wateree. While assembled for worship at the church on Jackson's Creek, in those troublous times men were stationed as videttes, and sentinels walked their rounds to apprise the worshippers of any approaching foe. Bands of Tories were lurking around, and late in the year 1780, Lord CORNWALLIS established his headquarters at Winnsboro, at the junction of Walnut and Washington streets, where he remained till between the 5th and 8th of January, 1781. From the lips of Mrs. Mary BARKLEY we have received a few interesting facts, of her own recollection, belonging to the period of the Revolution. Mrs. BARKLEY was the daughter of Samuel and Jane GREY, and was born in Ballybreak, near Ballymoney, county Antrim, Ireland, in 1758. Her father died when she was an infant of three months, leaving her mother with four children, Margaret, William, Robert, and Mary. Her mother afterwards married John DUNLAP, by whom she had a daughter, named Anne. In 1773, her parents sold their farm in Ireland and migrated to America, arriving in Charleston in December of that year. In March, 1774, they removed to Jackson's Creek, a tedious journey, as performed by them, of three weeks' duration. Here they settled themselves comfortably in a log cabin, as was the wont of the new-comers.

Soon after their settlement one of the daughters, Margaret, married James McCREIGHT who fixed his abode about one mile from Winnsboro. In the year 1776, William and Robert, her brothers, and DUNLAP and McCREIGHT, entered the American Army. This year also they were engaged in the snow campaign against the Cherokee Indians. The whole labor of the farm thus fell upon the female members of the family, for they had as yet no servants. There were frequent alarms too that the Cherokees were advancing upon the defenceless settlements. On one occasion they left the house and lay out in a thicket a long and dreary night. Mary assumed the principal care of the household, plying the spindle and the loom with ceaseless industry, a type of many others of her sex of that early day. The care of the farm greatly devolved upon her, for after three months' service in the snow campaign, her step-father, DUNLAP, came back an invalid unable to yield much assistance. Under these circumstances her heart became attached and affianced to a brave young Lieutenant, Alexander GASTON.

The GREYS first entered the service under Captain James PHILIPS, who afterwards deserted the cause of the colonies and joined the British. Robert then entered the continental army as an artillerist, and was orderly sergeant of his company. At the battle of Fort Moultrie he was disabled for life by the bursting of a cannon. William joined the company of Captain Robert ELLISON as first lieutenant. He had been in the Indian war under General PICKENS, was in the battle at Fort Moutrie, in the ill-starred campaign against St. Augustine, and was in almost every battle in the South, from the beginning to end. His friend GASTON and himself were both lieutenants in the regular army. When the regulars made their gallant charge on the British works at Savannah, GASTON was wounded. The two young lieutenants were in the field during the campaign of 1780. After the battle at Monk's Corner and the fall of Charleston, they were driven back with their companions as refugees to North Carolina, whence they returned to renew the strife.

In the month of June,1780, their camp was pitched on Clem's Branch, in the upper edge of Lancaster district. Here they were found by SUMTER, who like them, was a refugee having left his family exposed to the tender mercies of the enemy, who plundered his goods, destroyed his property, burned his house, and left his wife and family without a shelter. He now selected a few chosen men to accompany him, that he might punish his enemies and bring his family away, among whom were William GREY and Alexander GASTON. At Wright's Bluff, on Black river, SUMTER encountered a body of British and Tories, too numerous for his chosen band, and was forced to retreat beyond the river. GASTON had taken the small-pox, and getting wet while crossing, his disease became very violent, and being left at the house of a Mr. McCONNELL, he died in a few days. Mary GREY was inconsolable at his loss, and though she subsequently had many offers of marriage, twelve years elapsed ere she could give her heart to another. Even in her old age, seventy years after, she would heave a sigh at the mention of his name, and with moistened eye would repeat the words, "Yes, we were to have been married after the war."

Some time in the summer of 1780 her brother, William GREY, was taken prisoner and lodged in Camden jail, whence he was afterwards paroled, and permitted to return on condition that he should never go to a greater distance from Winnsboro than three miles. He and his sister Mary stayed for the most part, while the British were at Winnsboro, at their brother-in-law, Mr. CREIGHT's. At this time the family of her stepfather and brother-in-law was frequently robbed by the Tories.

Mrs. BARKLEY was wont to relate many incidents of the local history of the Revolution. The small-pox prevailed to a considerable extent in the British army, especially among the Tories under BRYANT's command. The sick were quartered upon the inhabitants; two in the family of DUNLAP, her step-father. She gave up to them the house and lived in the kitchen, waiting faithfully on them. From their conversation she judged them to have been ministers of the gospel. They spoke of the flocks they had left, now deprived of the preaching of the gospel. God was now visiting them with his chastisements, and they were much affected, not only by the judgments that were on them, but by the kind attention they received, notwithstanding the loathsome disease with which they were visited.

On Christmas morning her attention was attracted by the firing of cannon immediately after the morning gun. She asked the wife of a British soldier what it meant. She answered, "They are keeping Christmas, as they always do in a friend's country." Mary asked her if they really thought they were in a friend's country. "Yes," she replied, "South Carolina is a conquered country, and belongs to the king." She replied, "Does it indeed? well, we shall see." Mrs BARKLEY also relates that a project was on foot among the heroic men in the upper districts for an attack on CORNWALLIS's camp; that Robert CARR, orderly sergeant in Col. DAVIE's dragoons, came by stealth to McCREIGHT's, had an interview with William GREY, who went the next day to the borough, counted the troops on parade, noted the means of defense, and everything necessary to be known, and reported the same to CARR. GREY anxiously awaited the attack, but the British position and force were too strong for any force the men of Chester could raise.

The Rev. William MARTIN, a Covenanter, preached occasionally at the Jackson's Creek church. He was a warm Whig, and did not scruple to use his influence in the cause of the colonists. The hand of power was laid on him, and he had been confined in prison at Rocky Mount and Camden since early in June. He was now brought before Lord CORNWALLIS at Winnsboro. He stood before him erect, with his gray locks uncovered, his eyes fixed on his lordship, and his countenance marked with frankness and benevolence. "You are charged," says his lordship, "with preaching rebellion from the pulpit - you, an old man, and a minister of the gospel of peace, with advocating rebellion against your lawful sovereign, King GEORGE the III! What have you to say in your defence?" Nothing daunted, he is reported to have replied. "I am happy to appear before you. For many months I have been held in chains for preaching what I believe to be the truth. As to King GEORGE, I owe him nothing but good will. I am not unacquainted with his private character. I was raised in Scotland; educated in its literary and theological schools; was settled in Ireland, where I spent the prime of my days, and emigrated to this country seven years ago. As a king, he was bound to protect his subjects in the enjoyment of their rights. Protection and allegiance go together, and where the one falls, the other cannot be exacted. The Declaration of Independence is but a reiteration of what our Covenanting fathers have always maintained. I am thankful you have given me liberty to speak, and will abide your pleasure, whatever it may be."

Meanwhile other scenes were enacted. Lord CORNWALLIS was accustomed to take a morning and evening ride down the road. Colonel WINN, Minor WINN, and one other whose name is not recollected, concealed themselves in a thicket where WOODWARD's gin-house now stands, rifle in hand, intending to cut him off. They were discovered and apprehended by a party of Tories, and were condemned to be hung (on a certain day) at twelve o'clock. Minor WINN, took the sentence greatly to heart, and sent for the minister, Mr. MARTIN, to pray with him. He was under guard at the spot where Mrs. BARKLEY subsequently resided in Winnsboro, then in the woods. The British soldiers had cut down some of the trees for firewood, and had piled up the brush in heaps, behind which Minor kneeled in prayer, and was joined by the minister, and their exercises were continued, the gallows full in view, till the fatal hour. Mary GREY (Mrs. BARKLEY) stood in the door expecting to hear the drum and fife, as the minister and her political friends were marched to the gallows. Instead of this they were marched to Lord CORNWALLIS's headquarters, and pardoned. Minor WINN was persuaded that this was an express answer to prayer, and was subsequently often taunted, in his days of frolic, with this forced repentance. Mrs. BARKLEY was persuaded that the act of pardon was due to the friendly offices of Col. PHILIPS, whose life Col. WINN had spared, who in the old country had kept the race-horses of the father of Lord CORNWALLIS, and who assured his lordship that if these men were executed, a hundred of his majesty's subjects would be hung worthwith by the indignant people in retaliation. PHILIPS was a man of wealth and abilities and of a compassionate heart. He was ever engaged in acts of kindness to his Whig friends and neighbors. He protected their property and interceded for their lives. He had known Mr. MARTIN in Ireland, and respected him. His Tory principles were the result of his education and his connection with the aristocracy of his native land.

Rev. Mr. SIMPSON, from Fishing Creek, preached at Jackson's Creek for two or three years subsequent to the war one week day in the month, his Sabbaths being otherwise occupied, and it was at his church that Mrs. BARKLEY made her first profession of religion.*

*In 1792, Mary GREY married Hugh BARKLEY, an emigrant from the neighborhood of her native place in Ireland. The fruits of their marriage were two sons and a daughter: the first-born died in infancy, Major Samuel Grey BARKLEY, and Margaret BARKLEY, the latter yet survives. The above facts were gained partly from the lips of Mrs. BARKLEY, and partly from a narrative drawn from the same source, written by D. G. Stinson, Esq., of Chester district.

In 1784 or 1785 the Rev. Thomas Harris McCAULE received a call from Jackson's Creek and Mt. Olivet for his ministerial services, he having been appointed principal of the Mount Zion College at Winnaboro.

The commonly held notion of colonial American family life - that many generations lived together and shared farm and household chores - is far from the truth. Few people lived long enough to see their children grown, let alone their grandchildren. Data compiled in 1790 by Dr. Benjamin Rush, the prominent physician, indicate that of 100 people born in a given year in Philadelphia more than one-third died before the age of six and only one-quarter lived beyond age 26.

The life expectancy at birth for Americans was 34.5 years for males and 36.5 years for females when George Washington became president in 1789.

"OLD 23RD DISTRICT" (HENRY COUNTY, TN)

By Charles D. ROBBINS, [redacted], Sep. 1984. Private computer printing. Softcover, 8½ x 11-inches, pp. 99, no index, $8.00 ea. Copy donated to CGGS Library by the author.

The old 23rd District of Henry County, TN, is now a U.S. Wildlife Refuge and partly covered by water from the Kentucky Lake Dam on the Tennessee River. This is primarly a genealogy and historical sketch of some 300 families who lived there and in the northern portion of Benton County, TN. However, it appears that no more than 130 families lived there at any given time.

Many settlers came from Nash and Edgecombe Counties, NC, settling first in Montgomery, Robertson, and Wilson Counties, TN. They resettled in the old 23rd District when Henry County was opened in 1820 by the Jackson Purchase. The author lists extracts of early NC and TN census records for above counties. Also extracts of early Land Grants, marriage records, and the census for 1860, 1880, and 1910. He also lists the families who lived there in 1936 when plans for the dam were started. The document is interwoven with a good history of the area, including some civil war stories, childhood memories, bootlegging days, etc.

I consider the document a superb effort to preserve the genealogy and historical memory of a ghost area, where man no longer lives.

1860 CENSUS, BAKER COUNTY, GEORGIA.

Abstracted by Faye SWEAT. Published by Southwest Georgia Genealogical Society, P.O. Box 4672, Albany, GA 31706, nd. 32 pp. Indexes. Softcover, 8½ x 11-inches. $4.00 plus $1.00 postage and handling. Copy donated to CGGS Library by author.

This is a good reference to have at hand when researching in southwest Georgia. It is well organized and easy to use with an alphabetical index back of the text. An introduction giving some of the history of Baker County would have added to the book's interest, however this is covered in the flyer advertising the book. Also, a date of publication should be shown in the book (assumed to be late 1984 or 1985).

Baker County, in southwest Georgia, was formed in 1825 and was later divided to allot territory to Dougherty, Mitchell and Miller counties. It was named for Col. John BAKER, a revolutionary soldier.

It was in this county on 3 July 1836 that a company of Georgia Militia engaged what was reported to be a band of three hundred Indians in the battle of Chickasawachee Swamp. Though only nine Indians and one white man were killed, the engagement was called one of the most important of the Creek Indiana Wars because it prevented that force of Indians from joining with some Seminoles who were then fighting Federal troops in Florida.

Because Baker County courthouses where twice destroyed by flood, in 1925 and 1929, makes any records of this county important to the researcher. This 32 page booklet contains the names of 321 persons who were heads of households and a total of 1,495 inhabitants of Baker County.

COMPUTER GENEALOGY: A GUIDE TO RESEARCH THROUGH HIGH TECHNOLOGY.
By Paul A. ANDERECK and Richard A. PENCE. Published by Ancestry Incorporated, P.O. Box 476, Salt Lake City, UT 84110, 1985. Softcover, 5½ x 8½, Pp. xiv, 280, Indexed. $12.95 plus $1.50 for postage and handling. Copy donated to CGGS library by authors.

This is the book you have been looking for! It is the only book that I have seen which gives positive recommendations for selecting the right computer and software for genealogical use.

The language is about as nontechnical as you can get and there are many excellent illustrations to help you along the way. There are two very good checklists: One for use in evaluating the computer to buy, and one to use in evaluating the software. If you are thinking, even remotely, of going to a computer you will avoid many disappointments by first reading this book — it is a must!
